HIGH IN THE SASKATCHEWAN BUSH:

Land of Fantastic Fishing

By Donnell Culpepper

Press-Telegram "Fis hin' Around" Editor

FISHING is where you find it, but I found the greatest angling experiences of my life in the bush country of northern Saskatchewan this summer on an aerial trip from Lac La Ronge to several lakes in that vast unmapped area of half-water, half-land.

Norm Ferrier, University of Saskatchewan biologist and my guide, told me when I arrived at Careen Lake:

"Don, you'll get so excited when you see this pool on Black Birch Creek, you won't be able to cast."

I laughed it off as we trudged along a muskeg trail leading from the end of Careen to an accessible part of the stream he mentioned.

Then, suddenly, we came upon it—a pool 200 yards long and of about the same width. Water plunged down over white rapids at the upper end, with birch, young jack pines and low brush on either side. A setting to delight the whimsy of any outdoorsman! I took that in at a glance, then looked toward the center of the pool where the water subsided into a slowly flowing mass.

Everywhere I looked dorsal fins of arctic grayling and the slightly humped backs of whitefish were splitting the water in slow movements. Occasionally an open mouth would suck at the surface, drawing an insect. A hatch of black flies was on.

Norm was right. I almost bent the ferrules on my five-ounce fly rod in my haste to get the outfit together.

I ATTACHED a leader with two-pound-test tippet and a No. 10 dry fly of a black variety—Norm said it didn't matter about the pattern as long as the fly resembled the insects on which the fish were feeding. Then I made a perfect fool of myself on the first cast. I flubbed it, coiling the leader like a rope 30 feet away. It didn't matter. There was a sudden swoosh as a grayling split the water and snapped at the fly. I set the hook, tightened my grip on the line in my left hand.

That grayling didn't play like one of Southern California's planted trout. He took off like a 10-horsepower motor directly across the pool, ripping out all the slack line in my hand and running it down to the reel. Then the reel hummed.

Several minutes later, I brought the grayling, dorsal fin still high and splitting the water, to the net. It was a beauty, just under two pounds.

When I took the grayling off the hook, I was amazed at the solidity of the fish. It was as hard as a rock. We weighed the fish and eased it back into the water. He swished his powerful tail and away he went barely showing any signs of the battle.

Grayling followed grayling until my arm ached.

"Now that I've been initiated thoroughly into grayling fishing, what about those whitefish?" I asked Norm, as I watched them, breaking and boiling just beyond the reach of my average cast.

"You'll have to use a different technique," Norm said. "Let's get into the canoe and paddle to that point near the waterfall. We can fish from there, but you're going to have to use care. The whitefish of this country has an extremely soft mouth and is difficult to take on hooks, particularly on flies. Grayling are tough and you can whip 'em without too much effort, but a whitefish that gives a sudden jerk on a taut line will tear the hook out of his mouth."

WE REACHED the point and I started casting before Norm could secure the canoe. I made several false casts to dry the fly, then flipped it right on top of a boil. Another boil followed as a fish took the fly. I jerked the rod and then exclaimed: "Missed him."

"You didn't miss him," said Norm, "You tore the hook out of his mouth. Take it easier."

I tried again. When the boil appeared I barely flicked the rod tip and was rewarded. A whitefish was on and Norm softly whispered advice: "Easy does it, now. If he runs, let him go. Try to keep out the slack, but don't work him until he gets through with his runs."

I followed instructions and began to get the feel of the fish. Five minutes later I had a three-pounder in the net.

"Not big enough," said Norm. "I won't let you keep one unless you get a record fish. Toss him back."

"But I want to taste whitefish," I remonstrated.

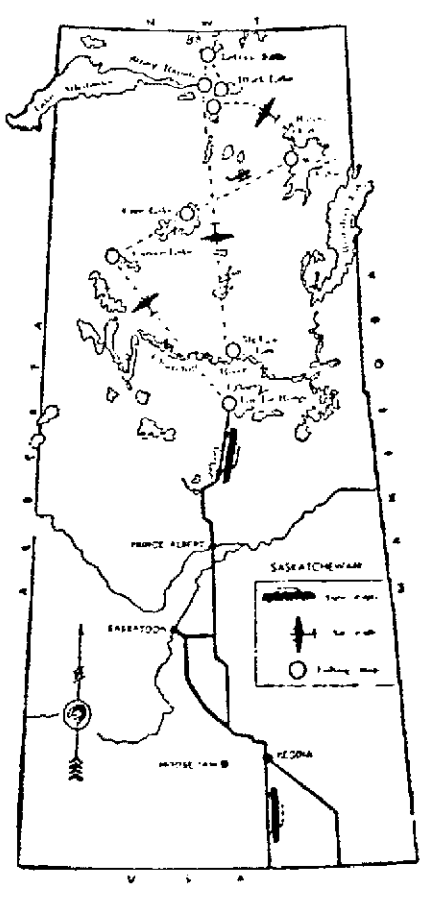

"Then catch a big one," Norm said, laughing. "I'm going to take a walk above the falls and look at a few pools up that way."

I KEPT FISHING. I caught four more whitefish, but none was as large as the first. I could see larger fish snapping at insects, but they seemed out of reach. Finally I cast a fly far out of the moving current and let it drift, hoping that it might reach the bigger fish. It did. I knew the minute I saw the boil and set the hook lightly that it was no small fish. I got so excited that I slipped from a rock into ankle-deep water. The battle was on. I let that fish have everything he wanted which was all of the 30 yards of HCH flyline, plus a portion of the backing. He boiled, swished,

REVOLT IN CENTRAL AMERICA:

'I Saw Communism Take Over Guatemala'

"Voluntarios," actually natives serving 3-year compulsory terms in Guatemalan army, parade in Guatemala City. They are type involved in revolts.

By Gladys Everets Brown

A TEACHER CAN get just as frightened as anyone else. I found that out during the revolutions of 1944 that ushered in the pro-Communist regime. When they erupted, I was teaching kindergarten in the English-American School in Guatemala City. Though on Oct. 29 there were said to be 2,000 killed and no count taken of the wounded, I wasn't nearly as much afraid of a stray bullet as I was of being hacked to death by Indians with machetes. It happened in Patzicia and the threat lasted for months.

Compared to the October fracas, the revolt in June was a picnic. That came to a head on Education Day, when teachers and students went on a stay-home strike instead of marching in a uniformed parade according to custom.

I could not parade alone. I stayed home like the others. But in the morning, as everything seemed normal, I decided to go to church. In answer to a lonely voice on the phone, I stopped by the school to pick up Yvonne, an 8-year-old boarder from the banana town of Tiquisate.

"Why are you wearing black?" the resident teacher asked me in horrified tones, then told me that there was to be a demonstration in the street and that the secret sign of an upriser was a black dress. I decided to skip church, but not Sunday dinner. During both troubles, a daily trial was the walk of several blocks from my hotel apartment to a resturant serving American-style food.

Two blocks from the school, Yvonne grabbed my arm. A file of soldiers was coming along the curb, rifles and bayonets at the ready, dark Indian faces enigmatic. These were "voluntarios" serving a compulsory term in the army, a compulsion that added another score to their accumulated 400-year hatred of the whites. On 6th Ave., which the apartment building faced, there was a double file.

By the time we had climbed the 51 marble steps to my third-floor lookout the street had filled. Everyone was dressed and gay as if for the daily roundabout when all came to see and be seen. Candy vendors went wild trying to be everywhere at once. Suddenly a shot barked.

GIGGLING GIRLS fled in terror as mounted officers cleared the street, encouraging stragglers with the flat of their swords. A woman was carried away. Tear gas rose chokingly. The radio declared 6th Ave. closed to civilians. But we were confident of President Ubico's firm control on the country. We had our dinner, somewhat late, and I gave up responsibility for Yvonne at the school with exceeding relief.

An edict forbade further demonstrations. But that afternoon another began to form beneath my balcony. Women in black, carrying prayerbooks, streamed from the church across the way to defy the edict. A crowd gathered, shots were fired and a young teacher died. Now the revolution had a martyr. Feeling mounted. An estimated hundred were killed that night, and the city was put under martial law. Crowds were forbidden to form — three persons constitued a crowd. Schools, churches, stores and all public meeting places were closed.

Heavily armed soldiers were on every corner. I walked a straight line to my meals and home again. There I hastily pinned curtains into place to cover the great 10-foot high French doors that gave such a wonderful view and afforded so little protection.

Many persons still supported President Ubico, who had grown arrogant but had perhaps done more for Guatemala than any other man. Civil war threatened until he resigned. A triumvirate of generals took his place. Newspapers flourished in new-found liberty of speech. Then in a few weeks there was one general in command, General Ponce. The honeymoon with freedom was over.

At 2 a. m. on Oct. 19, heavy firing wakened me. From the handling of the heavy mortars and anti-aircraft guns we deduced in the building that the army was using lend-lease equipment.

FIRING WAS STILL going on in the morning. From the roof we could see gaping holes in Ft. Matamoros to the east. It was out of action. Shells began to fall on Ft. San Jose on a ridge six blocks to the south of us. Soldiers manned the roof but it could not resist artillery fire. Snipers, machineguns and grenades kept the defenders inside.

Above the firing the sky was very blue with white clouds and the Volcano Agua seemed to say that another revolution was a small matter. But there were bodies sprawled on the fortress' walls.

Suddenly a giant fountain of flame spurted above the fort. Soldiers poured out like ants into machine gun fire. Those that survived it passed us, many of them wounded, waving anything white they could find in surrender. One had a white saucer.

A great shout rose in the street. Barred doors opened. Five thousand guns were given to volunteers. The battle moved to the President's Palace, already surrounded by tanks and armored trucks. By 11 a.m. I saw a white flag go up there. At once, tanks rumbled our way to surround the Police Palace, next to the church on the corner opposite us.

The police were fighting for their lives. I, too, had some concern about mine. The outside wall of my apartment was mostly glass and faced the beseiged building. Snipers raked our roof. I had a choice of the stair tower or the bathroom. Sometimes I crawled to the balcony where the cement and iron railing gave some shelter and a glimpse of what went on. At 6 a white flag went up but the firing continued until all police were hunted down and killed to expiate the death of the teacher in June. With dark, tanks began to patrol the streets.

THE NEW FREEDOM lasted about two weeks, daytimes only. No crimes were reported and details were omitted of the nightly gun battles that went on for some time. The police were wiped out, the constitution declared null and void. Everyone had freedom. Everything was chaos. Only the Communists knew what they really wanted.

Arana, Arbenz and Torriello headed a youthful government in which the average age of the new National Board of Education was 22 years. Their inexperience did not make things easier. The Reds quickly entrenched themselves and had to be driven out by force in 1954.

For myself, I still believe that beautiful, tormented Guatemala will once again ring with song and laughter. As a Guatemalan general once told me, "The Indians and the jungle own this country. We only use it." Indians and mixed-bloods make up about 85 per cent of Guatemala. Communists used it and may again. They can never own it.

Teen-Age Bronco Busters

Bronco busters on Lisle Woolery's ranch in West Covina average 13 years of age. Woolery operates one of the largest Shetland pony ranches on the west coast. "My ponies are raised and broken mostly for small children to ride," he explains, "so I use youngsters to train them. That way the ponies become used to children."

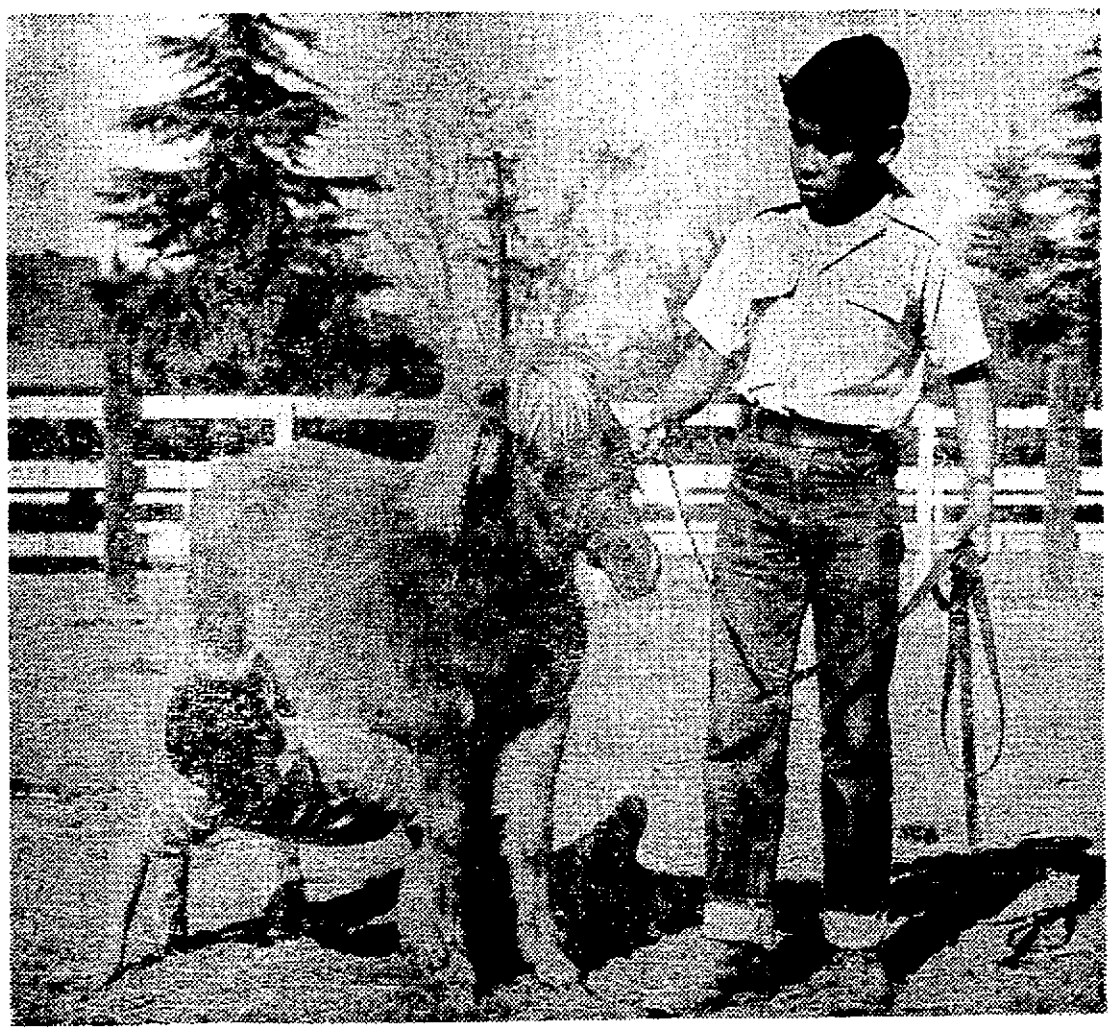

Pic ture Story by Jack B. Kemmerer

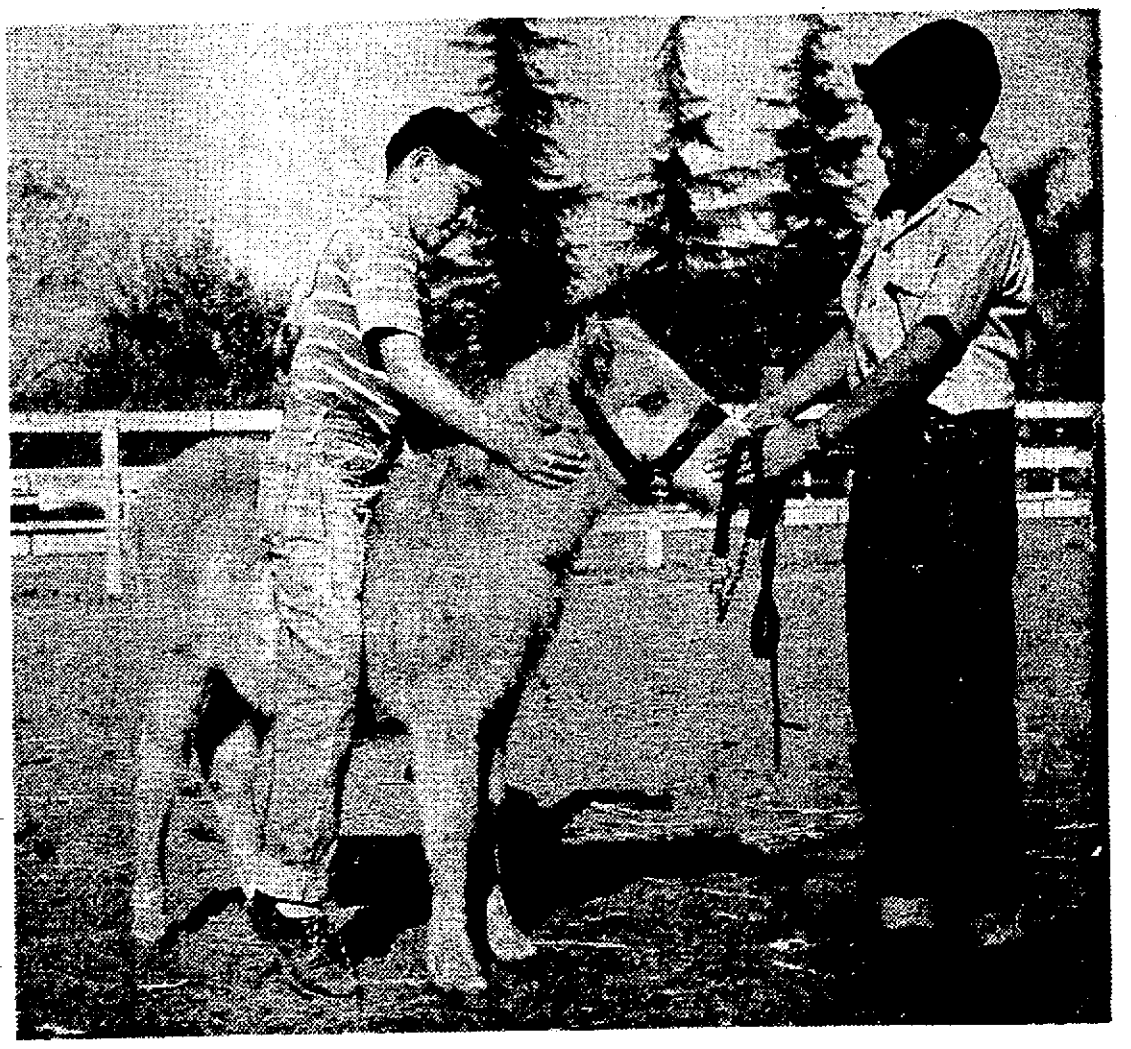

A Shetland pony colt playfully nuzzles his mother. Soon this colt will be going to "school." Shetlands are sure-footed, intelligent and patient enough to put up with the whims of small children.

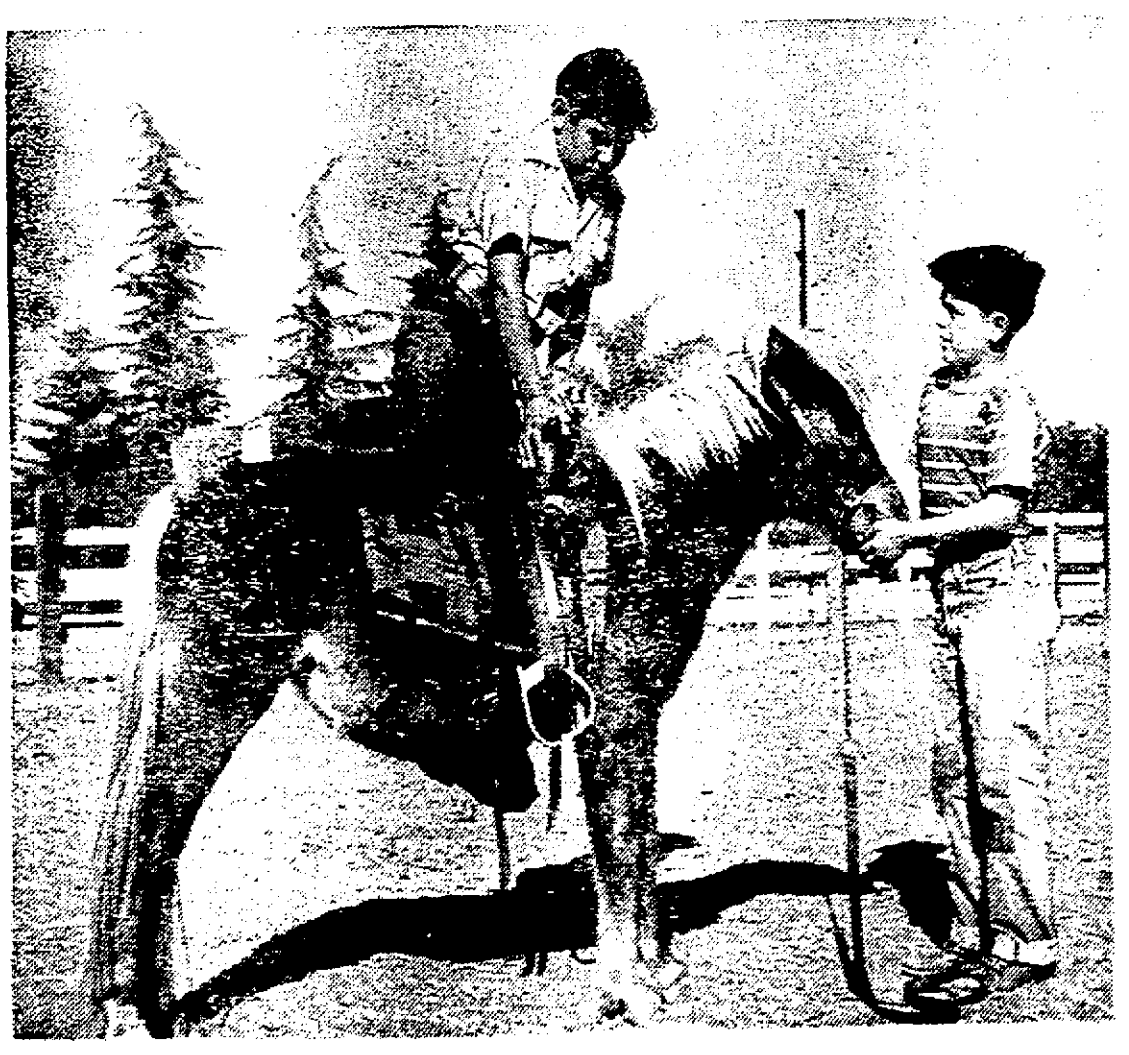

As soon as the colts are old enough the young bronc busters take over. The boys usually work in pairs. Here, two boys give a pony his first lesson in leading. Struggle continues until pony learns.

Invariably, the young owner of a pony has a baby brother whose favorite trick is crawling under the pony when mother's not looking. Boy trainers teach the Shetlands to watch for tiny tots underfoot.

When the colt is strong enough—at about 6 or 8 months—the boys start to put weight on his back. At first, only a small part of their weight is on the pony, then slowly the weight is increased.

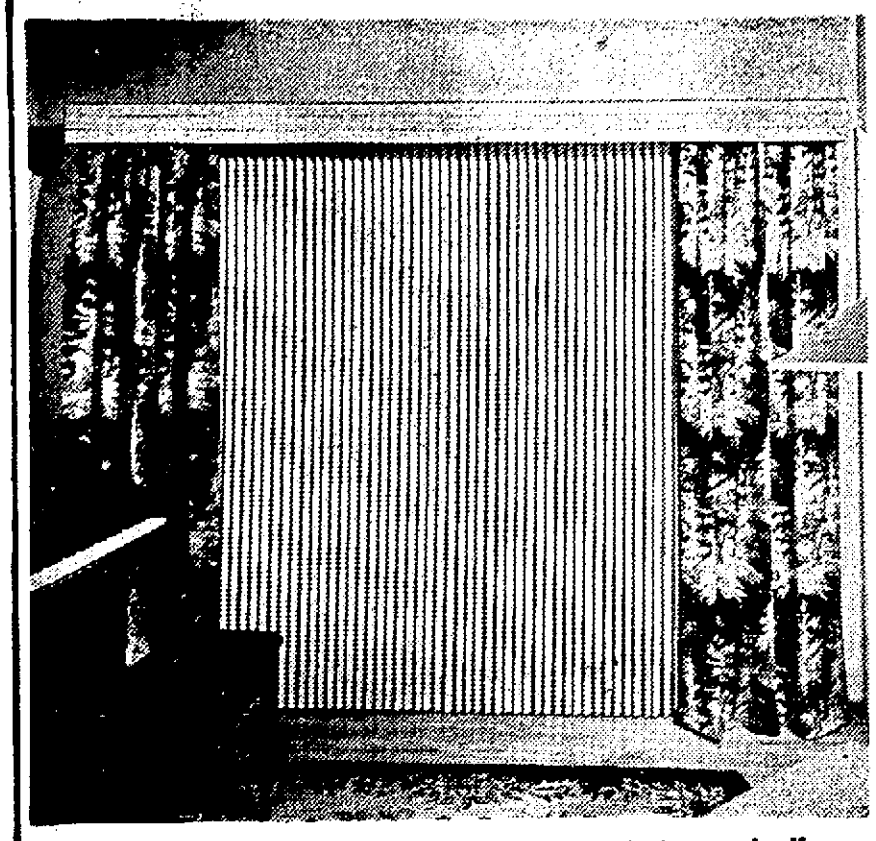

Now comes the big moment—the first time the trainer mounts the saddle. One boy calms the Shetland while the other climbs on. The pony will buck but it's all in a day's work for these youngsters.

Finally the ponies are ready to leave the ranch and go to work on the pony wheel. They are one of the main atttractions at more than 50 school carnivals each year. And they like the kids, too.

HIS TAPES TEACH TRAFFIC TRUTHS: HE'S

Washington's Recording Cop

Sgt. Amans gets attentive reaction to safety lectures given with the help of unrehearsed recordings made on highway. Talks are radio show by-product.

By Jerry O'Brien

SPOKANE, WASH.

GEORGE AMANS learned radio on a police car intercom, but today he's the Northwest's most successful amateur radio personality.

A tall, handsome sergeant in the Washington State Police, Amans uses a microphone and recorder to put the finger on traffic violators and back up a state-wide drive to cut fatalities.

He was on hand the other day when one driver turned from the wrong lane, whipped past a stop sign and weaved across a white line.

Pulled aside at the curb, the driver cried:

"This thing has gotten out of hand, officer! I'm going to tell the governor. He's a personal friend of mine. This is ridiculous!"

The driver's outraged cry was heard by an estimated 3 million West Coast radio listeners. It was unquestionably entertaining —this cry of unrighteous indignation from the guilty. But it was educational, too.

A radio audience heard it because the sergeant had a microphone hidden somewhere on him. (He won't tell where.) Although the anonymous driver didn't know it, he was starring in a 25-minute weekly radio program entitled "Could This Be You." And when he dressed down Sergeant Amans, he was bawling out the originator, director, producer and co-star of the show.

IT ALL BEGAN seven years ago when Amans became bemused by the flimsy excuses of traffic violators he stopped in his patrol car.

Why not, he asked Chief James Pryde, outfit a car with recording equipment and hidden microphone and put the whole thing on commercial radio as a new kind of safety program? Chief Pryde okayed the project.

It was an instant success. Its humor, pathos and dull thud of righteousness made its Hooper rating soar. Station KVI, which holds the copyright on title and format, sold Amans' recordings throughout Washington, Oregon, California and even in Alaska and Hawaii.

Washington's Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, an ardent fan, gave Amans free lance status to go anywhere at any time with his recorder. Thus the 39-year-old sergeant covers about 4,000 miles of Washington highways a month, usually at night, and usually on a regular traffic run with another officer.

Amans drives. The other officer gives the commentary, describing the violation on the recorder. When the quarry is stopped, Amans steps out with 25 feet of cord and the show is on.

RECORDINGS require careful editing. Names are deleted. Con-

Pretty Is as Pretty Does

Eleanor Parker, who spent two months in Egypt during the filming of "Valley of the Kings," took time out for some research on how the daughters of the pharaohs kept themselves "whistle-able" some 4,000 years before the advent of home permanents.

Egyptian belles weren't subtle about eye make-up. The entire eye was heavily lined with charcoal.

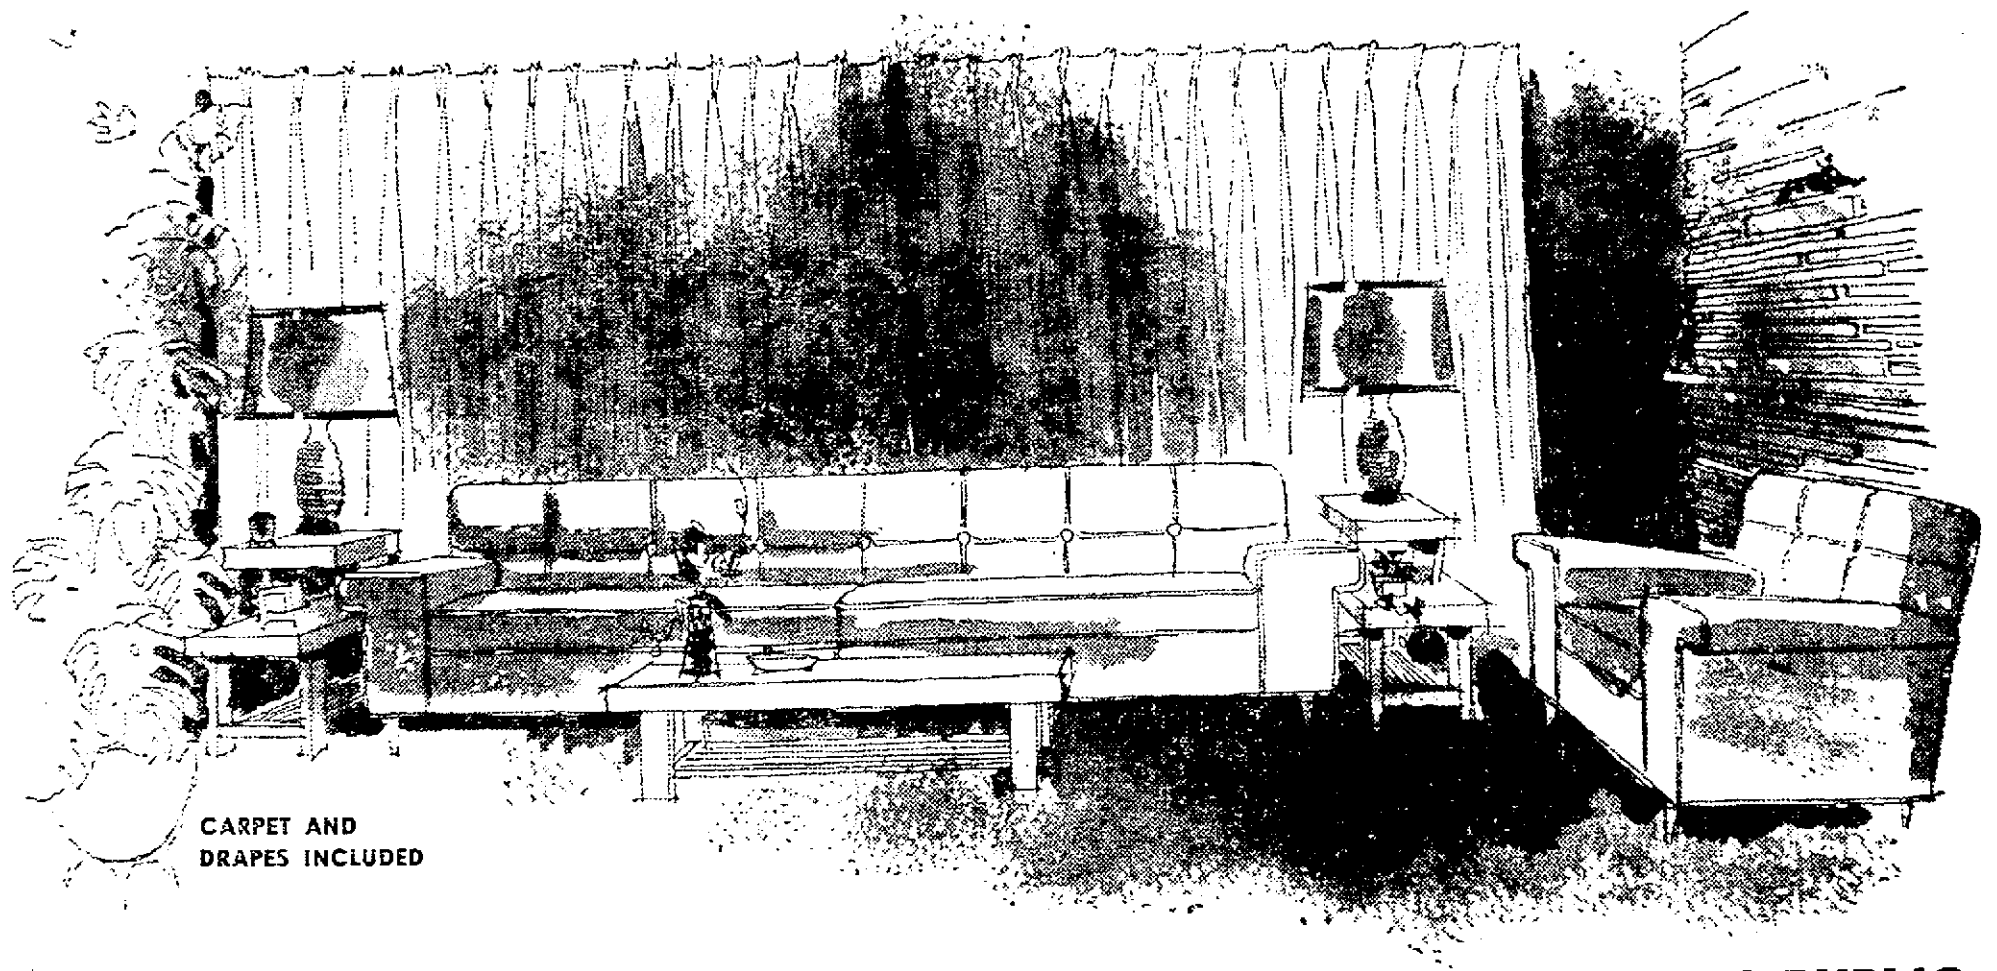

Except for electricity, the curling iron has changed little. Ancient one was heated over charcoal.

Eleanor doubts that the beauties of the Nile carried this heavy metal comb around in a handbag.

RESORTS AND TRAVEL

Youth Has a Look at Germany

Roedelseer Gate in Iphofen, one of the best preserved old town gates in Germany, presents a typical scene.

By Greg Shuker

LEMGO, GERMANY.

ALL GERMANY rides on two wheels.

At least that's the way you feel after a day or two hitchhiking through the northern Rhineland and taking your life in your hands every time you cross a street.

Several people have told me that one out of 10 motorcyclists gets killed before he pays for his machine, and when you listen to the solid symphony of coughs, sputters, and backfires everywhere, you can easily believe them.

So after half a dozen narrow escapes, John Gardner my traveling companion from Northwestern University—and I were ready for our two-day rest in Lemgo, a small town about halfway between the Ruhr and Hanover. We had come up from Spain, touring Europe on a budget of $3 per day.

Our first destination in Germany was Frankfurt, and from there we went to Cologne by Rhine River steamer. The all-day trip through lush green vineyards and under crumbling castles was worth far more than the $3 it cost.

There was a true holiday spirit on board and we sat and talked with students leaving for their vacations.

"We like the Rhine," one of them told me, "because it has always been the blood stream of Germany."

Another said that "I'm surprised so many tourists go through the castles but don't bother to see them from the river. Americans are too practical; the castles are more romantic from a boat."

And, indeed, we were the only Americans on the "Rhinegold," our white-and-gold excursion steamer.

We hitchhiked from Cologne to Lemgo after staying up all night to see the sunrise over the Cologne cathedral. It rained so hard we could hardly see the top of it, but we saved a hotel bill.

In Cologne, a school girl—her name was Frieda—told me that she wanted to go to America but was worried about the gangsters in Chicago. She laughingly asked me how many times I had been shot at there. Later,

The Pleasures of Paris

Sidewalk cafes of Paris, like these in the Latin Quarter, are the summertime delights of American tourists. Here students keep up with the gossip of the Parisian literary and art world, shoppers pause to rest, and hurried sightseers stop to sip an aperitif and watch the world walk by.

Public 'Thrift-Minded' on Travel

"The American travel public is getting more and more thrift season minded" points out Albert A. Beach of the Beach Travel Agency.

"The discriminating traveler has always shunned the hectic tourist season and traveled in the less strenuous, inexpensive off-season instead. As Americans are now traveling in Europe more than they ever did before, they are also getting smarter and go in for stretching their travel dollar to get the most out of their foreign travels.

The late summer and fall, when steamship lines feature "Thrift Season" rates has become THE time to travel. By traveling in the thrift season one also avoids tourist throngs, crowded hotels and the frustrating "waiting lists" that the traveler so often encounters during the summer season.

The Swedish American Line, operators of the famous M. S. Kungsholm, Scandinavia's largest luxury cruise liner and the sleek, yacht-like M. S. Stockholm, offers excellent accommodations on all late summer and fall sailings this year. The line, endeared to travelers who like the utmost in service, cuisine and comfort, maintains scheduled service between New York and Scandinavian ports, Beach declared.

"There is ample space available on the following sailings, M. S. Kungsholm Sept. 11, Oct. 23 and the M. S. Stockholm Aug. 28, Sept. 21 and Nov. 11. One for the Birds

Floyd Crow of Laguna Beach checks feeder food supply.

By Harry R. Peterson

THIS HOMEMADE bird feeder, in a Laguna Beach patio, attracts many birds, costs little and is easily duplicated. It was made from a wooden breakfast tray. Children like to watch the towhees, house finches and song sparrows that use it as a headquarters for food in the summer. Lively white-crowned sparrows are the principal winter visitors.

Mockingbirds, black-headed grosbeaks, even mourning doves, sample the dry bread crumbs or chopped peanuts early in the day and at sunset, when it is quiet in the yard. Convalescents, shut-ins and the elderly find the feeder especially intriguing. In fact, city birds are fun for all the family.

Brown towhees are kings of the crumbs in summer, as they are bigger than the colorful linnets or house finches. Song sparrows, with their stripes and black patches on their breasts, like to hop around and collect particles at the base of the tree. Particularly appreciated by the wild visitors are a drinking dish of cement and a bird bath of stone on a slate slab.

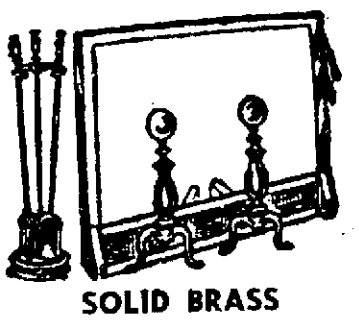

Naturally, the early bird — and the largest and strongest — gets the crumbs on this feeder. If too many fly in at once, weaker ones will carry a piece up on the fence or to the graveled path and flagstones of the patio. The driftwood twig above the board is a good perch. There's always something doing near the tray.

WHEN SHE CAME to get food for her young, the towhee got into trouble one morning. En route, she stopped on the rooftree of the garage. Somehow she dropped the crumb, and it slid down the slope to the gutter. Mrs. T. hopped down and picked it up again. Two finches at once flew near, ready to make a sneak attack at the next mistake. The towhee squawked and gulped it down without delay. "When there's a crowd you have to eat on the run!" she probably thought.

You can easily make a similar tray, and the contraption, you'll find, is efficient, if not fancy. If you have no tree, just nail a flat redwood board to the top of a wooden fence post. Or sink a redwood 4x4 in cement and use

Roundup of Summer Snapshots

By the Shutterbug

This photograph of dad and kids which mother snapped on the summer vacation trip is a "must" for the family album. It will recall the happy days spent together.

IT'S BEEN a great summer . . . much fun . . . many snapshots.

The snapshots have been very important. You've rushed the film to the photofinisher and all but paced the floor until you got the finished prints. Everyone looked at them, chuckling over remembered fun. You kept them close at hand for a few days to show to people you thought might be interested in them.

But where are they now? Let me guess. First of all, I'd say that some of them are stuffed into a desk or table drawer. Others are likely to have found their way into the wallets of various members of the family. Some may even have gone for a plane or train ride as enclosures to letters to friends and relatives in other places. A few may even have been stuck inside the cover of your album, awaiting mounting.

With all these possible answers to where are the summer's snapshots, obviously it's time to round up not only the prints but the negatives as well because you'll want to have prints made to replace those you sent away and those that are in the various wallets.

If you don't take steps to get them all together, some are bound to get lost. Others will be curled and scratched, their edges cracked from being shoved around in a drawer full of other things.

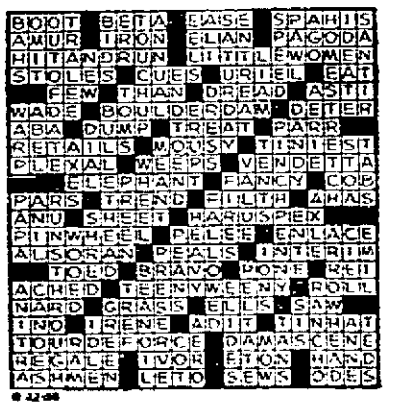

Your snapshots are so well worth preserving, no matter what system you wish to use for keeping them in good order. It doesn't matter if you paste them in a scrapbook with clippings and souvenirs, make little albums, or keep one large one, do keep them in a way that you can enjoy whenever you wish as time goes by.

Most of our snapshots are like cheese and good wine—they improve with age. If you liked them the day they came home in a photofinisher's envelope, you'll enjoy them even more as they freshen memories of good times in the past.

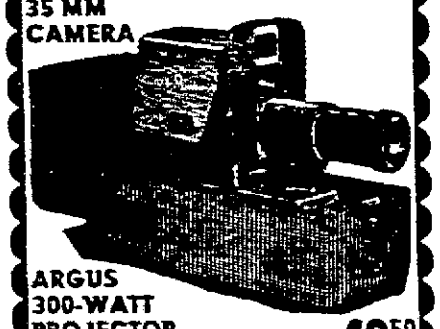

HANDY CATALOG for the user of large amounts of photographic materials is a new Ansco publication. Sturdily bound with flexible covering and in convenient loose-leaf style, the catalog is indexed. The company offers a continuing service by which the catalog may be kept up to date. Distribution is from company offices in Binghamton, N. Y., and is restricted.

INEXPENSIVE HOMEMADE FEEDER ATTRACTS MANY BIRDS

a shrub for shade. The rig is easily washed clean with the garden hose.

This one is 12 inches wide, with edge strips an inch high. Bottom board is ½ inch thick and slants a little toward the front for drainage. The 2x4 used to support the tray was a discarded porch railing. Support and edges of the feeder are painted green. The fence behind is unstained weathered redwood.

THE BREAKFAST tray model is tough; cats have knocked it down, winter storms have twisted it, and the paint has been replaced several times, but after five years it's still there, catering each year to new generations of birds. Young ones fall from nests every summer, to be fed from an eyedropper or with chopped egg-yolk until they are able to fly.

Birds will eat a variety of things: wild bird seed (available in many feed stores and pet shops), hen scratch, chick scratch, millet, sunflower seed, fresh or dried fruit, raisins, dry crumbs of whole wheat bread, crumbled crackers, cornbread, chopped egg shells for calcium content, stale cake. Suet is a delicacy and a super-delicacy is made by melting suet and adding sugar, then hardening it again and feeding it. Birds are fond of sweet foods, and especially like cornmeal mush.

"They like doughnuts," says Dr. Arnold Lane, director of the Tucker Bird Sanctuary 16 miles east of Orange in Modjeska Canyon in the Santa Ana range, where wild birds are studied under the auspices of the California Audubon Society. Twenty kinds of food are provided there on feeding trays.

COOKING

Simplest Salads Are Smartest

Mrs. Harry Christensen proves that salads are easy if you remember only a few fundamental salad rules.

More goes into the making of a proper salad than leftovers. Choice of dressing is all-important.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

AFFINITY, says Webster, is conformity, relation or kinship generally. We are quite sure that Webster's thoughts were far from salads and their dressings when he defined the word, but it applies nevertheless. Fact is, affinities are most important in salad making.

For instance, cabbage and pineapple and raw carrot have about as much in common as denim, chiffon and ticking. Why try to combine the incompatible?

Another fallacy in the thinking of many people is that a salad is a concocted accumulation of leftovers, topped with the salad dressing on hand at the moment. Few are the dressings, if any, which complement both a vegetable or fish and a fruit salad.

Our hostess today, Mrs. Harry Christensen, 1491 Edwards St., Westminster, enjoys making salads. She has a natural aptitude, too, for blending those ingredients which produce just the proper subtle flavor for the proper salad. The one thing she always remembers is—"When all is said and done, the simplest salads are the smartest."

FIRST OF ALL, she always has on hand a basic French Dressing. Then in just a matter of moments she can add the ingredients needed for the salad of the day. We're featuring her recipe for basic French Dressing today—variations follow:

Ambrosia French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon celery seed and 1 tablespoon catsup. Shake well. Wonderful on fruit salads.

Chow Chow French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add 2 tablespoons minced chow chow. Good on seafood, or vegetable salads.

Creamy French Dressing — Whip ⅓ cup heavy cream (sweet or sour). Blend with 2 tablespoons chopped pimento and ½ cup basic French dressing. For chicken, potato, or other vegetable salads.

Onion French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add 2 teaspoons chopped onion and dash of Tabasco.

Mrs. Christensen's French Dressing:

2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup vinegar
1½ cups Wesson Oil

Shake up in covered jar. Shake again before serving. This recipe makes 2 cups . . . keeps best in a covered jar on your pantry shelf.

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Christensen's Kitchen Tip: Avoid a sweet dressing on meat, fish, poultry or seafood salads.

Fishing

flipped and raced through the pool toward the falls.

I played him carefully for several minutes, then suddenly realized I was without a net. What a fine kettle of fish, I thought. I screamed for Norm, knowing well the roar of the rapids drowned out my shouts. I was standing in water halfway to my knees and the whitefish was tiring. As I steered him toward my feet, I knew I had a keeper.

Closer he came right to my feet. Then he got the first feel of rocks under his white belly, gave a big flop and tore the hook out of his soft mouth. I was expecting it. I went down with my left arm, submerging wristwatch and all and grabbed for his gills. I had him—a twisting, fighting beauty that glistened in the sunshine.

Norm was watching from above and scurried down. When we weighed him, the scales went to exactly five pounds and Norm, beaming happily, said: "You can have him for lunch and your name's going on the honor roll at Grayling Lodge. That's the largest one of the year. Now get busy and catch a few more so we eat. I'm going to build a fire."

THAT MORNING was just a beginning to my adventures in northern Saskatchewan.

It was only Tuesday and there was a week of excitement ahead. Our party had flown into Careen Lake, 250 miles from Lac La Ronge, late the previous day, in a Saskatchewan Government Airways plane. Aircraft are the only means of transportation in that northern country.

Five men can fly from Lac La Ronge, an enormous lake in the center of Saskatchewan, spend a week at Grayling, with boats, meals, beds, guide service, etc., fly back to La Ronge and pay $250 each.

THE FOLLOWING morning our genial bush pilot, Steve Peters—and we'd put him at the top of any flying list—gassed up the Mark V Norseman and we took off for Cree Lake, which covers more than 700 square miles. There we caught and released northern pike by the dozens. Most of the fish ranged from eight to 18 pounds and were the most savage fighters we encountered.

From Cree, we went to Wollaston Lake for gasoline, then to Black Lake, near the northern boundary, where Chris Thimsen, camp operator, tried to prove to us that lake trout and northern pike were more plentiful than anywhere else in the north. He finally convinced me after I had caught northern pike from 10 to 18 pounds on almost every cast, then finally broke a light casting rod on a lunker that probably weighed between 30 and 40 pounds. The record for northern pike in that country is 62 pounds.

On our return to Lac La Ronge, Steve set the plane down briefly at McTavish Lake where we caught several lake trout. One was a 30-pounder, caught by Henry Sinotte, camp operator who is building eight cabins for the tourist trade. A 40-minute flight took us to La Ronge and the end of a 1,400-mile aerial journey that had only one description—utterly fantastic!

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Twice as Big in Half the Space

White linen sofa, lavender pillows dramatize furnishings in the living room of the David Wigod home. Note how texture contrast eliminates design need.

Extra wide Pullman type kitchen experiences no traffic problems. Wigods can seat eight at dinette at far end.

By Eileen Ball

PROBLEMS of designing a functional house for a 50-foot lot were dropped in the lap of the architect firm of Poper & Lockett when Dr. and Mrs. David Wigod decided to build on such a lot at 289 Granada Ave.

The two young architects, William Lockett and Richard Poper, worked around the Wigod's desires for a house with a "living room" type of kitchen —one that had the sort of fluid circulation that (despite its relatively small footage) would enable large numbers of people to be entertained easily without having the unhappy result of cramped corners and jammed doorways.

The team of Poper and Lockett are convinced that a feeling of spaciousness is not necessarily an exclusive characteristic of large houses alone. To be sure, unlimited floor space is bound to help. But tactful planning can go a long way toward giving the small and medium-sized house illusionary growth.

Not that the Wigod's house of 2,000 square feet of floor space could be classified as small. It certainly is well over average. But when one realizes that Mrs. Wigod can comfortably entertain 150 people, one must admit that the house is outdoing many houses twice its footage.

Much of Mrs. Wigod's success at entertaining large groups is attributable to the fact that her living room, the covered terrace and the den all open onto each other. Traffic, consequently, flows easily from one room to the other with the patio-terrace gracefully accommodating the overflow. A refreshment bar located between the kitchen and the den greatly facilitates serving.

Because Poper and Lockett are proponents of open planning

Sliding doors to the terrace permit party guests to have ready access from the den to the sheltered patio of the Wigod home. Den opens off living room.

Exterior of the Wigod home puts up a friendly front on its 50-foot lot. The house is developed from roomy plan.

in such cases, they decided against carving up valuable living room areas into a decided entry hall. Rather, they have created the feeling of separateness by means of a natural mahogany divider that establishes a definite point of entry while capitalizing on the airy view of the living room beyond.

Set into the corner where the mahogany counter joins the south wall of the living room is a handsome grand piano. The area so created by the installation of the divider has transformed this portion of the L-shaped living room into an attractive music center.

THE LIVING ROOM, orientated toward the back of the lot, faces west. Consequently, measures were taken by the architects toward combatting hot afternoon sunshine. For this purpose, the terrace adjoining the living room has been deeply roofed. The color scheme, too, was considered in this context. Mrs. Wigod, who did the decorating throughout the house, chose sage green for the walls.

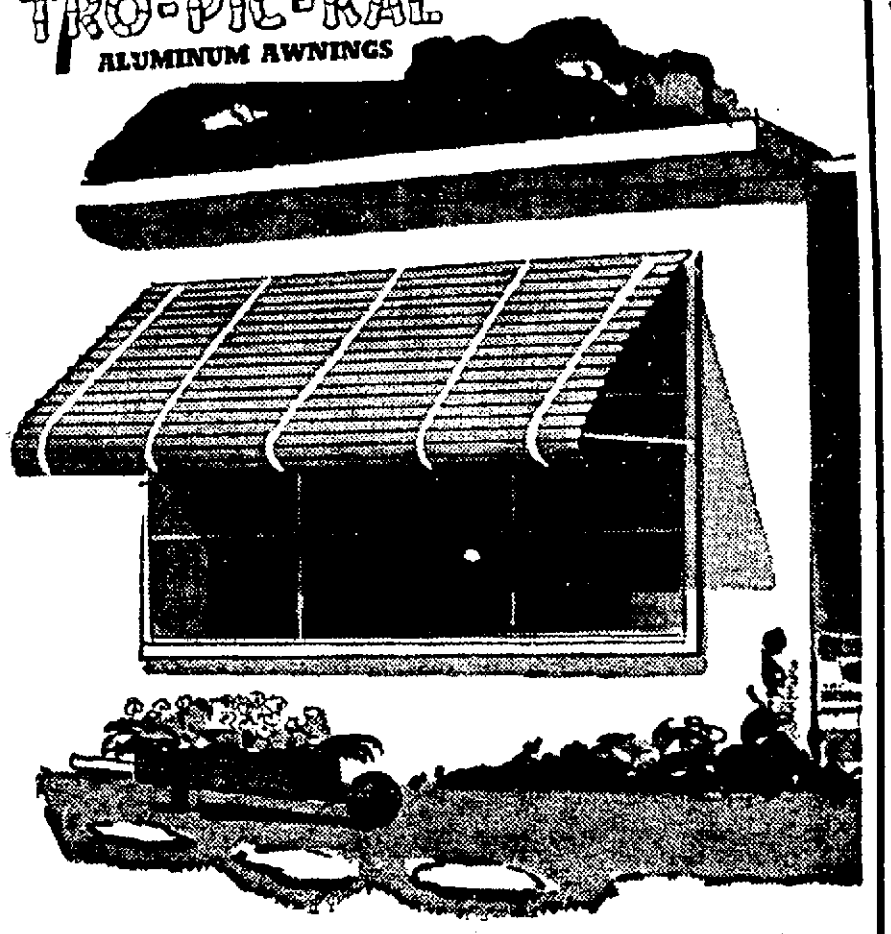

The focal point of interest in the living room is the very dramatic corner arrangement view-

F & W'S LOW EVERYDAY PRICES ON CONSISTENTLY HIGH QUALITY FOODS, PLUS THE PREMIUM BONUS MEANS REAL..... ECONOMY!

EARN THESE PREMIUMS FREE AS A BONUS!

IT'S EASY...HERE'S HOW

It's so easy! There's nothing to buy. No stamps to stick in a book. Nothing to write. No need to register. Just save your cash register receipts until they total enough points to receive the premium or premiums of your choice. Cash register receipts from all departments in the store are valid and every 10c purchase is worth one point. Every $1.00 purchase is worth 10 points. Based on surveys of grocery buying, it would take the average family only 2¼ months to earn 2200 points . . . more than enough to secure an electric coffee percolator, for instance. Consult the schedule of premiums for the number of points required for each.

This washable full-fashioned slipover sweater is knitted in super-orlon and has a tailored bow and band trim of black washable velvet down the front. It is available in 10 colors, all with black trim.

FASHION FAVORITES

Sweater Girl

Fashion designer Claire McCardell, who a few years ago came up with something called the "American Look," has turned her attention to sweaters. It was America that created the "sweater girl," she points out as proof that the sweater is a basic U. S. fashion. Big sensation of the new McCardell designs is the sweater that just keeps on going until it becomes a dress. Other creations feature sweaters trimmed with bands of velvet or taffeta. These, says the designer, are easily adaptable to day wear under suits or on their own with a wool skirt. Miss McCardell says she strives for fashion plus comfort—styles that are young, gay, different yet solidly functional. To this basic goal, she adds her own secrets of bias, loose-but-not-baggy cut and touches that dress without trimming.

This oversized turtle-neck sweater is fine for giraffes, swans and girls whose ears get cold while skiing or boating. The long tubular-knit neck can also be worn as an ordinary turtle-neck sweater.

HIS RECORDINGS TEACH TRAFFIC TRUTHS

versations are scrubbed up for the listening public. But some of the uncensored versions have become an unsuspected, valuable by-product of the idea. Service clubs, which once snubbed safety lectures, now line up to hear spicy unretouched recordings.

Once Amans chased a drunken woman driver right into her garage after she ignored three siren blasts on the highway.

"Give me your keys, please," Amans recorded. "You're under arrest."

"Aw, come on, honey, give me a break," the woman said.

"You didn't give anybody else a break out there on the highway."

The woman said she had to feed her rabbits. Amans said he'd help her before taking her to jail. The radio audience even heard the splashing of water into a pan for the rabbits. Then Amans told the woman to come along.

"Now wait a minute, honey," she said. "Don't you wanna see my apartment? My husband's left me."

"We've fooled around long enough," Amans said. "Let's go." And so they went off to jail with a recorded siren that ended the show.

MANY NOTES of domestic strife are sounded in the program. When Amans arrested a man driving 90 miles an hour, he asked him, "Don't you want to live?"

"Why should I?" growled the man. "I've got a wife who hates me and three kids. I don't care. I'm leaving!"

"Well," Amans said, "if you don't want to live, others do and we have highway deaths from driving like that."

"I can drive that fast," the man said, "my wife says I can't do anything. Maybe I can't. But I can drive a car."

Maybe he could. But not for a while. Amans jailed him.

Amans figures only 3 in 10 interviews are air material. Most are too routine.

Amans stopped one driver who had drunk too many. "How much have you had to drink, sir?"

"Oh, a few beers."

"How many?"

"Eighteen, I'd say."

After being jailed for drunken driving, the driver appealed his conviction. He claimed the state patrol heard him wrong: It was eight, not 18.

Amans' recording was brought out, proved the man wrong.

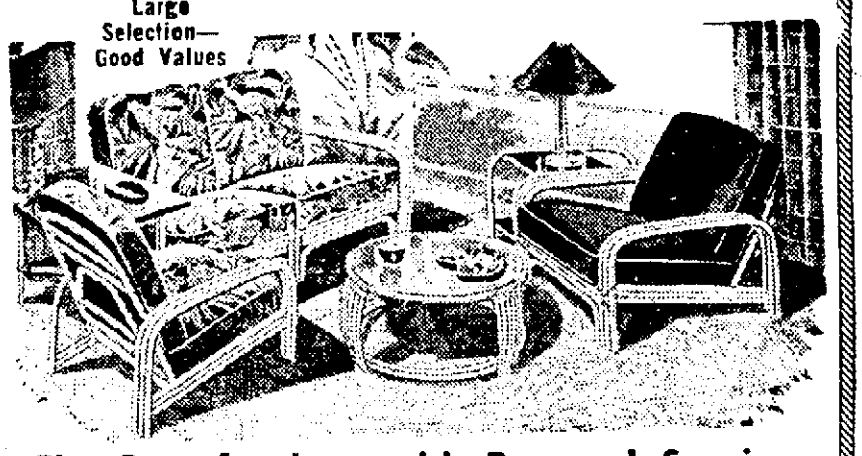

What has been the reaction on Amans personally of all this careless driving?

After hours he leaves his own car in the garage. For pleasure he rides horseback and takes to the water in his motorboat.

Guardian Fences Help Backyard Fun

When your family's all worn out by hot weather and clamors for fun, everybody welcomes a picnic.

But you needn't drive out of town. Your own back yard or patio will be cool enough when you're protected by a Genuine Guardian Steel Fence.

Fact is, your yard will be 20 degrees cooler than if you had a solid redwood fence or stone wall.

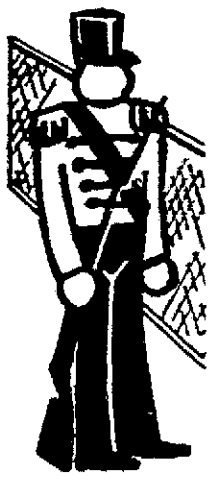

With ivy growing on it, you will have privacy—at less cost, too.

GUARDIAN FENCE

TWICE AS BIG

able from the entrance. An off-white chaise-sofa banked with lilac colored throw pillows angles into the corner, creating a unique conversational center.

The manner in which good contemporary design relies on texture for interest was never more tastefully stated. For here the linen-like texture of the chaise's upholstery is set off by the bank of glossy green philodendron leaves against which it stands. The planting, in turn, magnifies the rough, symmetrical pattern of the brick "wall" which, in reality, is the back of the fireplace opening to the den. Softer background for the corner is provided by the eggshell mesh draw draperies with their gold metallic highlights that pull across the glass wall to the terrace. Highlighting the entire composition is a hanging "pumpkin" lamp of opaque white plastic.

Because of its L-shape, part of the living room is out of view of the entry. This area offers a cozy, somewhat more "sheltered" atmosphere than prevails in the vicinity of the chaise and the piano.

Here is an oversized sectional upholstered in an interesting heather-colored fabric flecked with gold. The color has been picked up and repeated in the deeper-hued lavender throw pillows used across the room on the white chaise. Soft heather tweed was employed for the upholstery of a sleekly contoured occasional chair that stands part way between the two sofa groups.

The curved sectional is flanked by contemporary table lamps with off-white shades. The coffee table that centers — and handsomely dominates — this group is composed of a very large and low natural cherry frame inlaid with four-square blocks of white and black structural glass. Narrow liners of wood divide the glass sections into a striking checkerboard.

THE DEN is located next to the living room and carries the same sage green into its decor. The brick fireplace facade has been painted this soft green, its exposed back playing an important role in the living room makeup.

The walls of the den are natural mahogany and the floor is resilient cork. Doors open to the terrace and a second opens onto a breezeway toward the garage located at the back of the lot. This ease of accessability between house and garage was a major point for Dr. Wigod, whose hours are irregular. This way he may come and go, as necessity warrants, at a place removed from the sleeping quarters.

Mrs. Wigod's highest hopes have been realized in her strikingly sophisticated kitchen.

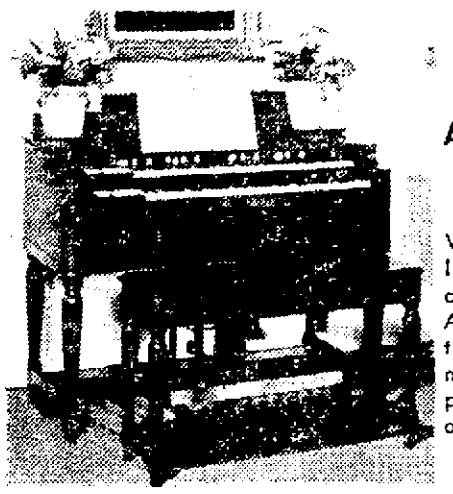

Rose formica tops the cabinets of natural birch. Her built-in oven and burners eliminated the classical, business-like white range. Next on the agenda is a new pale yellow refrigerator.

THE MASTER BEDROOM and bath are strikingly unusual in their dramatic color scheme. Shocking pink walls combine with chocolate colored woodwork to set the pace. The sill length draperies for the windows over the twin beds are sculptured cocoa cotton. The print valance matches the boxed spreads.

A French door opens to the garden and is flanked by a door-height section of louvered glass for ventilation.

The bath is decorated in the same shocking pink complimented by turquoise fixtures.

PET PARADE

Penny Is a Two-Family Horse

By Eleanor A. Price

NOT EVERY CHILD (or adult) can have a horse for a pet, but many more children could have them than do if their parents were not afraid of the cost and care.

The story of Penny is encouraging to those who believe a pet horse is beyond their means.

Penny, a young pinto mare shown here with Mrs. Harski and the German shepherd, Phantom, belongs jointly to the George Harski family, 5406 Hersholt Ave., Lakewood, and the Walter Price family, 4305 Clark Ave.

Two congenial families buying a horse together cuts the cost and upkeep in half. Penny cost the two families just $50 each, no more than the average good puppy. She was gentle, broken to the saddle, and her cost included several months' free pasturage.

Now that the free pasturage time is up, the two families have located a little field under the power lines that run through Artesia, and the rent is only $15 a year.

Water for Penny is, fortunately, near by, and all that is needed is a washtub to be kept filled with fresh water.

A bale of hay, approximately 125 pounds, costs about $2.50, and it lasts about two weeks. Oats are not necessary, but an occasion coffee canful is appreciated by the horse. This food should be limited, especially if children are to ride the horse, for the expression "to feel your oats" is quite true, and this food makes the horse frisky. Horses used in shows are seldom fed oats because they are more easily managed without it.

Of course Penny's food must be doled out to her every day, and she likes a good grooming now and then. Penny's owners plan to build her a shelter soon, but the young mare is quite accustomed to any kind of weather.

Penny can be ridden bareback, but her owners wanted riding equipment. A surplus Army saddle was found in a second-hand store and was paid for with unneeded articles stored away in the attic of the Harski garage.

Penny is being trained by Harski as a performer and has appeared at several functions. For the average family, however, this training is not necessary.

A HORSE makes a splendid pet for a child, one that causes pride of ownership, enjoyment of the outdoors, and a chance to develop good character. It should be ridden often and permitted to become accustomed to children, although children must never play around any horse's rear legs. The pet should be a mare or a gelding. A mare is perhaps the wisest choice, and she could be bred to have a colt, an addition to the family circle that would delight almost any child beyond words.

Tour of Germany

she added sadly, "we have been shot at."

LEMGO WASN'T TOUCHED by actual war. The old buildings still stand and you feel that you are in the last years of the Middle Ages. But the population before the war was 12,000; now it is 20,000. The new residents are all refugees from Ruhr cities.

So little Lemgo, in its own way, knows war.

A schoolmaster told me he thought American youth lacked a certain maturity he found in his students. "But it's a good kind of immaturity you have. You were lucky, your young years were spent without the sounds of bombs and sirens."

An old man standing with him simply added, "We lost. We started it. There is no more to say." He did not sound bitter.

The above paragraphs might seem somewhat grim, but the war is talked about by everyone here in both the past and future tenses.

The Russian zone isn't far from here and things like Dr. Otto John's flight into East Berlin don't go unnoticed.

We stayed in the Hotel Schlepper, built in 1637, for $1 a night. A $3-a-day budget is still easy to keep up.

Motorcycles are everywhere here, and German students proudly show them off. One explained: "They're cheap to run, fun to ride and get you there fast. Also, cars don't get in your way."

Pedestrians, too, I was moved to add.

RELY ON Red Star FOR THE BEST FERTILIZERS

Greenery Keeps the Garden Cool

By Bob Gilmore

Leaves of cedar deodar impart a cool, refreshing effect to your garden as the temperature rises.

IF YOU WANT a cool garden, emphasize evergreen plants and keep at a minimum those that appear bright or gay. Green tones, you will discover, produce a refreshing, quiet effect for the landscape. They are especially valuable as the temperature rises.

One of the most popular trees for Southern California is the evergreen elm, recognized botanically as ulmus parvifolia. It will fit practically every garden for it rarely grows beyond a height of 25 feet. The leaves are bright green and most attractive; except in extremely cold areas the evergreen elm will show foliage throughout the year.

Algerian ivy is one of the best subjects for hiding the glare that often results when the sun shines on stucco walls, white fences or comparable structures. This variety is faster growing than the more familiar English ivy and the leaves are larger and more attractive. The foliage has a width of about 5 inches across.

THE STAR JASMINE also deserves a spot in your garden this summer. It produces tiny white flowers that contrast elegantly with the beautiful green leaves. During spring and early summer a few plants will fill your entire garden with a rich and permeating perfume. Star jasmine enjoys shade, semi-shade and full sun.

Although holly plants attain their greatest prominence during the Christmas season they will prove valuable for foliage effects at all times. The leaves are deep green and the surface quite glossy. One of the best varieties for this district is Ilex cornuta burfordii.

Other cool-appearing ornamentals for your summer garden include: ornamental grape, English ivy, cissus hypoglauca, creeping fig, hardenbergia comptoniana, primrose jasmine, polygonum auberti and the Chinese wisteria for those who want a little purple with their green; the purple flowers of this ornamental will also help you provide a cool effect.

To make your green plants greener this summer it is advisable to feed them at regular intervals.

Sweet Peas for Christmas

By Walter Finch

IF YOU want to pick bouquets of exquisitely beautiful sweet peas for your holiday decorations and for gifts, sow the seed in August.

The sweet pea, as we know it in America, with large frilled petals, did not make its appearance until about 40 years ago.

Since then many exciting new hybrids have been developed by plant specialists. As a cut flower, the sweet pea has few equals for glorious colors and fragrance.

An avid feeder, the sweet pea thrives in a rich, well fertilized and drained soil. Use plenty of leaf mold, peat moss and cow manure in the preparation of the soil.

Dig a trench two feet deep and 18 to 20 inches wide. Remove all the soil from the trench. Then loosen the soil in the bottom of the trench down to the depth of your spade.

Refill the trench with a mixture of peat moss, leaf mold, cow manure and 2 pounds of a complete plant food. Some nurseries have a special sweet pea food. Put first a layer of this mixture then a layer of soil and so on until the trench is nearly filled.

Slowly flood the trench. In a few days add 2 inches of rich soil or peat moss on the surface.

Irrigate the trench a few days before sowing the seed. As soon as the soil is dry enough to turn easily, turn the top soil over to a depth of 3 or 4 inches. Make a shallow furrow through the center of the trench and sow the seed, allowing ¼ ounce to every 10 feet. Cover the seeds with soil, one inch in heavy soil, two inches in sandy soil. Firm the soil and spread a loose mulch of soil or peat on top.

If the trench is well irrigated there should be sufficient moisture when you sow the seed to germinate it before a second watering.

W. Atlee Burpee Co. Photo

Come Christmastime, would you like a bouquet of fragrant sweet peas? You can have them by planting now.

AFTER SOWING, cover the row with large weeds, or leafy branches to shade the soil and keep it cool and also to protect the seeds from birds.

As soon as green shoots appear, remove the covering and irrigate, preferably 4 or 5 inches from the row of plants. Cultivate gently, after each watering so as to leave a loose mulch of soil on the surface.

In fall, irrigate once or twice a week until the rains come, then less frequently. Too much water often causes the buds to drop off before opening.

Give a light feeding or a complete plant food in liquid form when the plants are about two inches high and every six weeks thereafter.

Soon after the plants shoot through the soil, provide a support to keep them upright. An easy trellis can be made by setting a post at each end of the row. Then string wire the length of the row at both bottom and top. Loop strings from top to bottom to form a trellis.

Look out for slugs, snails and cutworms and apply bait, and spray for aphids.

After flowers appear cut them often; some gardeners do it every day. Allowing plants to go to seed shortens the blooming time.

Sweet peas like an open sunny position.

Time to Start Pansies Now

Bodger Photo

Few flowers can equal pansies with their glowing color combinations, their rich velvety texture and markings.

By Murtha Hurley

IF YOUR HEART quickens to the sight of piquant pansy faces blooming in a riotous profusion of color in your garden, why not sow your own seeds? You will then have hundreds of young plants for your own garden and to give to gardening friends. It takes a bit of care but is well worth the effort.

August is the best time to sow pansy seeds for winter and spring flowering plants. Pansies started from seed, now, will start to bloom in November and continue on till June.

It pays to purchase the best seeds. Start seeds in flats, using plenty of coarse sand. A good soil mixture is one-third peat moss, one-third coarse sand and one-third light soil. Broadcast the seeds thinly and barely cover them with sand. Do not use any fertilizer in the seed flat. Press the thin covering of sand lightly over the seed with a board. The flat is now ready for watering. One practical way is to set the seed flat in a container at least 4 inches deep and large enough to hold the flat loosely. Place water in the container so that it comes up around the outside of the flat to within three-quarters of the top. Leave the flat in the water until the surface shows moist spots as the water is drawn up from the bottom. Then remove the flat and place it in some shady location.

Pansy seed usually germinates in about eight days. Watch the flat and if soil seems dry, sprinkle lightly.

As soon as the seedlings start to grow, bring the flat into the light, else they will get too spindly.

When the seedlings have developed four leaves transplant them into another flat, spacing the plants about an inch and a half apart. Do not shift the small plants during hot weather.

IN A FEW WEEKS the plants should be 4 or 5 inches high and ready for their permanent place in the garden.

Pansies dislike heat and continued drought so when you set them in the garden give them a situation on the east side of the house where they will get morning sun and miss the hot afternoon sun.

The garden bed should have a rich soil with plenty of humus. Prepare the bed at least a month before setting in the little plants. Spade in well-rotted steer manure and peat moss. A moderate amount of bone meal, ½ pound to 25 square feet well dug in the soil, will add a lasting food element that will help the plants all season.

In planting, pulverize the top few inches and level off. Set the plants 9 inches apart in groups, rather than rows, for an effective blooming effect.

As the plants develop they can be fed every week with liquid blood meal, watering only the soil surfaces between the plants. Do not put fertilizer on foliage. Two tablespoons of blood meal to a gallon of water is a safe solution. Alternate this feeding with one of super phosphate in water for larger blooms.

It is important as the plants bloom, to keep old flowers pinched off, else the plants will go to seed. Pinching back the top leaves helps to induce a bushy plant.

PANSIES LIKE plenty of moisture. Do not let the plants dry out nor the soil cake around them. Scratching the surface of the soil after watering is good. Scatter insect pellets to protect the plants.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week. Garden sprinkler system made out of flexible vinyl plastic can be purchased at a relatively nominal price. A section weighing just one pound will spray an area of 1000 square feet.

Hanging basket fuchsias are splendid subjects for patios, porches and comparable locations. These plants want a humid environment and plenty of peat or leaf mold. They are at their best in a shady spot.

A Promise at Ebbtide

By Garald Lagard

THE WORLD IN THE EVENING, by Christopher Isherwood (Random House, $3.50.)

Stephen's long illness at the home of his Quaker aunt is the setting for a remarkable and rewarding novel. His past has been one of a series of failures, and his last failure, separation from his wife in Hollywood, has led to his flight back to the scenes of his childhood. Most of the novel is told in flashbacks, and the reader will meet a most perceptive woman in Stephen's dead first wife. She was a novelist, and she was also older than Stephen. Hers was a strength that was missing in her wealthy and idle husband, and he remembers and regrets as he lies in bed. Too, he remembers and is again happy in it before the threat hanging over Elizabeth becomes real and haunting again. It is death that taught him, but it taught him late.

His second marriage was one of his great mistakes, but even when the girl whose affection he had had as Elizabeth held onto her life, fearful and troubled at the heart that weakened, disclaimed the need for marriage. Stephen's conscience drove him deeper into folly. The novel closes on a promise, a fulfillment of a philosophical ideal that is based on a Quaker spirit, the spirit of Stephen's aunt who is much as was Elizabeth.

AN INTRODUCTION TO TREES, by John Kieran (Hanover House, $2.95). Illustrations in color by Michael H. Bevans make this volume a truly delightful library item to which the owner can turn from time to time and refresh his knowledge of the lovely tall growth that is a tree. Few of us remember more than a few trees, familiar ones that grow in a lot or park. But here are 100, each one of them in vivid color and identifiable by bark, leaf and bud. Kieran and Bevans have done a magnificent job on this one.

HOME CRAFTSMEN who like to make their own furniture will find value in a new Sunset Book, "Tables You Can Build" (Lane Publishing Co., $1). The publication is another in the popular Sunset books series and contains large, clear photographs and detailed, accurate plans for an assortment of 36 well-designed tables. Included are dining tables (one with chairs), coffee, end, snack, specialty and children's tables, modern and conventional. Basic "how-to's" are covered down to the last detail with text and illustrations, with special instruction on materials.

THE MERMAID'S WISH, by Mabel Dobb Hester (Story Book Press, Dallas.)

Mabel Dobb Hester, 726 A Olive Ave., who says she has written verse all of her life, proudly presents this, her first volume, which takes its title from a fanciful poem about a mermaid and her wish to comfort the ones who bury their dead in the sea. Mrs. Hester shows emotional feeling and an appreciation for words.

THE PRIDE OF THE PEACOCK, by Ruth Chatterton (Doubleday & Co.)

Former star of stage and screen, Miss Chatterton has firmly established herself as a successful novelist. "The Pride of the Peacock" is her third novel. It is a family story and has a setting in New York City, Long Island and Connecticut. It deals with the major contemporary problem of divorce and its effect on the children of broken homes.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "The Deadly Mermaid," one man's passage into a violent and exotic world (Dell First Edition, $.25); "The Bandit Trail," a western by William MacLeod Raine (Dell, .$25); "The Viking," Viking lust and terror (Dell, $.35); "To the Last Man," flaming revolution and romance in Spanish America, by William E. Barrett (Pennant Books, $.25).

JOHANNESBURG FRIDAY, by Albert Segal (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

This novel is a rich experience to the reader. The setting is the sprawling and confusing South African city, and the time is one day in the lives of a Jewish family. It is a quiet story, but the echoes are there in spite of the lack of any explosion of temperaments or violence. Few are the people of the city who do not appear in one way or another, in relation to the Leventhals, and the four lives in the family live each to himself as well as a unit of a social group. This is a first novel and a fine one.

Famous Book

This month marks the 100th anniversary of one of the most famous books in American literature: "Walden, or Life in the Woods" by Henry David Thoreau. In the Henry E. Huntington library, San Marino, are the original manuscript, the first edition and the printer's page proof of the great classic. On the page proof of "Walden" are corrections in the handwriting of the author. A comment by the compositor in the margin of one page states "Can't read manuscript."

The World of Stamps

A NEW METHOD will be adopted in the future in the printing of high denomination bicolored stamps. It will entail the use of flat plates of 400 subjects and pregummed paper, which will result in substantial savings in the cost of production.

The $1 denomination, series of 1938, printed by this new method will be issued on Aug. 31, 1954, through the Washington, D. C., post office.

Although the stamp itself will vary but little in appearance from those currently issued, some collectors may wish to have them canceled on the first day of issue. Those desiring first-day cancellations of this variety of the $1 stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with money order remittance, to the postmaster at Washington, D C. An enclosure of medium weight should be placed in each envelope and the flap either sealed or turned in. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed First-Day Covers. Orders for first-day covers must not include requests for uncanceled stamps.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the new variety $1 ordinary stamp will be available at the Philatelic Agency, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C., on and after Aug. 31, 1954. To insure prompt shipment, mail orders to the agency should include no other stamp issues. The Philatelic Agency does not service first-day covers.

The new variety $1 ordinary stamp will be furnished on all postmasters' requisitions processed after Aug. 31, 1954.

Pacific Coast Club Galleria, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Grace Miller, Ruth Osborn, Edith Cisko Show.

Long Beach Branch, Los Angeles County Medical Association, 814 Pine Ave.: Jane Rhorer Show.

THE 1954 GREATER LONG BEACH NON-JURIED SHOW—Paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture from the entire Long Beach area—opens in Municipal Art Center, where it will remain through Sept. 12.

Celebrating the silver anniversary of the Spectrum Club, organization of men painters, art work of its members hang in a separate gallery throughout the show.

An informal reception for participating artists, for members of the University Club which is giving awards and the Palos Verdes Players who will present a short version of Rostland's "Cyrano de Bergerac" is slated for 3 to 6 today.

"Cyrano" highlights in concert form will be staged at 4 p. m., midway in the reception. The English version, chosen by the Players, is from the Brian Hooker translation used by Walter Hampden in revivals in the 1920's and by Jose Berrer in the recent motion picture. Musical score will be Raspighi's "Ancient Airs and Dances for the Lute."

Stan Johnson, director, will star as Cyrano. Other roles will be taken by Jim Bridgman, Bill James, Dick Twohy, Virginia Hunter, Nadine Nichol and Chuck Durrell.

All events in the Municipal Art Center are free and open to the public.

THE NEW MUNICIPAL ARTS COMMITTEE appointed by Mayor George Vermillion, will be sworn in at 3:30 p. m. in the mayor's office in the City Hall. The group will choose a chairman and vice chairman and will determine policies for the next three years.

Members of the committee are Mayor Vermillion, City Manager Sam Vickers, Mrs. Herman H. Ridder, who is interested in musical activities; Mrs. Howard (Athena) Hall, vice chairman of the outgoing municipal Arts committee and past president of the Art Association; Mrs. James Kreel, chairman of the Art Mart committee at the Art Center and past chairman of the Junior League community arts committee which assisted in activating a children's program at the Art Center; Mrs. Edward Killingsworth, active in musical organizations; Walter Havekorst, member of the outgoing musical arts committee and past president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Ben Parks, interested in a wide range of community cultural activities including educational television; Edward Frank, furniture designer and head of a contemporary decorating and furniture firm.

Municipal Art Director Sam Heavenrich will report on municipal art department activities.

BEN AND VELMA MESSICK are home from a week-end of sketching in the Palomar Mountains. Messick judged the Oceanside-Carlsbad Art League show.

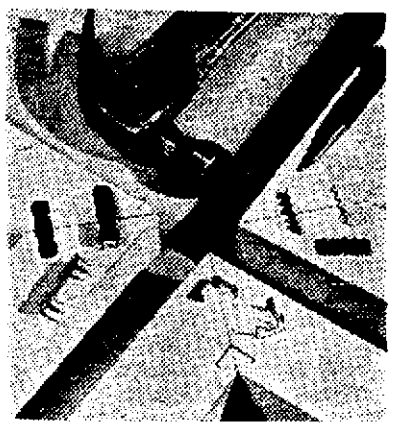

CALIFORNIA WATER COLOR SOCIETY, which includes many Long Beach members, will have its 34th national exhibition Oct. 30-Nov. 30 in the Fine Arts Gallery, Balboa Park, San Diego. The show will be at the Pasadena Art Museum, Pasadena, Jan. 14-Feb. 13.

HOW TO Fasten Up the Corners

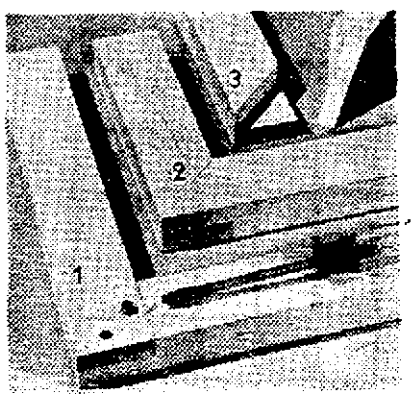

1. MITERED CORNERS, for all but the roughest work, are stronger, neater than butt joints—and not much more difficult to make if you have a simple miter box. Patented fasteners, such as those shown, simplify your construction, are stronger with glue. Some of them can be set below surface and covered with putty or wood plastic.

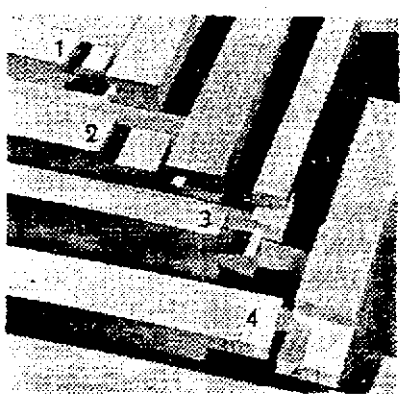

2. CLEATS STRENGTHEN butt joints for stress in all directions. Use them when you need strong joints for light members and appearance is secondary. Nail ½ inch from edges so wood won't be so likely to split. Quarter-inch plywood makes best cleats, because cross-grain lamination resists stress in all directions. The nails needn't go clear through, but if they do, clinch them for most strength with this type of joint.

3. HALF-MITERING permits surface fastening technique on back (1), with miter's neatness on front (2). Cuts you make (3) are simple, and with glue on all surfaces, a snug-fitting half-miter is among strongest of all cabinet joints.

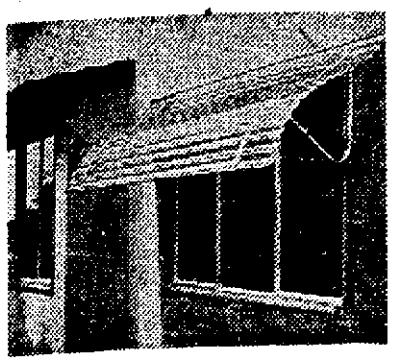

4. HAUNCH MORTISE (1) is common in screens, windows. Open mortise (2) is easier than mortise and tenon, has good strength when glued. Single dovetail (3) is self-locking, decorative. Half-lap (4) gives joint lots of gluing area.

You Make It

Trellises may be used in various ways to add charm of individuality to the home's exterior. The above sketch is an example. Across the end of a porch to give privacy or to soften the corner of a garage, a door, or a window are other uses. Pattern shows views of four styles of trellises and three designs for flower boxes. As tracing patterns are required only for the shaped parts, space has been found on the pattern for directions to make the door-side seats and an interesting garden gate that is easy to make. He's a Cadillacboy

By Dick Kleiner

EDDY ARNOLD
City Folks Like Him, Too

THE ONLY TROUBLE with country music is that a lot of us city folks like it, too. Heaps of us, as a matter of fact, by golly, yer dern right.

The word on this happy occurrence comes from the top country singer of them all, RCA-Victor's Eddy Arnold. This is the gent that goes by the name of the Tennessee Plowboy, but he looks, acts and dresses more like a New York Cadillacboy.

Anyhow, Eddy says that he gets heaps of mail from places like New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles and even Hawaii, by gum. And, sure as shooting, where there's mail there's people, so you can bet your last ten-gallon beanie that the city slickers like the way Arnold sings a song.

Like him so much, in fact, that over the nine years since he cut his first RCA record, there've been 30,000,000 Eddy Arnold records sold. And that, as the farmer said when he saw his field full of jitterbugging beagles, is a dog-gone lot.

In case you are unfamiliar with the Tennessee Plowboy's work, don't get the idea that it is strictly from the hills. His songs are often done later by pop artists — Eddie Fisher's "Anytime" was originally an Arnold record, as was Les Paul and Mary Ford's "I Really Don't Want to Know."

TEN TOP TUNES: "Sh-Boom," The Chords, climbed to the top of the Long Beach hit parade last week, pushing "Hernando's Hideaway," Archie Bleyer, to fourth place.

This is the way they stand: (1) "Sh-Boom," (2) "Little Shoemaker," Gaylords; (3) "Little Things Mean a Lot," Kitty Kallen; (4) "Hernando's Hideaway," (5) "Hey There," Rosemary Clooney; (6) "In the Chapel in the Moonlight," Kitty Kallen; (7) "I Understand," Four Tunes; (8) "Goodnight Sweetheart, Goodnight," Sunny Gale; (9) "The High and the Mighty," Victor Young; (10) "Happy Wanderer," Frank Weir.

In the rhythm and blues field, "Honey Love," The Drifters, and "Heart of Stone," The Jewels, are climbing fast.

SACRED MUSIC is not limited to a seasonal appeal, as seen in the interest over the new recording of the "Messiah" conducted by Scherchen. The Public Library offers this and other lps of great sacred music for loan. Recent additions include Bach, "Mass in B Minor" (Herbert Von Karajan conducting); Bach, "St. John Pasion" (Robert Shaw conducting); "Easter Music," (sung by the original Don Cossack Chorus); "Gregorian Chants" (sung by the Benedictine monks of St. Wandrille de Fontenelle); Handel, "St. John Passion" (Bernhard Henking conducting) and Schmitt, "Psalm 47, for soprano solo, chorus, organ and orchestra" (Tzipine conducting).

ALFRED CORNWELL

WINES—beautifully aged and delicately flavored—are the secret behind the superb continental flavor of many of the dishes served at the Victor Hugo restaurants on Long Beach's rapidly-growing restaurant row at 730 E. Broadway.

Owner Alfred Cornwell, who has made seven trips to Europe to study the newest techniques in food preparation, believes implicitly in the value of wine as one of the prime ingredients in rare cuisine. One of the outstanding dishes at the Victor Hugo, which is as French as the Montparnasse in Paris, is Braised Top Sirloin.

This top quality cut of beef is first sauteed carefully in butter. Then it is simmered gently in a burgundy sauce with fresh mushrooms and shallots (small onions). It is accompanied by choice Anna potatoes and a fresh vegetable. When served with a complete dinner (including a huge platter of chilled relishes, soup or salad, beverage and dessert), a Braised Top Sirloin still costs only $2.75.

There are numerous other excellent culinary attractions at the Victor Hugo, such as Filet of Fresh Sole, Boneless Squab Chicken, Sweetbreads and Spring Chicken in Wine Sauce. And the prices fit any budget. Complete dinners, including everything from relishes to dessert, start at $1.85.

Cornwell and his staff of experts were official caterers to the recent Miss Universe contest. They attended to the million and one details of serving 800 persons at the dinner which welcomed the lovely candidates to the city. In addition, they served 1,000 persons at the Coronation Ball.

After the contest was over, Miss France (blend Jacqueline Beer) dropped into the Victor Hugo and was the luncheon guest of Monsieur Pierre Bardet, the restaurant's chef de cuisine who was born in Bordeaux.

EUROPE ARMY PLAN COLLAPSES

I, P-T EXCLUSIVE

Pfc. Schine Breaks Silence

It's Easier Now to Tell Who's a Red, He Believes

By SAM CAMPBELL and ROBERT BLACKWELL
(Independent, Press-Telegram Staff Writers)

G. David Schine, America's most publicized Pfc., broke the silence he has maintained since the wind-up of the Army-McCarthy hearings and, in an exclusive interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram, gave his estimate on what the McCarthy committee had accomplished, along with some practical suggestions about how to root out Communists on the community level.

Squinting through the sunshine at his father's palatial Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, where he is on furlough from Camp Gordon, Pfc. Schine's opinions bubbled through a variety of comment on:

1—The Miss Universe Pageant.

2—Photographs he had taken behind the Iron Curtain.

3—His father's Ambassador Hotel, a 25-acre oasis of luxury.

4—Miss Brazil.

5—The woman in his life.

The interview with The Independent, Press-Telegram came only a few hours after an army of reporters, bolstered by news cameramen, barged into the Ambassador's luxurious grounds and caught the vacationing Schine sprawled in the sunshine beside one of several opulent pools.

They demanded an interview. They supposed they had at last brought to bay the key figure in the historic dispute which embroiled the United States Senate with the Army, and kept the nation's televiewers glued to their sets for weeks. When the report of the Army-McCarthy hearing is released, the feud may burst with renewed fury.

Schine met the affront with a simple expedient. He wouldn't talk.

He faced his "press conference" and told them:

"I will not say a word, I will let everybody else do the talking."

All the intruders got was a scant quote on current legislation and a picture or two.

They didn't find out what Pfc. Schine is like.

One of the few GIs who can spend a furlough in the best restaurants, the finest night clubs and enjoy bankers tips, movies and art gallery without stepping off his own property, G. (for Gerald) David Schine is the rich son of a rich man. His Russian-born father made and redoubled a fortune in the United States in the theater, hotel, and candy business.

When David was only 22, his father handed him the executive duties of seven of the nation's luxury hotels.

Schine has reason to be reserved toward the press since a campaign initiated by a newsman who once testified before the McCarthy committee has not dealt kindly with him.

But the Independent, Press-Telegram discovered that Schine really doesn't mind being interviewed—PROVIDED he is interviewed on matters on which he is qualified.

He does not feel, for instance, that a Pfc. should be called upon for epochal statements about the world situation.

The interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram opened with a quiet chat about the Ambassador Hotel, his plan to make it the No. 1 resort in the entire Southland.

But the conversation shifted easily to another matter — the woman in his life. Press reports have repeated the name Debbie Reynolds, but the girl Schine talked about was one he had known for only three days. In fact, she was only three days old, the daughter of his sister, Doris June Maxwell (wife of Dr. Morton Maxwell of Los Angeles).

With appropriate solemnity, Pfc. Schine cast aside the responsibilities of the world struggle and confided that he was stuck for a second name for the infant.

"I'm trying to meet this obligation in a responsible way," godfather-to-be Schine revealed.

The hotel which he now owns, as president of the family corporate setup, he has not renamed. But beyond that, he admits to a paternal attitude to its every detail.

Once, in 1946, refused a suitable suite by the Ambassador (thanks to his Merchant Marine cadet's uniform), he persuaded his father to take over the hotel.

"My interest dates back to the day I was almost refused a

Anita Caught Again While on Probation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Anita O'Day, recording artist and night club singer, and her drummer accompanist, John Thomas Poole, were arrested here Saturday by federal narcotics agents.

The agents said Poole was charged with illegal possession of heroin and Miss O'Day was held for investigation.

The singer was convicted Aug. 25, 1953, in Long Beach, Calif., on a charge of possessing heroin and was given a five-month jail term and placed on five years probation, the agent said.

The agents said she probably would be returned to Los Angeles to face revocation of her probation.

The two entertainers have been working here a week and were scheduled to open an engagement in Philadelphia next Wednesday.

The agents quoted Miss O'Day as denying that she was using narcotics and as saying that she had been taking a sedative to induce sleep.

Army vs. Joe Report Ready End of Month

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Senate subcommittee which investigated the Army-McCarthy dispute voted Saturday to issue its report a few days after another special committee begins consideration of censure charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis).

The subcommittee also voted to allow members to submit individual statements on the Army dispute until Aug. 30—the day the censure hearings will begin.

The decision ended an attempt to file a report on the Army-McCarthy row by midnight Saturday.

Chairman Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) said the group set its deadline for Aug. 30 so its report would be available to the "censure" committee before close of public hearings.

SAN QUENTIN (U.P.) — Ralph (Little Navajo) Rogers, 27, of Los Angeles, hanged himself in his San Quentin prison death cell Friday night.

Rogers entered San Quentin in March, 1951, for second degree burglary. In December, 1952, his sentence was extended to life for possession of a knife and in March this year he was sentenced to death for killing a fellow inmate in an argument over division of their breakfast jam.

Voters Will Umpire Ike's Playoff Nov. 2

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's team won 19 and lost only seven major legislative contests in the Congress which ended Friday but whether it gets the political pennant depends on the Nov. 2 playoff at the polls.

After a session that ground out nearly as many bills in August as in the previous seven months, Eisenhower's lieutenants contended they had enacted the "dynamic, progressive program" the President had advanced as the major issue in the fight for control of the new Congress.

Democrats replied that some of the Eisenhower victories were politically hollow and others were attained only with their help. They said the net result would contribute to their attempts to win a majority in both houses.

The controversial farm bill hammered through Congress with White House pressure could be crucial.

Some politicians regard it as the one issue most likely to determine which party takes over on Capitol Hill next January, or whether there is a division of control with one House Democratic and the other Republican.

This issue involves substitution of the system of flexible price supports favored by the President for rigid, high level props under basic field crops.

As a sample of how Republican and Democratic candidates will meet the issue, Sens. Ferguson (R-Mich) and Humphrey (D-Minn) gave a newsman previews of what they intend to tell the voters in their states.

Ferguson, who heads the Senate Republican policy committee, said he is going to call the attention of the farmers to the fact that rigid, high level supports were "born out of war and the necessity to produce food and supplies for our Allies."

Humphrey said he intends to tell Minnesota voters "this little story that I think illustrates this Republican administration's philosophy:

"Secretary of Labor Durkin, who asked the President to keep his campaign commitments to labor, resigned when those promises were broken. Secretary of Agriculture Benson, who counseled the President to break his commitments to the farmers, is still in the cabinet."

Teachers Adopt Spiritual Goals

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.) — A committee of the California Teachers Assn. Saturday ended a two-day meeting launching a program to give public school students moral guidance acceptable to all religious faiths.

The committee was addressed by Dr. E. C. Farnham, executive director of the Oakland Council of Churches; Dr. Elliott Grafman, rabbi of Temple Israel in Long Beach, and Delbert F. Wright, president of the Oakland Stake Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints.

Mrs. Marjorie Vaught of Pismo Beach, chairman of the association's committee on moral and spiritual values, said leaders of other faiths will give their views to the committee in future months.

L.A.C. SAYS: Iran and Our Oil

Long Beach has a big interest in the reopening of Iranian oil fields. When those fields were closed in three years ago there was a world shortage of oil. But today, before Iran produces again, there is more oil produced, than is needed. As the Iranian production goes to market it will replace oil now being used from some other area. But the world markets will absorb Iranian oil and close in some other areas. Long Beach will be affected.

Eight large oil companies have formed a consortium to produce and market Iranian oil. Iran, it is believed, will receive a 12½ per cent royalty, plus one-half of the profits from operations. During the first year only 12½ million tons (about 90 million barrels) will be produced. About double this amount will be produced the second year and an estimated 250 million barrels the third year. By comparison the LBOD and Richfield production from our tidelands totaled about 30 million barrels last year.

Divided among all other oil-prodcing areas this will not greatly affect any other area. The world production is about 4,800 million barrels annually. But the important

New Turncoat Joins Reds in East Germany

BERLIN (U.P.)—The East German Communists Saturday boasted that a second "very prominent" West German official has joined the Communist camp.

They identified him as Karl Schmidt-Wittmack, a parliamentary member of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union party. They said he had fled to Soviet-run East Germany and had asked political asylum for himself, his wife and daughter.

The Reds said he was an important West German leader—almost as important as former West German Security Chief Dr. Otto John, who changed ideological horses and went over to the Communists just a month ago.

In Bonn, the West German capital, authoritative sources said Schmidt-Wittmack was a "very low-ranking member of the Christian Democratic Union."

He has served only a short time in parliament, they said, and had distinguished himself primarily by having almost nothing to say.

West German sources said he almost certainly knew no western secrets of importance and insisted his defection would have little or no repercussions on the Brussels European Army talks.

West German authorities ordered an immediate investigation of the case and speculated that Schmidt-Wittmack had some connection with the turncoat John.

I, P-T Branch Facilities Open in Lakewood Center

To provide quick and complete service to the thousands of readers and business firms in the Lakewood area, the Independent, Press-Telegram Monday will open a branch office in Lakewood Center. It will be the first metropolitan daily newspaper to recognize the importance and growth of Lakewood by establishment of a full-time office there.

Situated at 5054 Faculty Ave., in the Faculty Shops section of the center, the new office will have representatives of the editorial, circulation, display and classified advertising departments on duty.

The office is adjacent to Lakewood City Hall and Lakewood Chamber of Commerce, assuring complete coverage of all civic news from those places.

Two telephone numbers will serve the new office, MEtcalf 0-3189 and MEtcalf 0-3180. After 6 p. m. patrons are advised to call the main office in Long Beach, 70-5951.

Announcement of the opening of the office brought strong congratulations from Lakewood Center businessmen and city officials who said the action showed the recognition given by this newspaper to the growing community.

France Kills Defense Idea It Originated

BRUSSELS, Belgium (Sunday) (AP)—France and her five partners in the stalled European Defense Community failed early today to agree on a plan to revise their army pact.

Delegates of the two key countries, France and West Germany, told reporters after a seven-hour session that the talks "have failed."

The six foreign ministers announced they would meet again at 11 a. m. today, but presumably that meeting will be only to approve the text of a final communique.

The long session broke up long after midnight after a U. S. special envoy had spent three hours with them in an apparent effort to save the European Army.

David K. Bruce, a specialist on the European Defense Community drove to the Belgian Foreign Ministry where the deadlocked ministers had been meeting since Thursday in an effort to reach a compromise on French demands for drastic revision.

French Premier Pierre Mendes-France declared that EDC, the originally French-sponsored dream that was to rearm Germans for defense of the West but hold a check rein over any German aggressive tendencies, was dead in France so far as its chances of ratification, without the suggested changes, was concerned.

The other five prospective allies in EDC rejected Mendes-France's proposed changes on the grounds that he would leave only a hollow shell.

Bruce, who arrived in Brussels from Paris late Friday, joined the six ministers just as they broke a three-hour session for a recess.

Presumably the ministers wished to consult him on American angles relating to EDC.

Bruce was accompanied by his top aide, William Tomlinson.

While they were talking with some of the ministers, the two key figures of the conference, Mendes-France and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, were observed gesticulating and talking earnestly over the conference table. The only person with the two statesmen was Prof. Walter Hallstein, chief of the West German Foreign Office.

Luxembourg Prime Minister Joseph Bech said, "We have not been able to reach any result. It is sad. Indeed, I doubt whether I shall be able to sleep tonight."

100 Million of Voting Age

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Census Bureau reported Saturday there will be more than 100 million American civilians old enough to vote on election day Nov. 2.

That's as far as the prophecy went. The bureau did not guess how many will vote.

The exact estimate of civilians who will be old enough to exercise the franchise is 100,223,000. This does not include the 2,500,000 members of the armed forces who also are of voting age, nor the 2,500,000 non-citizens living in this country.

The bureau pointed out that its eligible civilian total covers "a great many persons" who cannot vote because they have not satisfied state citizenship, residence, registration or poll tax requirements, or because they are in jail or mental institutions.

'THE LORD KNOWS ME'

She Asks Your Prayer

Somewhere in Long Beach is a young woman fighting desperately for life. She needs help.

No financial aid is sought. Instead this woman appeals for prayers for her recovery by "every person who believes in the Lord." The following letter which came to the editor's desk Saturday tells the story:

"Dear Editor:

Will you please print my letter? I need help very badly. I am a young woman and have been ill for more than two years. I haven't had the money to go to a specialist but I have gone to some general practitioners and have been treated to no avail.

"I have grown steadily weaker and now am almost unable to do my housework.

"I would like to ask every person who believes in our Lord to pray for me. I know that He is the only one who can help me. I pray that His richest blessings may come to each and every one according to His will. I shall not sign my name. The Lord knows me and that's all that's important."

The letter enclosed fifty cents for "printing." If the writer will contact Editor H. F. Burmester of the Press-Telegram some material assistance will be provided and her money will be refunded.

Ike's Side of TVA Power Deal Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration Saturday night released a blow-by-blow account of high level negotiations for a 107 million dollar private power plant in TVA territory—and disclosed it is pressing for an early start on the controversial project.

At the same time, it struck at intimations by Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell that President Eisenhower's friendship for golfer Bobby Jones played a part in the plan.

The Budget Bureau declared Eisenhower didn't even know, until negotiations were well along, the names of the private utility men proposing the contract to supply power to the Memphis, Tenn., area over TVA lines. Jones is a director of one of the firms involved.

Defending the contract from hot criticism in Congress and elsewhere, the bureau said the President "is convinced it is a reasonable and practical solution to the problem" of providing more power for defense and civilian needs.

A mass of documents released by order of Eisenhower showed he got the unanimous backing of Republican congressional leaders for the project. It was hotly opposed by the Tennessee Valley Authority and some members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The documents showed the President was warned beforehand that he would have a political fight on his hands. Budget Director Rowland Hughes, in first informing the President of details, said in an April 24 memo that "it is, of course, clear that this proposal will be subject to strong political attacks by the proponents of continued use of federal funds to build up TVA power plants and to maintain lower power rates through the special interest and tax advantages enjoyed by TVA."

The documents also showed the Budget Bureau has asked the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee to waive a requirement that the proposed final contract be reviewed by the committee for 30 legislative days.

Pointing to power needs in the area, the Budget Bureau expressed hope the contract "will not be delayed until Congress returns next January."

Sen. Anderson (D-NM), who has criticized the proposed final draft, has said the committee will consider it Sept. 2.

The Budget Bureau declared Eisenhower didn't know any details of the negotiations until April 24, long after the discussions started.

This was by way of reply to a charge by Democratic National Chairman Stephen Mitchell that Eisenhower pressed for a contract in which a close personal friend—grandslam golfer Bobby Jones, had an interest.

Jones, now an Atlanta lawyer and businessman, is a director of the Southern Co., one of two private utilities which would contract with the government to supply power.

The Southern Co. is headed by E. A. Yates as chairman of the

USAF Sets New Height, Speed Marks

OMAHA, Neb. (U.P.)—Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott said Saturday night an Air Force test plane "has just broken the world's altitude record," and that another broke the world's speed record at 1,650 miles per hour.

Talbott also said that refueled B-47 jet bombers spent 35 hours in the air on a 17,000-mile nonstop flight.

The Air Force Secretary cited these accomplishments in a speech prepared for delivery before the Air Force Association's convention.

The World Almanac lists the old speed record for jet planes at 1,327 miles per hour, set Nov. 20, 1953, by Scott Crossfield over Edwards Air Force Base in a Douglas Skyrocket dropped from a B-29 at 32,000 feet.

In his speech, however, Talbott stressed the altitude record, which broke the old mark of 83,325 feet. But he did not say what the new record was.

At a news conference, Talbott refused to answer any questions about the new altitude and speed records.

"I had a full statment prepared, but I was told the information cannot be given out now," he said.

Nor did he give any more details in his address.

But in Washington, informed sources said 90,000 feet or 17 miles would be a good guess for the altitude record.

These sources said the record was made in a Bell Aircraft X-1A, an experimental rocket plane, two months ago at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

The X-1A usually is carried in the belly of a B-29 and released at 25,000 to 30,000 feet.

Talbott's reticence to discuss the records apparently stemmed from a recent order by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, who banned further publicizing of such records.

Strategic Air Command headquarters here said the 17,000-mile B-47 flight was made by Stratojet bombers of the SAC from the 306th Bombardment Wing, based at MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla.

Lt. Col. Glenn McConnell, Hollywood, Calif., was commander and Col. Richard E. Evans, Knoxville, Tenn., director of operations.

Several air refuelings from Boeing KC-97 tankers made the long flight possible.

SAC said the planes took off from MacDill and proceeded to Bermuda and then to Nova Scotia, in Canada. Going south, the Stratojets flew over the coasts of Martinique Island in the Lesser Antilles, the vicinity of Trinidad, Panama, the northern coast of South America, and then north again past Veracruz and Tampico, Mexico.

"I am able to announce to you tonight that an Air Force test plane has just broken the world's altitude record," Talbott said. "It will go higher."

Final Score on Ike Team Due Nov. 2

revision of the Taft-Hartley Act actually was dictated by Senate Democrats, who sent the bill back to committee because they did not like the amendments the Republicans proposed.

Eisenhower's failure to win a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, with power to lower some tariffs, apparently also will be heard from in the campaign. Congress extended the trade agreements act for only one year without changes in the tariff authority.

Other major presidential proposals which went down the drain when Congress quit included statehood for Hawaii, a government health reinsurance plan, the vote for 18-year-olds, a wiretapping bill and postal-rate increases.

The latest proposal was defeated when Congress passed a bill to increase the pay of 1½ million federal employes 5 per cent.

A box score put out by the White House said that of 65 separate Eisenhower proposals, only 11 had been defeated. However, the White House "won" and "lost" columns included many minor measures and the rivers and harbors authorization measure which Congress usually passes a sa routine matter.

The White House compilation, made by Wilton B. Persons and Gerald Morgan of the President's staff, listed as defeated some measures not considered of major national importance on Capitol Hill.

They included customs valuation, defense facilities security protection, medical care for military dependents, the upper Colorado project and public health grant-in-aid formulas.

On the Eisenhower team's major victory list there were some disputed items, such as a housing program trimmed far below the President's request and an atomic energy measure the Democrats dramatically amended to retain government control over patents for another five years.

Democrats could claim credit, also, for supplying some of the votes needed for passage of a tax revision measure, excise tax revisions, a foreign aid program cut 500 million dollars under Presidential requests and the St. Lawrence Seaway authorization.

The Democrat also gave Eisenhower a victory in helping kill off in the Senate a proposal by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) to limit treaty-making powers.

PARTIES IN ACCORD

Majorities in both parties were behind such measures as social security expansion, unemployment compensation increase, a compromise increase in the national debt limit, emergency drought loans, cotton acreage adjustment, expansion of commodity credit borrowing power, and a hospital construction program.

Democrats forced through a bill to strip the Communist Party of legal rights, but Eisenhower's lieutenants prevented action to ban the party outright on the ground that this would interfere with pending prosecutions under the Internal Security Act.

Both parties joined in support of bills to provide peacetime death sentences for espionage, to take away citizenship rights of persons who join in espionage conspiracies and a measure to give immunity to certain witnesses before congressional investigations.

In addition to these major actions, the White House listed bill covering advisory council on education, agricultural surplus disposal, Air Force academy, federal employes' group life insurance, international sugar agreement, Korean security treaty, re-enlistment bonus, state unemployment funds, tanker construction, upstream flood prevention, vocational rehabilitation, emergency farm loans, military family housing, ship repair, veterans' compensation, veterans home loans and others.

DEGREE 'IMPRESSIVE'

Chairman Wiley (R-Wis) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said in a statement that the degree of political unanimity on foreign policy issues "is impressive."

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said in a statement inserted in the Congressional Record that "President Eisenhower and the Republican Congress have given the nation its greatest period of prosperity in history"—a theme likely to be repeated by Republican candidates this fall.

LET'S LOOK AT RECORD

When you ask for files in Washington, you get files. board. The other company which would take part in the power contract is Middle South Utilities, Inc., of which Edward H. Dixon is president.

The combine, known as the Dixon-Yates group, would build a new power plant in the Memphis, Tenn., area. The AEC would buy the power and turn it over to the Tennessee Valley Authority in exchange for power the TVA delivers to the AEC installation at Paducah, Ky.

The proposal was made in view of statements by the TVA that it needs more power to meet the needs of consumers of various kinds.

TVA, vast government agency which among other things is in the public power field on a big scale, wanted to meet the greater power needs by building government-owned steam power generating capacity but the administration contends that in this instance a private contract is more in line with the free enterprise system.

The contract proposal came under hot fire recently in Congress, where backers of TVA accused the administration of seeking to hem in and nibble away that government project. This the administration denied.

In the recently passed atomic energy legislation, the private power contract was authorized, though with certain limitations.

One of the documents made public Saturday night was a letter dated April 16 this year, in which AEC Commissioners Eugene M. Zukert and Henry D. Smyth protested to the budget bureau that the Yates-Dixon contract "would involve the AEC in a matter remote from its responsibilities."

"In an awkward and unbusinesslike way, an additional federal agency would be concerned in the power business," they said.

"The present proposal," they wrote, "would create a situation whereby the AEC would be contracting for power, not one kilowatt of which would be used in connection with the commission's production activities. The creation of such a contractural relationship would place upon the commission a continuing responsibilty during the 25-year life of the contract for stewardship in respect to matters irrelevant to the mission of the commission."

The two commissioners added, however, that if the President or Congress decided the AEC should accept "such a responsibility" they would attempt to carry out the directive.

Later, testimony before the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee disclosed that AEC Commissioner Thomas E. Murray also opposed the proposed contract for similar reasons.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss and Commissioner Joseph Campbell, Eisenhower appointees, said they favored the contract.

AEC Manager K. D. Nichols testified that, in view of this 3-2 stand against the proposal, the commission was proceeding to carry out negotiations only because of President Eisenhower's directive.

Briton Who Passed Up Heritage Dies

LONDON (AP)—Lord Tredegar, who passed up a multi-million-dollar heritage to save his family estate from two big inheritance tax bites in quick succession, died Saturday. He was 80.

Lord Tredegar succeeded to a barony in 1949 on the death of a nephew, but let the estate pass on to his son, John Morgan.

When Lord Tredegar renounced his inheritance he explained that his object was to avoid the payment of inheritance taxes on the family estate twice in a short time. He was an arthritic cripple and did not expect to live long. Payment of the tax if he had inherited the fortune and again when he died would have "wiped out the whole family estate," he said.

By passing up his inheritance, he saved the estate 920,000 pounds ($2,576,000) in inheritance taxes. Estates in excess of one million pounds are taxed at the rate of 80 per cent.

U.S. Medicos Battle Peril in Pakistan

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—Forty combined U. S.-Pakistani medical teams began a mass inoculation campaign in Dacca, Narayanganj and surrounding areas Saturday to meet the threat of epidemics in the wake of the East Pakistan floods.

Two more U. S. Globemaster planes have arrived with additional relief supplies.

Meanwhile, the Brahmaputra river was again reported rising in the Mymensingh district. A higher flood level also is reported from Rangpur, in northeast Bengal.

The U. S. 37th Medical Company preventive medicine which flew here from Korea on a sanitation mission on barely 24 hours' notice, celebrated in Dacca the fourth anniversary of its activation at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Gang Guns Rub Out Al Capone Relative

CHICAGO (AP)—Frank Maritote, Al Capone's brother-in-law and onetime acc muscle-man for the Capone organization, Saturday night was shot to death in the second Chicago gangland-style slaying in four days.

Maritote, 59, alias Frank Diamond, was hit by bullets from a .38-caliber pistol and a shotgun.

He was slain as he parked his car in a west side garage.

Charles (Cherry Nose) Gioe, a friend of Maritoe and also a onetime Capone hoodlum, as slain Wednesday night.

Maritote only two days ago was qestioned in connection with the Gioe killing.

Maritote and Gioe were among seven men convicted in a million-dollar movie extortion case in 1944.

Police said Maritote, using the name Frank Diamond, recently had been engaged in the contracting business.

Maritote was held by police briefly for questioning about the Gioe slaying Thursday night. He had a fight with newspaper photographers who tried to take his picture, and was floored by Chicago Tribune Photographer Bill Yates.

At the questioning, police said Maritote told them:

"I figured I'd be questioned about this (the Gioe murder). I don't know anything about this business. It's been six months, at least, since I last saw Gioe. I suppose if anyone else gets bumped off, I'll be questioned about that, too."

Police said one shotgun blast caught Maritote in the back of the head and another ripped into his stomach. Two .38-caliber bullets tore into the left side of his head.

In the crime-rampant Capone heyday, in the 1920s and 30s, Maritote was known as Scarface Al's bodyguard. He also was the "chain brothel" manager for the gang and was believed to have profited handsomely from vice, gambling and alcohol-racket connections.

Navy May Court-Martial Sailor in Fortune Hoax

QUONSET POINT, R. I. (UP)—The Navy threatened Saturday to court-martial a sailor who announced Friday he had received a telegram saying he had inherited $18,000,000.

The sailor, Gary L. Stone III, said the telegram was just a publicity stunt worked out, without his knowledge, by a press agent.

In a statement to his superiors, Stone said the press agent was trying to get publicity for him to further his career as an actor.

Stone identified the press agent as a "personal friend"—John Porter, New York City, in the statement. Stone said the sending of a telegram informing him he had inherited the money from a "great aunt Ann Healing" was "without my knowledge or consent."

Stone, an aviation ordnanceman aboard the carrier Antietam, received the wire Friday telling him he was "sole heir" to a fortune left by an aunt killed two weeks ago in an auto accident at Hollywood, Calif.

"Until early this morning I had no doubt that this was anything but truth," Stone said. "Even though I was overwhelmed by the size of the bequest, I had absolutely no knowledge that this incident was going to be foisted on the American public. I deeply regret all the trouble and inconvenience to everyone and I especially regret any embarrassment to the U. S. Navy."

TREATED 'FAIR'!

Showed 9 Cows, Stork Adds Two

Pete Vanderham, 10637 Rosecrans Blvd., Norwalk, entered nine cows in the Norwalk Community Fair, but as of Saturday noon he'll be taking home 11.

His three-year-old Blue Ribbon winner for championship grade presented him with twin calves during the noon hour. The third annual fair, designed to provide a youth center for Norwalk, ends its five-day run today.

POW Pay Extended

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Saturday signed legislation extending to American prisoners of war and civilian internees in Korea the benefits paid under similar circumstances in World War II.

Fast Life by PETRONIUS JR.

THE LAKEWOOD CITY tax rate of 29 cents was given big headlines.

Actually property owners in Lakewood City pay as high a combined tax rate as do those in Long Beach or other incorporated cities.

THE DIFFERENCE is that Lakewood pays many special assessment taxes for services which are included in city taxes in most cities.

Contracting for services with the county is an interesting experiment—but it is not allowing Lakewood to operate on lower total taxes.

THE NEW LAKEWOOD city council is using good judgement in working out its various problems.

It deserves support of all Lakewood people—as well as neighboring cities.

BUT IT WOULD BE unrealistic to say its overall taxes are lower than the average for other cities.

OPEN MONDAY AND FRIDAY EVENINGS

THE SHAPE IS FAMILIAR

Her blond hair hidden under a black cowl, this blue-eyed Nordic is well disguised. But fans will recognize the hour-glass figure of the little ghoul who made good in the city—TV's black-wigged Vampira.

Vampira Slinks as Glamour Ghoul of TV

By BERT RESNIK

Vampira, television's glamour ghoul, was waiting for the reporter in a rehearsal room. She was doing the mambo.

The pianist stopped playing and she swayed over.

She didn't say:

"I've just been dying to meet you."

She did say:

"Hello."

The ghostest with the mostest—a description applied after repeated televiews of Vampira in her low-sliced, slinky gown—was without her mortuary makeup for the occasion.

She's a good-looking doll, the kind you'd look thrice at in a show-girl chorus line—though a bit hippy.

But she's heads and hips above the chorus line now.

For Vampira, her fan mail attests, is the greatest thing to hit television since Sheriff John.

Her commercial introductions are undoubtedly the main reason people tune in her KABC-TV Saturday night horror movie shows and sit through them.

That, in TV-land, is the apex. For when a gal can get you to dial in on a commercial, instead of out, she's got moxie to mortgage.

And this female Frankenstein's mollster makes Boris Karloff look as mild as Mickey Mouse.

Chatter sample:

"We may be starting a new style in interior desecration. It will be called Early Mausoleum. Charming, but functional. Of course, there'll be no living-room."

Her publicity corps likes to surround her with an air of mystery, sort of a TV Greta Garbo. They object to use of her real name.

Her real name is Maila Nurmi, 31, cousin of Paavo Nurmi, Finland runner who formerly held the record for the mile, and she's the wife of Dean Reisner, television writer. Objection overruled.

On television she has a 17-inch waistline, 38-inch bustline and 36-inch hips. She frankly admits that the narrow waistline is built into the costume.

She just as honestly rejected a photographer's request to turn more of her bustline to the camera as she posed for a rear-view picture.

"I don't have my bust pads on," she said.

The rear-view picture was an exclusive concession in itself for Vampira. Since acquiring that title, she has never before posed in anything but the black gown and rigor mortis makeup.

VAMPIRA . . . Loading Rail Cars She Ate Like a Hearse

For this shot she wore a one-piece play suit.

And she's definitely not the silent Garbo type.

She was urged to talk about anything she wanted, preferably something she hadn't discussed in previous interviews.

Vampira looked at her publicity agent.

"The one thing I want to talk about I'm forbidden to," she said. "They say performers shouldn't have private opinions."

But she readily discussed her job during the war as a longshoreman.

"I love physical labor," she said, "and I ate like a hearse—I mean, horse—when I was unloading fishing boats and loading rail cars as a union member of the Columbia River Fisherman's Protective Assn."

But it was just seasonal. She got a job next as a librarian with a bookmobile.

"I love contact with children." (She has none of her own.)

She was a bellhop for the New Weston Hotel in New York.

"I carried Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.'s bag once and he gave me a dollar.

"What I mean is I tried to carry his bag. He really carried it himself because he said it was too heavy. His wife got awful mad. She said she'd carried it herself and it wasn't heavy at all.

"I was the first female bellhop in New York, but none of the men ever propositioned me. I was very introverted and strange. I had an odd look."

She also was a ballet dancer.

Boeing Aircraft gave her a test in Seattle about 1942 and discovered she had the highest mechanical aptitude of anyone they ever gave the examination, she said.

She sold magazines.

She did some freelance art work and specialized in trimming Christmas trees.

"I'm really a decorator," she said. "I like to alter rather than start from scratch. I like to ridiculfy.'"

(Her press agent jumped to his feet. "Ridiculfy," he shouted. "Wonderful! Winchell will use that. I'll get it to him right away.")

Vampira's never been to Long Beach, but one of her best friends has a fish cannery in San Pedro and she's visited there frequently.

Since her fame rise, she has realized at least one ambition. People who would never invite her to their parties before now call and say they want her to be guest of honor.

She always says yes. Then she doesn't show up.

The fame is not yet fleeting. Record companies have contacted her to make fright records. There's a network television deal in the cooking. "Vampira" fingernails, long and gorifying, are sell like mad.

And, as her writer, Peter Robinson, says for her:

"The morgue the merrier."

Money, that is.

For Vampira wants to make several million dollars so she can spend the money on her favorite animal charities.

She is not planning to indefinitely play the role of Vampira. The blond Finland import (she came to the United States when she was 10) wants to be an evangelist.

"I have a mission," she says. "The world needs an attractive woman evangelist.

"I have a hypnotic power, a tremendous personal magnetism. The larger the crowd, the stronger I carry.

"It takes fantasy, imagination, drive, nerve.

"I have a sense of the theater, showmanship."

She has that.

1000-Voice Concert in Bowl Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — More than 1,000 members of the internationally famed Indiana Women's Chorus were greeted by civic leaders on their arrival here Saturday for their Hollywood Bowl concert, Sunday night.

The chorus, accompanied by the 60-man Purdue Varsity Glee Club, arrived aboard three special trains and crowded into the south patio of Union Station for official welcoming ceremonies. Mayor Norris Poulson, who was out of town but will attend the performance tonight, was represented by Walter King. The singers also were greeted by the president of the Purdue Alumni of Southern California, R. M. Hatfield.

Today has been designated "Indiana Day" in the city and county. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight has urged as many Californians as possible to attend the Hollywood Bowl performance.

All proceeds from the concert will go to the Children's Hospital of Los Angeles to help build a new surgical ward.

Marshal Puts Ship Under 'Arrest' Here

A lone deputy from the U. S. Marshal's office Saturday "arrested" the freighter Audrey II as she wallowed at anchor in Long Beach Harbor.

The deputy marshal was sent aboard the ship as a result of court action brought by Atty. Erwin Morse on behalf of 36 crew members. They claim the ship's owners owe them $30,000 in wages.

The Coast Guard has a 60-foot patrol boat alongside the ship, which is out of fuel and food.

The patrol boat is there to watch for fire, since the ship's $150,000 cargo consists of coal.

The ship, valued at approximately $300,000, is owned by Universal Oil Carriers, Inc., of New York City, and the cargo by Sal Jones Coal and Coke Co.

Atty. Morse said he was informed by the attorney representing the shipping company that it is trying to raise money to pay the men, provision and run the ship to its destination in Japan.

Morse said the men had cooperated with the ship's owners since July 28 when it put into port, but are now destitute and stranded.

Morse estimated it would be approximately three weeks before the action to obtain the crew's back wages would be heard in court. He said it was hoped the company would be able to straighten out its tangled affairs before then.

The deputy marshal will stay aboard until the court action is concluded.

Morse said he was informed the company's straits resulted from the former president's actions in paying all bills owed by the company with all the company's resources, shortly before he resigned.

Thus the company was left with the Audrey II at sea but no money to pay for fuel and provisions to complete the voyage.

Woman Faces Armed Youth in Home, Sends Him Running

Miss Vivianne M. Jenne, 4166 Linden Ave., just had gone to bed Saturday night when she heard a noise in her darkened home.

Donning slippers and robe, she investigated, flipped a switch in the hall and found herself standing face to face with an armed intruder.

"I told him that he'd better get right out of here," she recounted to officers Eugene Tadlock and Jack Greenleaf.

Miss Jenne said the youth kept the revolver pointed at her as he unlatched the front door, then sped away on foot.

Investigation revealed that entrance had been gained by breaking the window of a rear door. No loss was discovered.

Valencia Sales Hold Steadily

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Sales of Southern California valencia oranges held steady at about 625 cars last week while prices declined 50 cents to $5.45 a box F. O. B., Sunkist Growers reported Saturday.

Unfavorable weather continued to plague the California lemon market, and sales dropped 50 cars to 350 last week while prices declined.

The orange prorate for this week was set at 825 cars, and the lemon at 250 cars.

Kennedy Appointed Point 4 Investigator

WASHINGTON (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon has appointed Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) to a special Senate subcommittee investigating the Point Four technical assistance program.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, who recommended Kennedy, said he has "an excellent background for this task."

AFL Board Opposes U.N. Entry by China

SANTA BARBARA (AP)—California Federation of Labor's executive board opposes admission of Red China into the United Nations and also opposes withdrawal of the United States from the U. N. in the event Red China is admitted.

The AFL group is preparing for the federation's annual convention opening Monday. The policy statement included a declaration that "Soviet imperialism is still the No. 1 menace to world peace."

SOVIET CUFFS CLIPPED

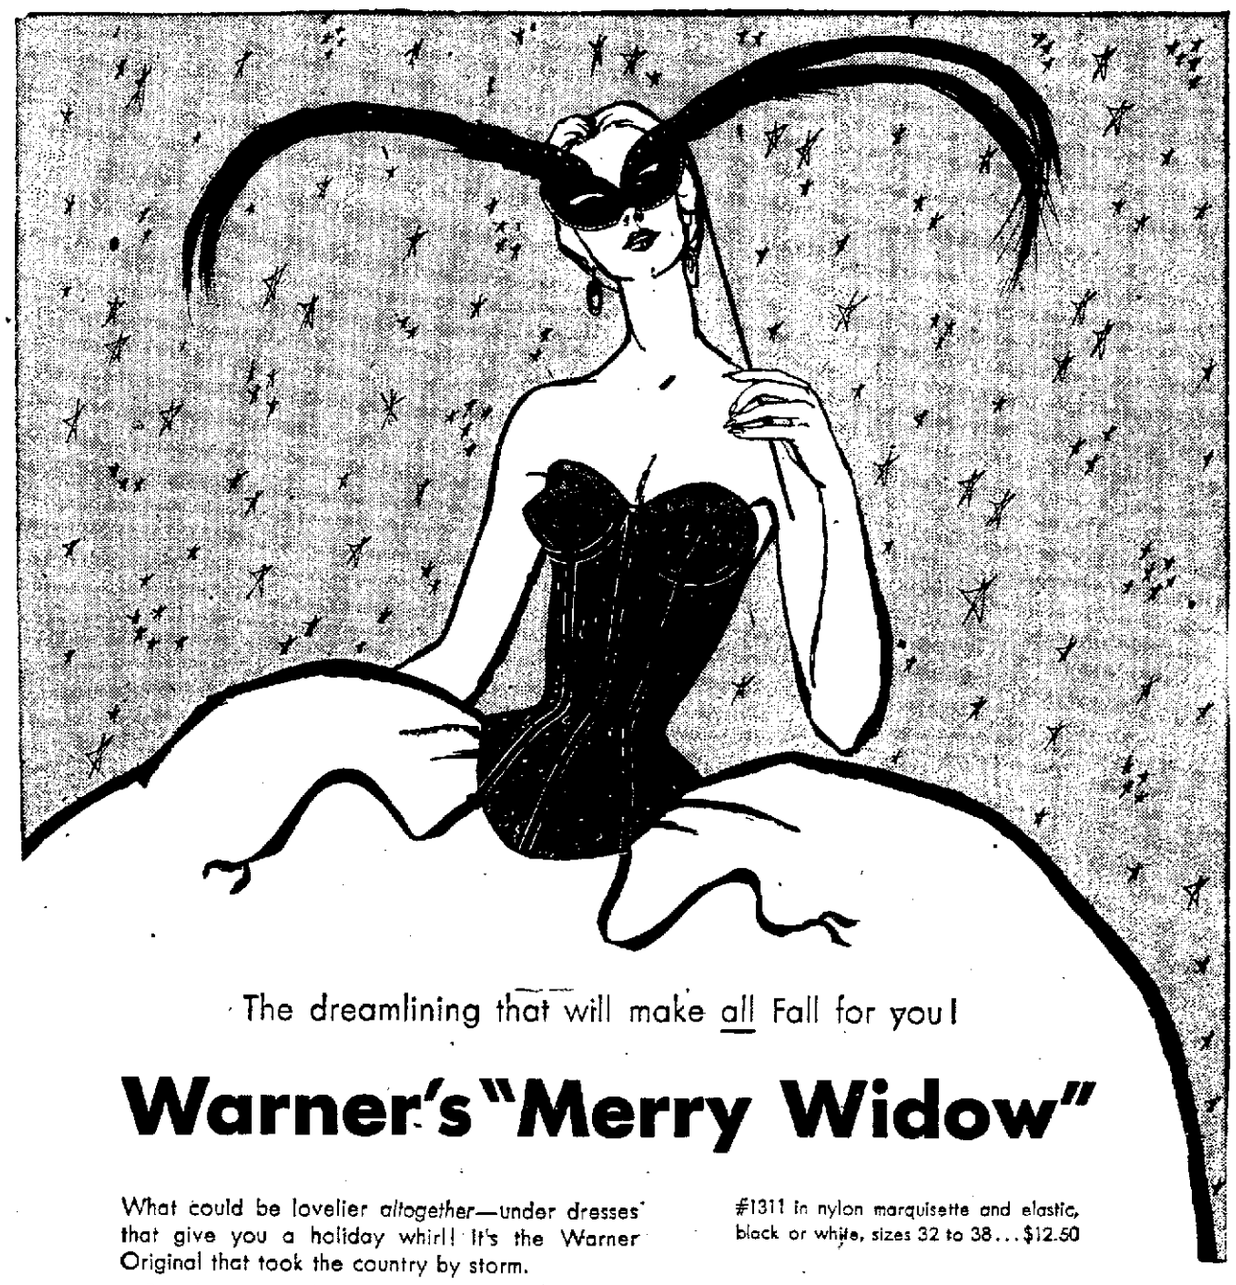

MOSCOW (AP)—Paris Designer Christian Dior's "flat look" has little chance of catching on in Russia, but something western and almost as revolutionary is coming into men's styles. It is trousers narrow at the cuff. For years Soviet men have been going around in pants almost bell-bottom in cut.

Schine Breaks Silence First Time Since Hearings for I, P-T Men

room here," the GI confessed.

"After a tour of duty with the Army Transport Corps in Korea and Japan, we shortly gained control of the Ambassador."

Across the pool, the watchful eyes of the lifeguard and of a gentleman in blue serge who tried to look as if he belonged there were proof enough of David's change in position.

Between the interruptions of the telephone, Schine glanced at his fabulous calendar watch. But the passing of time could not hurry the considered speech of the young man.

Guests stopped for a "good morning" and were accorded the genteel responses. A pretty brunette even brought David to his full 6 feet 4.

The telephone is one of his few mechanical defenses against interviewers and callers. A secretary filters their appeals.

The phone jangled at least once every five minutes. In each case, Schine dispatched the matter in two or three short sentences. The calls stopped neither question nor answer in the immediate conversation.

"Mr. Schine, may I take your picture?"

The abrupt request from a little girl in a wet bathing suit won a flashing smile.

The truth is Schine doesn't mind having his picture taken. Earlier, he had even accommodated the intruding photographers by taking a few dives off the board. The photo that was published showed him in a rather swan-like belly flop though he had repeated the dive for a better take.

This preference for the photography phase of journalism may stem from the fact that Schine is an avid photographer himself. He speaks the language of the amateur photographer.

Once, an unpublicized stunt that grew out of his passion for photography might have brought international repercussions. He and two other Americans touring the Soviet zone of Berlin were followed by two guards. The American trio split in three directions, one more than the escort could manage. Schine was the lucky one; left without chaperon, he snapped a fast series.

"I didn't get anything secret," he said. But he was trying.

In his last visit to Long Beach, David stopped at the Officers Town Club (now the Towne Club) when he was in the Maritime Reserve.

Of course, the thing that makes Long Beach famous, he said, is the Miss Universe pageant.

Oh, yes, the Miss Universe pageant really gets a big play in the east. Particularly this year, since the title-holder, Miriam Stevenson, is from that side of the country.

"Did you know that her home in South Carolina is right down there next to Camp Gordon?" Schine asked, his voice recording the awe usually given a 3-star general.

"It's unfortunate," he said, "that the friendship which Long Beach is building through the Miss Universe pageant cannot extend to other international levels."

The conversation suddenly diverted to Miss Brazil and why she didn't win the contest. While these remarks were certainly complimentary to Miss Brazil, they were a trifle off the record.

Miss Universe . . . international friendship. . .the tide of conversation rolled inexorably to that big issue which shot his name to prominence in the public press.

Schine formed his words more deliberately.

"The Communist conspiracy has advanced because Communist leaders have cleverly confused some of the followers into thinking the Communist movement is part of man's desire and attainment of progress. . . .

"I'm not qualified to talk about harbor defenses. But the problem is giving Civil Defense a lot of concern. They could work out something like what the ground observer corps is to air defense.

"Martin Dies said in United States News that mistakes have been made in the Communist hunt. That's true. I wish somebody had made mistakes like ours in Russia 30 or 40 years ago; there might not have been any Communist conspiracy if they had. . . .

"What can the average citizen do about communism? Well, the first thing a man can do—say, a Long Beach man—is to make sure, if he has children, that their teachers are not under Communist Party discipline.

"Fortunately, because of Congressional hearings, it's become a lot easier to tell who is a Communist. Most of the top Commies are well known now. Communities can get to work now. All the communities have to do is look at the record, consult the record an act accordingly.

"This work doesn't have to be on a frantic basis at all . . .

"People have told me, 'Doh't feel disheartened at the way people who are dragging out Communists have been hampered. You have made remarkable strides in bringing out the facts. Who would have thought one year ago that Congress would have been willing to pass a law outlawing the Communist Party?'

"While some have to accept smear and rough treatment, we can feel encouraged and very hopeful.

"Whatever my small contribution was, I know I was able to give something to the trend. . . ."

"Say, that sounds a little windy. Cut it down and it will make sense . . .

"I shouldn't have said all this."

Tennis Star Can't Identify Own Sister

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP)—Miss Joan Ross-Dilley, international tennis star suffering amnesia, was unable to identify her twin sister Saturday on a visit to Joan's hospital bedside.

The 24-year-old English born Joan looked pleasantly, but without recognition, at her sister, Mrs. Malcolm Marshall, who had flown from Boston after having learned that Miss Ross-Dilley had been found wandering on Burlington streets Friday night.

Miss Ross-Dilley disappeared Wednesday night after having played in the National Doubles Tennis Tournament at Longwood Cricket Club, Brookline, Mass. She plays out of Berkeley, Calif.

Dr. H. B. Levine said the tennis player definitely was amnesic. He said there was no sign of injuries.

Miss Ross-Dilley was unable to recall anything about being a tennis player. She told police the last thing she remembered was being in Albany, N. Y., Friday morning after she had arrived there from Buffalo, N. Y.

Stevens Urges Heritage Study

MISSOULA, Mont. (UP)—Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens called Saturday for greater emphasis on training young Americans "to understand and cherish their American heritage" so they will be better prepared to accept military duties.

Stevens cited the experience of American prisoners in the Korean War as indicating the need for better training of young Americans in home, school and church.

Stevens addressed the annual convention of the Montana State Press Association.

Ike in Denver for Rest of This Summer

By MERRIMAN SMITH

DENVER (U.P.)—President Eisenhower established summer headquarters here Saturday, tired and more than ready to shake off the dust of official Washington.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower flew here after an early morning schedule of engagements at the White House, landing at Lowry Air Force Base, where the summer White House offices were manned and operating when he arrived.

For about the next seven weeks, the Chief Executive will use Denver as a base of operations, making fairly frequent side trips from here in the interests of the administration program and GOP congressional candidates up for election this fall.

From the huge air base, the President and his wife drove to the home of her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, at 750 Lafayette St., about 20 blocks from the heart of downtown Denver. This will be the presidential residence while Mr. Eisenhower is in Denver.

An estimated 2,000 persons greeted the Eisenhowers at the air base, mostly state and city officials and Air Force personnel and their families.

The President, who wore a brown suit and brown western style hat, made no speech at the air base as he did last year.

He stood at attention as the Lowry Base band played the National Anthem and then inspected a 20-man honor guard of airmen and a formation of WAFs standing at attention on the landing ramp.

Police estimated 65,000 to 70,000 persons lined the route from the base to the Doud residence, mostly along Denver's Eighth Ave. Small boys exhibited numerous "I Like Ike" placards and cheers went up as the President's red convertible passed.

Mrs. Doud was on hand to greet the Eisenhowers at the air base. The President kissed her on the cheek, and after they arrived at her house, the Chief Executive, Mrs. Eisenhower and her mother posed for photographers on the front lawn of the grey brick residence.

Monday at 6 p.m. (PDT) the President will convey his pleasure over the administration record in Congress by a special radio and television report.

Mr. Eisenhower's residence on Lafayette Street is a graceful, 50-year-old eight-room house. He and Mrs. Eisenhower courted in the front porch swing. In the basement there is a 1910 model Victrola, an old upright piano and a pool table, all nostalgic relics.

The President and his wife occupy a relatively small bedroom on the second floor, just over the parlor. The advantage of this bedroom is that it is next to the bath—the only one on the floor. Rose Wood, Mrs. Eisenhower's maid, lives in a third-floor or attic room looking out on Lafayette Street, the room Mrs. Eisenhower had as a girl.

Texan's Wild Solo Flight Spans Ocean

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — A tall Texan in a 10-gallon hat stretched an hour's flight over Canada in his single-engine plane into a transatlantic hop Saturday that took him to Ireland by way of Paris.

Thomas H. Danaher, 30, in leather jacket and fawn trousers arrived at Shannon Airport from the U. S. naval base at Argentia, Nfld., after a 13½-hour flight marred only by bad weather about 1,000 miles off the Irish coast. The distance covered was about 3,100 miles.

Some Canadian red tape barring flights of single-engine planes farther than gliding distance of the Atlantic shoreline appeared to have been disregarded.

Maybe the Argentia base could be considered U. S. soil. Canadian officials at St. Johns, Nfld., refused to say whether any regulations actually were broken, one explaining:

"We are not at liberty to discuss the flight."

The flight of Danaher, a six-footer from Wichita Falls, Tex., recalled the feat of Douglas (Wrong Way) Corrigan, who piloted a second-hand plane from New York to Ireland in 1938 after having been refused permission to head out over the Atlantic.

Corrigan insisted later he was headed for California and got his directions mixed. All Danaher said was that he was going up for an hour's flight.

But U. S. naval officials at Argentia, noted Danaher had loaded up auxiliary gas tanks in his single-engine Beech Bonanza with enough fuel for a 22-hour flight. Shannon officials had been advised not to register surprise if Danaher landed there.

'SHE OUGHT TO BE IN PICTURES'

You're So Right, Mrs. Warren!

Allison Hayes, who landed a Hollywood contract thanks to a chance remark by Mrs. Earl Warren, is making a Technicolor film debut as the wife of Attila the Hun.

Allison was attending a Washington party with an embassy secretary when Mrs. Warren remarked:

"My, what a pretty girl. She ought to be in pictures."

A Universal-International talent scout (talent scouts apparently attend all the major embassy parties) concurred in the decision by the wife of the Chief Justice.

Hollywood's wheels, which sometimes turn faster than Washington's, started spinning. The result was a New York screen test for Allison, a flying trip for Miss Hayes to the Coast and now a spectacular debut in "Sign of the Pagan", in which Allison plays Attila's lady.

Allison grew up in the nation's capital and tells everybody her reading habits run mostly to politics. But when she unpacked at Hollywood's Studio Club out came—NOT a suitcase full of Congressional Records—17 bathing suits, all designed to prove that Allison measures 37-23-37 where it counts.

In 1949 the social beauty—daughter of William Hayes, the former chief engineer of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, represented Washington in the Miss America contest.

At a festival in Peru she reigned as Queen of the Atlantic and returned home to be Forget-Me-Not Girl of the DAV. She was official hostess of the capital's Cherry Blossom Festival in 1950 and at Daytona Beach in 1951 was crowned Miss Dixie.

Her studio biography states, "It just happens she is an accomplished swimmer who loves the beaches."

Her studio publicity photos reveal that when Allison Hayes poses in a bathing suit, who cares whether she swims?

ALLISON HAYES . . . "My, What a Pretty Girl!"

Capital Capers

By WALTER T. RIDDER, WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE

(of The Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON--Shortest vacation of the summer season probably was unenjoyed by Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Due to the prolonged congressional debate on the atomic energy bill, Strauss kept postponing his summer vacation. Finally the bill passed and Strauss retired to his farm in Virginia.

The next day at 3 o'clock the telephone rang and Strauss was back on the road for Washington. Total number of working hours on vacation—six.

President Eisenhower is trying to sharpen his putting eye. He has had installed a new putting green on the White House lawn. In order that the cup will look large to him when he's playing his regular rounds, the cup of the White House green is only 4½ inches in diameter as compared to the normal cup size of 8 inches.

So far there have been no reports as to whether the President's putting has materially improved. The green has also been equipped with a sand trap and late afternoons a veritable sand storm can be seen hovering over the White House as the President practices his explosion shots.

The President is off on his yearly vacation to Denver. But don't let that confuse you. The President of these United States can never really have a vacation. He's on duty 24 hours a day, every day, and there's nothing much he can do about it.

He must be kept informed of what's going on in the world and he has to make big decisions whether or not he so desires.

The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt used to make heroic efforts to get away from it all. He liked, in his early days as President, to take himself off on a yacht and to handle the tiller himself while cruising off-shore. But as certainly as the sun rose every morning so did there arrive a special Navy packet boat, bearing with it the various documents, cables, letters, and other papers from which a President can never free himself.

Harry S. Truman made occasional yachting trips on the then presidential yacht Williamsburg, but the ship's radio room was in constant communication with Washington and an airplane daily brought the usual load of presidential papers. So when you're on vacation, be glad you can get away from it all.

Last week when speculation was rife over when congress would quit work and go home, the House of Representatives adopted a resolution providing for re-assembly next January.

Majority Leader Charles Halleck, (R., Ind), moved the 84th Congress meet on Jan. 5, 1955. The motion was accepted but not until after some good-natured bantering between Halleck and his opposite number on the Democratic side, Sam Rayburn, (D., Tex).

Rayburn said he thought Jan. 6 would be a better time because it was "a more important date." House members were in a bit of quandary about why this was so until Charlie revealed that the sixth is Rayburn's birthday.

TINY, CRAFTY BEETLES FEAST ON CARPETS AND PILLOWS

NEW YORK (U.P.) — A tiny beetle with a huge appetite for carpets and furniture stuffing has become a worse household pest than the clothes moth, but most housewives don't even know the insect exists, the National Pest Control Assoc. said Saturday..

People just go right on blaming moths for the $1,000,000,000 in chewing damage done every year to their belongings, entymologist Philip Spear said, while the beetles munch away uninterrupted.

The truth is that carpet beetles do at least 60 per cent of the total damage, and possibly more, Spear said. The menace appears to be growing, he added, and he warned home owners to be on the alert for the little black insects, about the size and shape of ladybugs.

The pestiferous beetles are crafty, and they also have a varied appetite, including woolens, hair stuffing in furniture, feathers in pillows and almost anything else containing material of animal origin. Sometimes they even gorge themselves on cereal or morsels of meat.

Spear, technical director of the association, said in an interview there are four known varieties of carpet beetles — common, black, varied and furniture. Their names don't mean much, however, for they all like the same food, and plenty of it.

Like the moth, the carpet beetle does its dirty work when it is in the larva form. It eats and hibernates alternately for anywhere from six months to two years before turning into an egg-laying, flying creature.

Spear said some forms of carpet beetle were held in such high esteem by the ancients that they were embalmed along with Egyptian kings. The disrepute of furniture carpet beetles was established beyond a doubt in 20th Century America, however, when an infestation of the creatures banqueted in style on the furniture in the Red and Blue Rooms at the White House during Woodrow Wilson's administration.

Today the beetles are nibbling away in many homes, hotels, clubs, museums and other places containing their favorite foods. Larvae often find security in areas of carpeting under heavy furniture that seldom is moved. When they are disturbed, they play possum, burrowing deeper into their lunch and remaining motionless until their path through the warp and woof is clear again.

Larvae wriggling up through flooring cracks have been known to eat along a straight line in a carpet, cutting it apart as though it had been slashed with a razor. Wall-to-wall carpets provide a particularly good dining room for the beetles, and so do air conditioning ducts filled with tasty morsels of lint.

Spear said carpet beetles are among the most difficult insects to get rid of.

FHA DIRECTORS MEET

'Keep It Clean,' Federal Housing Men Are Warned at Washington

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Federal Housing Administration's 70 field directors were brought here to headquarters lest week for a series of housing lectures—and a warning.

The warning was simple: the agency has been cleansed. Keep it clean.

The lectures, given by the agency's bureau chiefs, outlined the new housing law and explained how the administration plans to help carry out President Eisenhower's hopes for a "decent" home for every American.

The directors came from every state in the Union, Puerto Rico, Alaska and Hawaii. It was the first gathering of all the directors since before World War II.

FHA Commissioner Norman P. Mason welcomed the federal housing field directors when they arrived and bade them farewell at the end of the sessions. In each talk, he emphasized the importance of keeping the agency above suspicion.

Deputy FHA Commissioner William McKenna, who has headed the recent investigation of the agency, backed Mason up. He said each field office has been closely examined, headquarters knows more about its personnel than ever before and all those who have "survived" the investigation are good, honest federal employes as far as is known.

Mason told the directors that as "prominent public officials" they are "subject to the closest scrutiny in all . . . actions." He cautioned them against some activities that are "entirely acceptable in private business."

"I am talking about gifts—that become 'gratuities' when you hold public office," Mason said. "They can become the source of considerable embarrassment, both to yourself and to the administration.

"For you and every individual on your staff, I don't think there is any compromise with gifts that are all right to accept and 'gratuities' that are wrong to accept. Regardless of the size or the relative importance of the gift, there is only one thing to do: don't accept anything in any way."

Mason also emphasized that the directors are operating a $40,000,000,000 institution and "your stockholders are the American people." He said the objectives of the National Housing Act have been "overlooked in the years of emergencies" since the law was written in 1934.

He said it is up to the field directors to translate the new law into better homes for Americans. They also must see that the new "safeguards are working," Mason said.

He said the directors must also make sure home buyers are protected in their FHA-insured home purchases with "quality" appraisals. This, he said, "also protects the government's interest."

"I do not mean that you have to lead anyone by the hand. We don't want to destroy initiative. FHA believes in private enterprise."

Anytown Religious Rites to End Confab

"DEACON" DAN TOWLER
Carries Gospel Ball

"Deacon" Dan Towler, the Los Angeles Rams crashing fullback, today was scheduled to take a different role, that of conductor of Protestant services in Anytown, USA, where 165 teen-aged leaders are gathered.

This is the fourth year Anytown, USA, has been held at Idyllwild as a social workshop by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Seventy students from high schools in Southern California and Arizona are attending the camp conference to "better understand themselves and their neighbors."

In addition to the services led by Towler, Father George V. Kennard, Roman Catholic priest from Loyola University, will conduct high mass and Rabbi William M. Kramer, Village Temple, Westwood, will direct the ancient ritual of his race.

The concluding service will be a Buddhist-Shinto ceremony to permit youths of Japanese and Chinese ancestry to worship their gods.

Ted Yamamoto, 17, of 1740 E. 124th St., Compton, was elected Mayor of Anytown, USA, by his fellow citizens at the camp.

The conference opened Aug. 15 and will close tonight with an evaluation round-table of staff, leaders and recorders.

Writers See AEC's Top Atom Heater

IDAHO FALLS, Ida. (U.P.)—The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission Saturday gave newsmen their first look at the "hottest" atomic reactor in existence.

The unit is the materials testing reactor, whose fissioning uranium fuel produces enough heat to warm nearly 1,000 average size homes on the coldest winter day.

In operation of the reactor at the national reactor testing station on the Snake River plains 40 miles west of Idaho Falls, the heat currently is wasted—carried off by a water flow of 300 gallons a second.

USED FOR TESTS

However, intense radiation produced under carefully controlled conditions in the 32-foot cube of metal and concrete is utilized for a myriad of laboratory experiments ranging from irradiation of food to testing the durability of pipe.

The $18,000,000 reactor has been in use by the AEC since March, 1952, primarily to observe the behavior of materials used in the government's atomic energy program as they are exposed to a maximum density of both fast and thermal neutrons. The reactor has a rated power of 30,000 kilowatts.

Within the last few months it also has been made available for private experiments that are carried out under commercial contracts by Phillips Petroleum Company which has operated the "M-T-R" since its start for the AEC.

In basic operation, the materials testing reactor is similar to the war-born plutonium producing atom piles at Hanford, Wash., and the submarine-propelling atomic engine first tested on another, near-by site of the Idaho testing grounds.

FUEL PUT IN CORE

All employ a fuel of enriched uranium placed in the core of the reactor. To prevent a chain reaction from "running away" and exploding like a bomb, rods of neutron-absorbing cadmium are manipulated close to the fuel to provide control.

The controlled reaction takes place within a space about the size of two large suitcases, surrounded by beryllium reflectors and shields of graphite, lead, steel and special concrete.

Neutrons liberated in the fission process shoot out from the core at speeds up to one million miles an hour. Experimental material is then exposed to this bombardment, 10 to 100 times more intense than that of any other atomic reactor.

Politics, Says Poet, 'Cancer of the World'

LIMA, Peru (U.P.)—It was the opinion of aging and famed American poet Robert Frost Saturday that politics is "the cancer of the world."

Frost made his statement while on his way back home from Sao Paulo, Brazil, where he attended an international writers' congress.

The only flaw he could find with that meeting was that "every intellectual debate led fatally to politics."

"Politics," he added, "has nothing to do with poetry, but politics today is the cancer of the world."

SPEEDERS, POKES FACE ARREST ON LABOR DAY

SACRAMENTO (U.P.)—The California Highway Patrol warned today it would be particularly watchful over the coming Labor Day weekend for "slow poke" drivers as well as speeders and motorists driving under the influence of alcohol.

"We are watching for every slow driver to see he does not impede traffic," said CHP Commissioner Bernard R. Caldwell. "This is not an invitation to others to speed, but is a movement to provide fair and efficient use of the highways."

Oil Industry, Union Eyeing Labor Board

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Oil industry and union leaders alike are keeping close tabs on the new Republican-controlled National Labor Relations Board.

Since taking over, the three-man GOP majority has tossed aside rules it regards as outmoded and has started a streamlining which will ease its workload and break a log-jam on pending cases.

Probably most important, it has divested itself of jurisdiction over within-state labor disputes, many of which involve oil and gas, on the presidentially-endorsed theory that growth of federal authority should be curbed.

There have been no protests so far from oil, gas and related industries, but complaints are issued almost daily by the AFL, the CIO and the Oil Workers' International Union.

Here are the high lights of some of the board's recent actions:

1. Divorced itself from intrastate disputes which can be settled at the local or state level. Labor leaders charge this conflicts with federal court decrees holding that the board has authority over all disputes.

2. Raised from $25,000 to $50,000 a year the outflow of interstate business required to bring a company under board jurisdiction.

3. Raised from $50,000 to $100,000 a year the goods or services that must be supplied to interstate commerce to bring the supplier under board jurisdiction.

4. Gradual tightening of the restrictions of the Taft-Hartley labor-management act. The AFL charges this was being done "not through legislation but by administrative action."

5. Ruled that a strike against an employer-member of an employers' association is a strike, in effect, against all members of the association and therefore justifies an association-wide lockout. This replaced an old edict that when employers ordered a lockout, they committed an unfair labor practice.

6. Decreed that unions can not strike over contract demands unless the contract, by its own terms, is subject to change or termination. Heretofore, the board had held a union is free to strike provided it observed a 60-day "cooling off" period following notice of new contract demands.

Sharp dissents have been filed to most of the rulings by board member Abe Murdock, a Democratic holdover. The majority members are Chairman Guy Farmer, Albert C. Beeson, and Philip R. Rodgers. Usually voting with them is Democrat Ivar Peterson.

The "International Oil Worker" charged in a recent issue that, through its intrastate ruling, the board "surrendered control over labor-management relations affecting millions of workers, most of whom badly need unions."

Said the AFL executive council: "The pro-business majority has put through a new anti-labor policy. Eventually the Eisenhower administration must be held responsible. Gradually, but inexorably, terrific pressure is being applied against labor through a process of tightening the restrictions of the Taft-Hartley act, not by new legislation but by administrative action."

The council named Farmer, Rodgers and Beeson, and added: "This group has proceeded in recent months to reinterpret the basic concepts of the law governing labor-management relations."

Donald C. O'Hara, associate counsel of the National Petroleum Association, big refiners' group, said the board's decision on jurisdiction "is undoubtedly wise because it reduces the board's case load." But he said it increases the size of a "no-man's land created by a Supreme Court decision that state courts were powerless to issue injunctions in labor disputes because the federal government had pre-empted the labor relations field."

Rain Follows Prayer at C of C Luncheon

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (U.P.)—The Rev. John L. Dodge, pastor of First Baptist Church, gave the invocation at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon Friday and in closing offered a prayer "for rain to end the drought and cool the parched earth."

Moments after he spoke, a thunderstorm broke over this resort city and drenched the area with its first rain since July 18.

THE MOO THE MERRIER

HOW MISS UNIVERSE GREW UP

10-Year-Old Miriam Cried at Mirror

By DEL BOOTH

WINNSBORO, S. C.—Miriam Stevenson used to sit in front of her mirror and cry, because she thought she was ugly. But that was when she was 10.

Now, at 21, this self-styled ugly duckling is acclaimed the most beautiful girl in the world.

The freckles which made her tearful at 10 turned into an asset which helped win her the title of Miss U.S.A. and led to her selection as Miss Universe.

How does one grow an American beauty?

That was the question put to Miriam's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stevenson. The recipe seems to be: take a normal little girl, give her a happy rural childhood and lots of buttermilk, healthy portions of fun and family love and let nature take its course.

Locating the prosperous Stevenson farm with its one-story frame house is no problem at all to a stranger. Everyone in these parts knows the Stevensons. An aged tenant farmer provided directions with this description:

"That's the Genamans has the daughter what's done won the champeenship of the worl'!"

If you tried to classify Miriam, you'd probably put her down as an outdoor girl.

"She always wanted to be outside," her mother says, "and it always was hard to get her to wear much except rough clothes, like blue jeans."

HOME MADE DRESS

Yet even before she began school she had learned to sew and cook, and has designed and made nearly all her own clothes since she was halfway through grammar school. En route to the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, her luggage was lost, so the dress she wore in the preliminaries was one she had made herself.

Her prizes include a chance at movie stardom—a contract at Universal-International at $250 weekly. For this she will postpone her senior year in college. And the studio says she also will give up her southern accent.

"Now that will be something," mused her 58-year-old father, "unless Miriam is willing. She's always been right determined about things."

Whatever she does in Hollywood will be her first real professional acting experience, although competing in beauty contests has given her excellent stage presence and poise.

She never appeared in school plays, but did have parts in a couple of pageants at Lebanon Presbyterian Church, up the road from the Stevenson farm. Last year she had a short turn at summer stock in the North Carolina mountains.

As might be expected from proud parents, the Stevensons think Miriam is just about as good as daughters come.

SHE'S STUBBORN

"She was always willing," says her mother, "always helpful, never making any trouble.

"But like her father says, she's pretty determined about anything she makes up her mind to. And if she decides she'd just as soon keep her accent, well . . ." her voice trailed off thoughtfully. Then she brightened: "But if she decides she'll change it, she'll do it in record time, and just like they want."

Miriam's childhood social life hinged on the three centers of the American way of living—home, church and school.

She was 5 weeks old when she was first taken to church and was a gold star winner for attendance at Sunday school all during her school days. At college she has been active as a Sunday school teacher and in leadership of various church organizations.

Like most farm boys and girls, Miriam was active in 4-H club work. She copies her father by specializing in raising Guernsey dairy cattle. One heifer she had in her high school days won the county Guernsey show first prize. Her best sale returned $670 for a Guernsey and its new born calf. That paid for the best part of one college year.

"Of course we help her, but she likes to make her own way," her father put in.

TOOTED CLARINET

Other than playing the clarinet in the high school band, Miriam's interest in the arts has been confined to dress designing.

Her first crack at a beauty contest was at the age of 9 or 10, when she was in a county contest for grammar school girls. She lost.

Not until she was in college did the beauty contest road really open up for her. The start was selection as the freshman bride in the Lander College annual junior-freshmen pageant.

That paved the way for her selection as Miss Lander College the next year, and brought her the title of Miss Greenwood, the South Carolina city in which the women's college is located.

As Miss Greenwood in 1952-53, she won the title of Miss South Carolina and a crack at last year's Miss America contest, where she was among the 10 finalists.

Sandwiched in were appearances at the Charleston Azalea Festival, the Summer Iris Festival and other celebrations.

"There were so many I can't recall them all," her mother said. "But it seemed as though she was on the go all the time."

$100 A YEAR

So much so that she had to drop a work scholarship at Lander, where she waited on tables for $100 a year. Lander officials gave her an honor scholarship in the same amount. She was an A and B student all through school.

A popular one too. Prophetically, her sophomore college yearbook has this prediction: "Your smile can pave the way to success."

Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson might be referred to by some people as "modern" parents—that is, they let Miriam grow up doing what she wanted to do, with plenty of guidance but without much interference "as long as what she did was right. She made her own choices, and we helped her when she needed it—and when she would let us," Stevenson asserted. "She's always been her own boss, and a good one."

In perfect health all her life, Miriam's only dietary quirk is a great love for buttermilk—from her father's dairy farm Guernseys, of course.

"Our doctor suggested buttermilk as a good infant food when Miriam was not quite a year old, and she's been crazy about it ever since," Mrs. Stevenson related.

ELECTRONIC CHEDDAR

Listen to That Cheese Getting Aged in Hurry

MADISON, Wis. (U.P.) — Two scientists are working with a device for putting the tang in cheddar cheese with sound instead of time.

The University of Wisconsin researchers have aimed ultrasonic waves at cheddar cheese and produced aged cheddar in one-half to one-third of the time needed by present methods of letting it age naturally.

"Some who tasted the electronic cheese said it is as good in texture, flavor and aroma as other aged cheddar.

Natural aging takes about a year. But when bacteria is stimulated by sound waves above the range of the human ear, the same taste can be given cheddar in four to six months, the researchers said.

The progress still is in the stage of experiments. But a process patent has been sought in the name of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, which is supporting the study.

Some 850,000,000 pounds of cheddar are produced in the United State annually. It is expected that saving in inventory and warehousing costs would be tremendous if the sound wave process can be developed fully.

W. C. Winder, professor of dairy and food industry at the university, said a commercial machine to treat cheese his way on a large scale is at least three years away. He and his associate, John H. Nelson now are primarily concerned with designing such a machine, which they estimate would cost about $15,000.

Winder got started in the electronic cheese business with a $100 war-surplus radio generator. Now he works with a custom-built generator which has been rebuilt several times at a cost of about $5000.

A small disk two inches in diameter is the business part of the machine. It changes the current from the generator into sound waves.

Two pre-cooled cheese samples are placed in a holder with the disk between them and the current is turned on. Sound waves at a frequency of 400 kilocycles per second are transmitted throughout the samples for about 30 seconds. The sound waves are just below the radio broadcasting frequency. The cheese is then given regular storage and compared from time to time with naturally aged cheese from the same block.

"WE OPERATE OUR OWN CUSTOM WORKROOM"

Nixon to Aid Candidates in Hot Spots

WASHINGTON (LE) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday he will campaign for republican candidates in nearly all the states where the GOP has a Senate or gubernatorial contest.

Nixon, already unofficially tabbed as the party's big political gun for the congressional campaigns, has tentative plans so far to speak in 23 states. Exact schedules will be announced.

"President Eisenhower has asked me to speak in as many states as possible," he said, "and I'll try to fill as many requests as possible."

WHIRLWIND TOUR

The 41-year-old vice president is booked almost solidly for a whirlwind six weeks of speaking which will begin in mid-September and keep him busy until the Nov. 2 election.

Weary but cheerful after the congressional session, Nixon left Saturday for Ogunquit, Me., to join his wife, Pat, and their two daughters for a remnant of what originally was planned as a month's rest at the seaside. Mrs. Nixon and the children have been at the resort for the past two weeks.

Nixon said he expects to do most of his campaign traveling by chartered plane, with legs by regular commercial flight.

Although the vice president's traveling involves all the detailed planning of a "campaign" itself, he said the emphasis will be not on him, but entirely on helping local GOP candidates. His office said it has been flooded for months with hundreds of speaking invitations, but Nixon has been able to accept only a fraction of them.

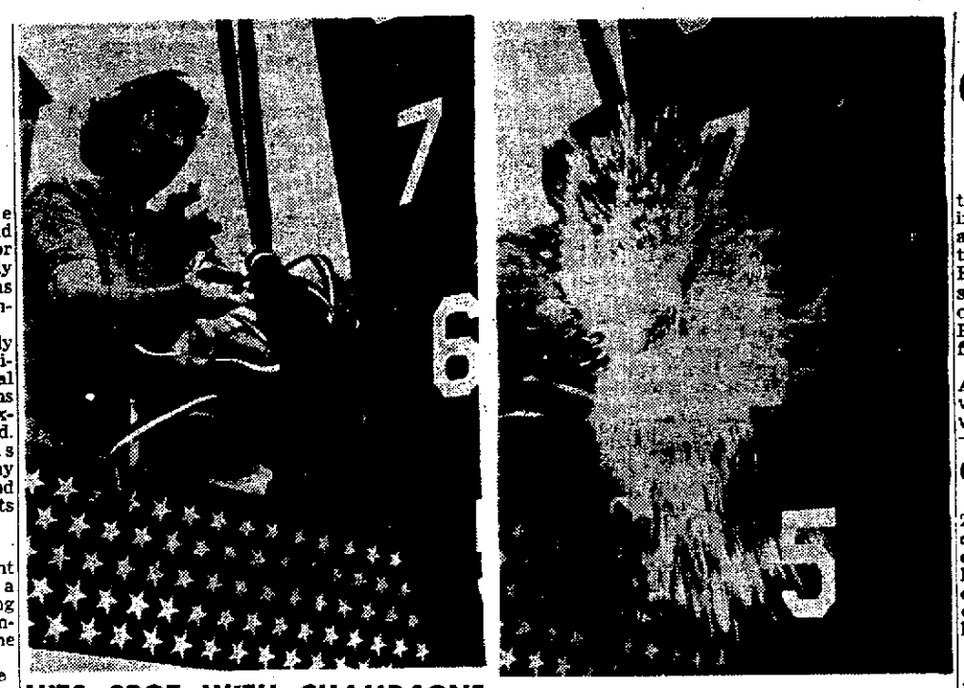

McCARTHY ANGLE

His aides would not disclose whether he has turned down any requests from GOP congressional or gubernatorial candidates. Nor would the vice president himself comment on the possibility that his across-the-country campaigning might find him appearing from time to time with controversial Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.), who will do a lot of GOP campaigning himself.

"I haven't seen his (McCarthy's) schedule," Nixon said.

Although the vice president's program has been "coordinated" with the Republican national committee and the GOP senatorial campaign committee, it will be operated independently from Nixon's own office.

Nixon said it would not be one continuous swing in the nature of a national campaign tour, but a series of short trips, broken by short stays here.

HITS SPOT WITH CHAMPAGNE

Communism Seen as No Issue in Campaign

By WALTER T. RIDDER
(Of the Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—As Congress took its departure from Washington over the weekend, to get a few days rest before starting the campaign in which the entire House and some 36 Senators will seek election, it was clear that one oft-expressed prediction of President Eisenhower would be fulfilled.

At the time of the McCarthy-Army hearings, the President was asked at a press conference whether he thought communism in government would be an issue in the coming political campaign. Eisenhower replied that he did not think so, that the issue before the electorate would be the record of the 83rd Congress and his own legislative program.

If the plans of most congressional and senatorial candidates materialize, the legislative record and the Republican program will indeed be the major campaign talking point.

For the Communist issue had through a series of events, planned and otherwise, become a relatively minor factor. There has been little accusation that this administration has been "soft" on communism. Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) has accused some of the administration officials of "coddling" Reds but has suggested this comes more from the machinations of former administration holdovers than from Eisenhower appointees.

Then, too, a recent bill, sponsored by the Democrats, was the toughest anti-Communist legislation yet passed by the national Congress, and both Republicans and Democrats here are inclined to believe they are "quits" on the subject of who is more alert to the Communist danger.

KNOWLAND VS. JOHNSON

How Republican, Democ Chiefs See Legislation

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—Here is the way Senate Republican Leader William Knowland and Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson picture the work of the 83rd Congress in various fields:

TAXES

Knowland—"We cut taxes by nearly 7½ billion dollars, reducing individual income tax payments, excise taxes on goods consumers buy and providing substantial benefits in other reductions and allowances for individuals and enterprise."

Johnson—"A Republican tax revision which granted relief to corporations and stockholders and overrode Democratic efforts to obtain relief for people in low income brackets."

INTERNAL SECURITY

Knowland—"We acted decisively to safeguard the nation from enemies within its borders and to rid government, labor, education and all other phases of American life from Communist infiltration and subversion."

Johnson—"Legislation to control subversion featured by a Democratic amendment to outlaw the Communist Party in the United States."

AGRICULTURE

Knowland—"We acted to end the shameful waste of farm surpluses and to provide farmers with a long-range program for an iridependent, self-reliant agriculture, with government providing a shield against destructive forces beyond farmer control."

Johnson—"A Republican farm bill designed to solve the problem of farm surpluses by driving farm income even lower than it has gone already."

FOREIGN POLICY

Knowland — "We ended the fighting and sacrifice of American lives in Korea, kept the United States out of the war in Indochina, liquidated the Communist foothold in Guatemala, strengthened the free nations and confronted Russian imperialism and Communist aggression with the firm determination to safeguard freedom and attain genuine peace."

Johnson—"I do not believe that foreign policy will enter too much into the final judgment. There were few clear cut votes in this session which highlight differences in basic philosophy in this field."

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Knowland — "We reorganized and strengthened the nation's defense by policies and programs capable of providing security over the long pull at substantial savings and without undue strain on the national economy."

Johnson—"The administration cut down the strength of our defenses."

Railroads Agree on Benefit Plan Aiding 900,000

CHICAGO (AP)—Most of the nation's railroads agreed Saturday night to grant 900,000 non-operating employes a health and welfare plan, holiday pay and extended vacations.

The carriers estimated in a statement that the agreement, effective at once, will add 140 million dollars yearly to railroad operating costs. It is based on the recent recommendations of a fact-finding board appointed by President Eisenhower.

The carriers' statement said, "The health and welfare plan will provide hospital, medical and surgical insurance coverage for all non-operating employes. The insurance premiums will be shared on a 50-50 basis."

Also on agenda appropriately, is a discussion of first-aid methods in case of snakebite.

Next Saturday and Sunday, club members will go to Marego Valley, west of Palm Springs, where as guests at the ranch of Cy Belden, a member of the club, they will hold a snake hunt.

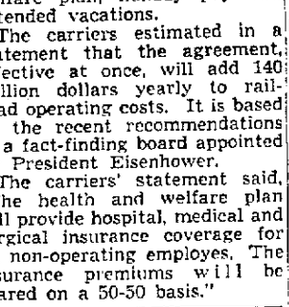

Car-Train Crash Takes 5 Lives

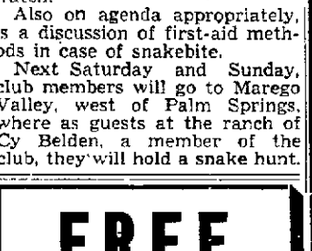

WEVERTON, Md. (AP) — Two women and three children were killed Saturday when their car collided at a grade crossing with a Baltimore and Ohio main line train.

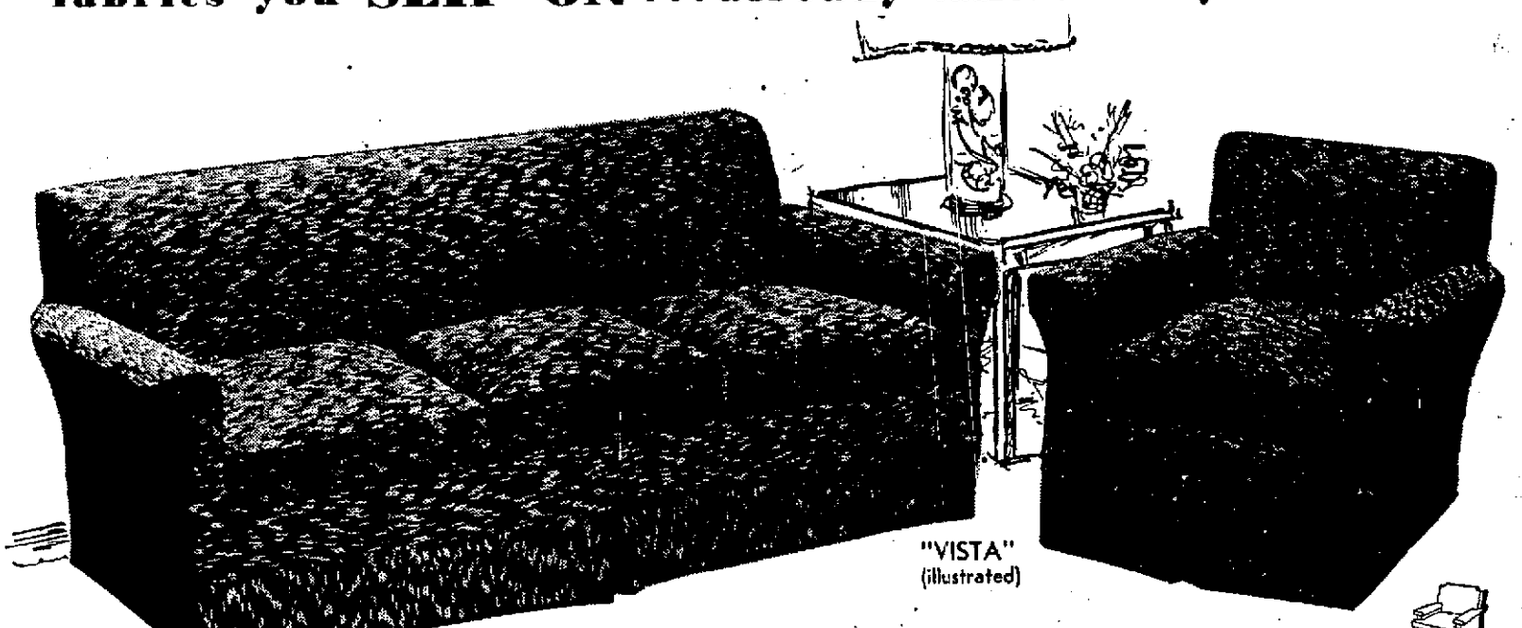

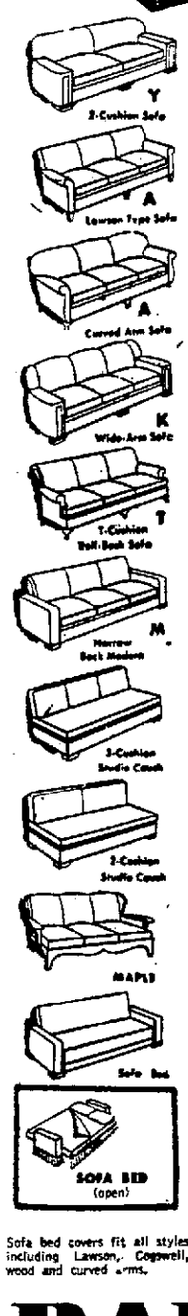

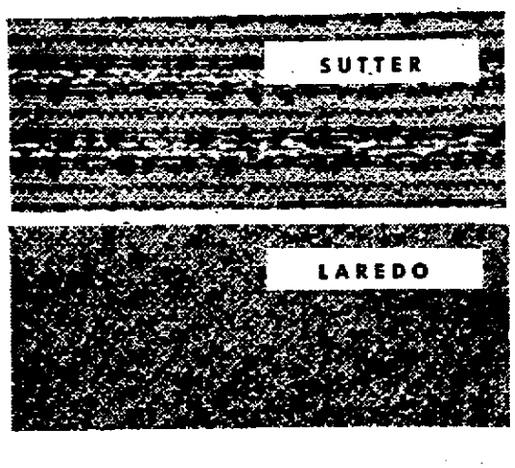

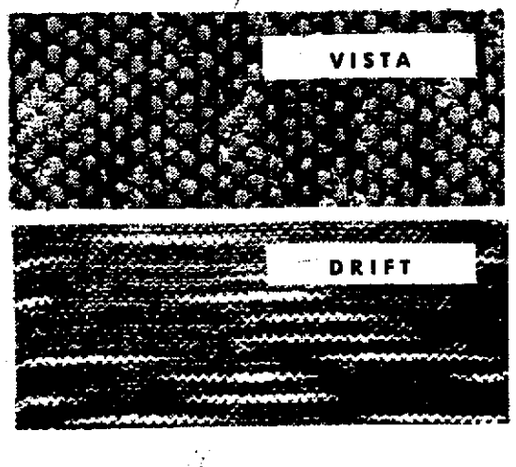

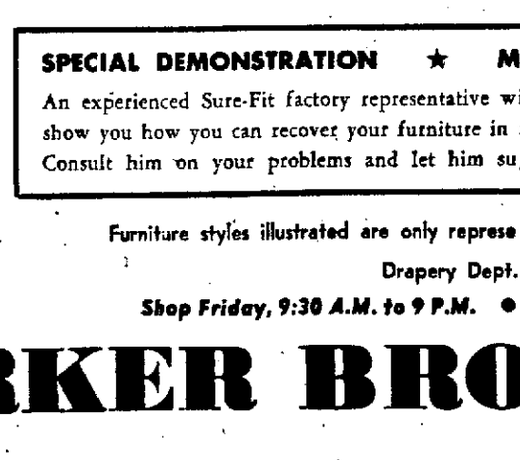

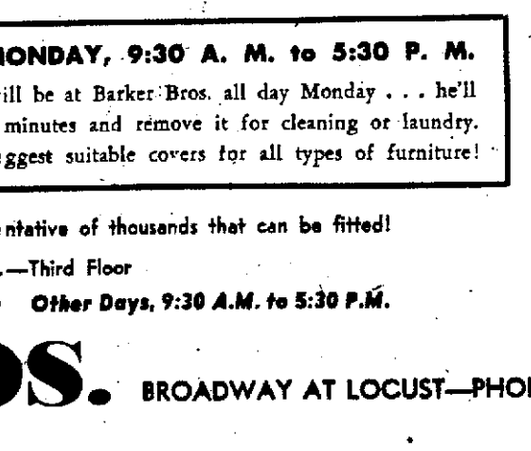

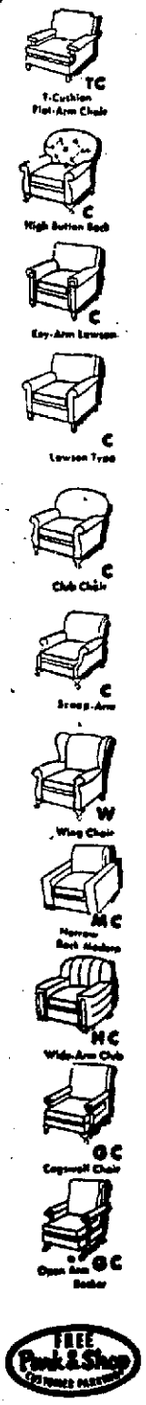

The dead were identified as: Mrs. John L. Bennett, about 64, of Westminster, Md.; Mrs. Travis A. Meredith, 41, of Welch, W. Va., and three sons.

The railroad's office in Baltimore said the crash was at a little-used crossing.

Mississippi Will Decide on Eastland

JACKSON, Miss. (U.P.)—Mississippi voters decide Tuesday whether to return James O. Eastland to his third term in the Senate or elect a man who charges Easland with being "a part time senator who votes Republican as much as he does Democrat."

Both Eastland and his opponent, 40-year-old Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin, predicted victory as they wound up summer-long stumping tours for the Democratic senatorial nomination punctuated by promises to outdo each other in maintaining segregation of the races.

Speaking "from Rabbit Creek to Vinegar Bend" in a traditional Mississippi political battle, as well as on television and radio, both candidates told voters that segregation must be maintained at all costs.

Eastland, a cotton planter seeking his third full term, said "a national organization" of states' rights leaders will be formed to support his proposed amendment to the Constitution, designed to curb the powers of the Supreme Court.

Gartin answered that Eastland's amendment "came too late" and charged that Eastland had failed to defend successfully southern traditions and even the honor of the late Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, who was refused his Senate seat because of his outspoken stand for white supremacy.

Run-Off In Texas May Be GOP Test

AUSTIN, Tex. (U.P.) — Texas Democrats, a majority of whom voted Republican in 1952, go to the polls this week in what may prove an indirect test of the Eisenhower administration's popularity in the Lone Star State.

Party members will ballot Saturday in a run-off primary election. The result will determine whether Gov. Allan Shivers, 46 and seeking a precedent-setting third consecutive term, or Austin Attorney Ralph Yarborough, 51, becomes the state's next chief executive.

The winner will face the November general election, but in traditionally Democratic Texas, party nomination has been tantamount to taking office.

Women Convicts Riot After Agitator Dies

RALEIGH, N. C. (U.P.)—About 350 white and Negro inmates staged a demonstration at the state prison for women and some threw mirrors and other personal objects at guards today after a Negro prisoner was found dead of a broken neck in an isolation cell.

Eight guards from the men's prison and half a dozen city police were rushed to quell the disturbance which State Prisons Director William Bailey said "was not a riot."

Prison Superintendent I. B. Hinton said one prison employe was scratched by a piece of flying glass which some of the women grabbed up and tossed at guards as they returned to their cells from the prison yard.

But Bailey said "nobody was hurt or scratched or anything else."

The dead woman, Eleanor Rush, had been lodged in an isolation cell for the past four or five days after she threatened a matron with a rock, Bailey said.

Previously, she had attacked a matron at a prison farm, then was sent to the state mental hospital at Goldsboro, where authorities decided she was simply a disciplinary problem and sent her here.

Bailey said a nurse and "four or five" matrons went to the woman's isolation cell late Friday night after she had been creating a disturbance for two or three days.

A guard notified him about midnight, the prisons director said, that the woman "was lying on the floor of her cell. The nurse went in and found her dead."

County Coroner M. W. Bennett ordered an autopsy and declared the woman died of a broken neck. Bailey said Dr. Walter Neal, a private physician, indicated she "might have done it herself."

Shortly before noon, Mabel Wright, Negro prisoner in the isolation cells located in the prison's reception center, began screaming to the rest of the women gathered in the exercise yard that the dead woman had been abused by prison authorities.

Hinton said several "agitators" in the yard began shouting back, demanding to know what happened and "they began getting boisterous."

The women quieted down within about two hours, after the extra guards arrived, Hinton said, and were ordered back to their cellblocks. Then they began tossing intimate objects at the guards.

Bailey said he ordered the city officers to return to town and "I went into the cell block and talked to some women they picked out as spokesmen. They felt this girl had been mistreated, based on what this other girl in isolation had said.

"If there had been a riot, all would have been confined to their cells. There was no riot."

One Deal Made, End of Mill Strike Seen

MISSOULA (U.P.) — Dexter L. Bright, assistant manager of Timber Products Manufacturers Association, predicted Saturday an early end to the Pacific Northwest lumber strike.

Bright's prediction followed announcement in Reading, Calif., of a settlement between Northern California district council of Lumber and Sawmill Workers (AFL) and Pines Industrial Committee, ending the two-and-one-half-month-old strike without a wage increase or any change in working conditions.

New Torture Crime Stirs N.Y. Cleanup

NEW YORK (AP) — Another savage torture crime spurred a shocked police department Saturday night into a wholesale weekend roundup of hoodlums and loitering young toughs.

As an outgrowth of the unfolding story of a teen-age gang that "killed for the thrill of it," police hauled in 160 zoot-suiters and corner bums in an overnight roundup.

The orders went out to all precincts to spread the dragnet again.

The object of the latest sadistic crime attack was an elderly cripple, burned and tortured in a night of horror by a ruthless intruder who tried to get him to reveal the hiding place of his money.

Joseph Scarlata, 65, retired pet-shop owner who has one leg, was found nude and beaten Saturday morning, unable to get up off the floor of his Harlem tenement flat.

He told police his tormenter forced his way into the flat Friday night and spent nearly eight hours beating him, burning his body with cigarets and rubbing salt into the raw wounds.

When Scarlata repeated again and again that he had no money in a hiding place, he got a callous threat of a bullet in the head in reply.

Finally the torturer ransacked the tiny apartment and left with $6.10, all he could find.

It was learned Saturday night that Jack Koslow, the thin, cold-eyed leader of a teen-age Brooklyn "kill-for-thrills" gang, was in love with a 21-year-old girl and hoped to marry her after he came into an $11,000 inheritance.

A few hours after Koslow and the three other members of his gang were arrested, police reportedly brought the girl to a Brooklyn station house to confront him.

Like some imagined movie hero, being true to the "code of the underworld," Koslow drew himself up and snapped:

"I'll make a deal. She didn't know anything. She's a wonderful girl and we were going to be married. Keep her out of it and I'll tell you everything."

Then, police said, he poured out the story of how he and the others roamed Brooklyn parks at night, beating and torturing helpless men and killing two of them in the process. They also horsewhipped two young girls.

Keeping their word, police have protected the identity of the girl, who told them, "He was a very nice boy, I thought, and we had many tastes in common. He bought me lots of things and he had plenty of money."

Negro Sarge Honored for Fortitude as POW

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (U.P.)—A Negro master sergeant was decorated Saturday for his determined stand against Communist indoctrination during 30 months he suffered tortures in a red prison camp.

Eight hundred trainees marched in review at Brooke Army Medical Center in honor of M.-Sgt. Joe N. Black, 50, of Columbus, Ga.

He received the oak leaf cluster to an Army commendation ribbon from Maj. Gen. William Shemboro "for his fortitude and inspiring devotion to duty and to the principles of democracy."

Father of Three Wins English Channel Swim

FOLKESTONE, England (AP)—Joaquin Baptista Pereira, a stubby, 33-year-old father of three from Portugal, Saturday won the France-to-England international swimming race across the English Channel.

Eight of the 15 entries, who included three women, failed to finish the 21-mile ordeal which began at Cap Gris Nez, France, early Friday.

Some Interesting Facts! about the
New Fluidless CONTACT LENSES
Perfected after 25 years research by Optical Scientist Dr. A. Mueller Welt.

CONTACT LENS QUIZ:

Q. What are contact lenses?
A. Contact lenses are small plastic discs, which replace the old type of spectacles. While in use, contact lenses are invisible.
Q. Can I see as well with contact lenses?
A. Yes. You will see as well if not better with contact lenses. In many cases of impaired vision contact lenses offer better sight and more comfort than ordinary eye glasses. Many whose lack of normal vision, even with ordinary spectacles, have had their vision improved to the point where they can meet sight requirements for certain positions and secure driving licenses.
Q. I wear extremely thick glasses. Will this affect contact lenses for me?
A. No. The discs are virtually the same for any strength of correction.
Q. Can contact lenses injure my eyes?
A. No. There is no record of injury to an eye caused by wearing contact lenses. On the contrary, being unbreakable, they are known to have prevented serious eye injuries.
Q. Do contact lenses "steam up" in cold weather?
A. No. Contact lenses do not steam up in cold weather. Rain does not affect them.
Q. Would it take me long to get fitted with contacts?
A. No. In but a few training periods, you should be ready for steady use of the lenses.
Q. Would I have much trouble handling contact lenses?
A. You should have no trouble. The average person learns to handle the lenses with about fifteen minutes of instruction. Insertion takes but a few seconds.
Q. Are the lenses hard to keep clean?
A. No. The lenses will not collect steam, sweat, sea spray, dust, dirt or grease. The natural function of the eyelids keeps them clean.
Q. Would I have any discomfort while wearing the lenses?
A. There is no discomfort while wearing contact lenses as they rest on the part of the eye that is insensitive. (The center of the lens arches over the sensitive colored part of the eye.)
Q. My thick glasses give a "pinpoint appearance" to my eyes and look distorted. Would contact lenses help?
A. Yes, definitely. These lenses are a boon to wearers of extreme corrections. Your eyes would appear the same as if no glasses were worn. Remember, contacts are invisible.
Q. Would I need to have the contact lenses changed often?
A. Once contact lenses are properly fitted, it is seldom if ever that they need to be replaced. The reason for this permanence is simple. Most defects in sight are due to irregularities of the front surface of the eye and the contact lens with its accompanying liquid makes up for these defects.

Volunteer and generous supplies of air are whooshed up by Mrs. Margaret Morrison of VFW Auxiliary No. 1392 as she fills balloons for the emergency polio fund campaign contributors.—(Jasper Nutter photo.)

Big Response Backs Polio Aid Campaign

"The need for funds is desperate. Daily we see polio strike around us. The incidence of the crippling disease is far ahead of last year locally, and the polio season has not yet run its course."

So said Mrs. Gail C. Hudson, chairman of the local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, as the Emergency March of Dimes swung into its second week.

Last reported figure of polio cases this year in the Long Beach Unified School District is 101, as compared with 64 at this time last year.

Response to the appeal for donations as the public votes for favorites in the prince and princess contest has been strong, campaign leaders reported Saturday.

Also, numerous articles of clothing and furnishings are being donated for a huge rummage sale to be held on Aug. 30 and 31, last two days of the emergency campaign, in the old Famous store building at 6th & Pine Ave.

Mrs. Robert Carr is chairman of the women voluntarily working on the rummage sale. Joining in this work are sorority girls, mothers of polio patients and women who worked on the "Mothers March" last January. The rummage sale is designed to take the place of the march, which will not be held during the emergency drive.

Mrs. Ray E. Withee, secretary of the local polio chapter, said anyone wishing to donate to the rummage sale may call at Room 301, Enloe Bldg., 115 Pine Ave., or telephone 68-4584 for pick-up service.

Lakewood American Legion Post and Auxiliary will hold a Grand March for oPlio dance at the post clubhouse, 5938 Parkcrest St., Saturday at 9 p. m. Carl Vidano and his Merry Makers will provide the music. The public is invited.

"Right here in our own area there are patients whose future lives depend on March of Dimes help," Mayor George Vermillion, campaign chairman, said. "And there are hundreds of chapters across the country whose funds are exhausted and who have had to seek emergency aid from national headquarters.

"Every mother awaits the report on the evaluation of the trial polio vaccine with hope in her heart. Every mother wants to be sure as much gamma globulin as possible is available to hard-hit areas."

The prince and princess contest is among six little polio children who are out-patients at the Tichenor Clinic. Their names are on containers for donations already mailed to homes. Arrangements for an overnight trip to Catalina for the winning boy and girl have been made by the Avalon Lions Club.

Ships Added to 7th Fleet off Formosa

By United Press

The United States reinforced its 7th Fleet with aircraft carriers and destroyers Saturday in a move that emphasized President Eisenhower's determination to defend Formosa against Communist invasion.

The ships, from the U. S. 1st Fleet which has been operating in the South China Seas, were turned over in Manila, P. I., to operational command of Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, commander of the 7th Fleet, which is charged with the defense of Formosa.

The action followed repeated warnings broadcast by the Peiping Radio that the time for "liberation" of Chiang Kai-shek's island bastion had come, and fiery statements in Taipeh that the Nationalists themselves were preparing an invasion of the mainland.

It appeared certain that Formosa would be increasingly in the news. Red China, in a propaganda broadcast this week, accused the United States of armed provocation against the mainland.

And the United States made it plain it intended to keep its 7th Fleet in the 100-mile straits separating Formosa from the mainland.

Taipeh dispatches Saturday said the Nationalists were feverishly speeding the construction of 200 assault landing craft for an attack on Communist-held China and that the Nationalists expected more U. S. help.

After the first treatment with the Auditonic Neurogenerator people have noticed definite changes in their hearing range.

Reports are constantly more encouraging concerning the value of this improved treatment for loss of hearing. Regardless of the nature or severity of your deafness, we invite you to have our thorough hearing examination and a trial treatment. This is not a cure-all and will certainly not restore perfect hearing in every case. But we have enough evidence now available to demonstrate that many deaf persons can expect radical benefit even after years of unsatisfactory experience with hearing aids and a wide variety of treatment.

To help you solve your hearing problem we will give you a careful hearing examination and a convincing trial treatment for a limited time for only $2.00. Please phone for appointment (at your convenience) and bring this notice with you.

Airline Strike Talks Revive in Mediation

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The AFL Airline Pilots Assn. and American Airlines Saturday agreed to discuss today a government proposal for halting a three-week strike.

A National Mediation Board official said representatives of both sides will meet with board members at 10 a.m. on the board's proposal.

The board offered a four-point plan under which an impartial referee would study the dispute while the strikers return to work.

The board said in a formal statement that "the inconvenience to the public" caused by the strike, which has canceled service to 97 communities, puts both sides under obligation to refer the dispute to a "neutral person" and "get on with their basic jobs of serving the public."

Main issue in the dispute, which the board has failed to settle in a week of mediation meetings here, is the pilots' protest against scheduling transcontinental non-stop flights which keep one flight crew at work for more than eight hours in the air.

Nail in Heart Out; Girl to Be Normal

HOUSTON, Tex. (U.P.)—Doctors successfully removed a nail from the heart of 6-year-old Diane Campbell Saturday and said she soon should be able to play again like other little girls.

The delicate operation, which took two hours and 15 minutes, was performed at St. Joseph's Hospital. Doctors kept it secret until it was over shortly before noon.

The child, although alert and apparently unconcerned, has lain in precarious condition since the nail was driven into her chest from the whirling blades of a power mower. The nail imbedded itself in her heart muscle and doctors feared it might work its way inside the heart.

Following the operation, Diane was given a sedative to sleep and her doctors said "there weren't any complications in the course of the operation. Barring complications in the future, she should recover within a short time."

The doctor said if all goes well, Diane should be up within a week.

Public Hearings on Tariff, Trade Pact Scheduled

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The State Department Saturday scheduled public hearings here Sept. 13-17 on possible changes in a tariff-trade agreement it has with 32 other nations.

Object of the hearings, the State Department said, will be to prepare the U. S. delegation to a meeting opening Nov. 8 at Geneva for review and renegotiation of the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade. (GATT).

FEAST OF MEMORIES

L.B. HIGH CLASS OF '04 MEETS

First White Boy Born Here Attends Reunion

The first white boy and the third white girl born in Long Beach shared a picnic basket and an apple pie Saturday.

They were Courtney Teel, Los Angeles attorney, and Mrs. John E. (Margaret Cullen) Wilson, Long Beach housewife, honor guests at the golden anniversary picnic in Silverado Park of the Long Beach High School 1904 graduating class.

Neither technically was a member of the '04 class. Teel was graduated two years earlier, in 1902, and Mrs. Wilson, an original member, had to stop high school after two years.

"My mother died," she explained simply, "and I had to bring up five brothers and sisters. The youngest was 2."

Both were born close together, in the same year, near the park, 31st St. and Santa Fe Ave., where Saturday's reunion was staged. The area then was known as Cerritos Colony and it was all farmland.

Mrs. Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cullen, was born Sept. 20, 1884, at her parents' farm home on Willow St., a block east of Santa Fe Ave. Her father was chief engineer of the Long Beach Water Co. Mrs. Wilson now lives at 3924 E. 14th St.

Teel, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Teel, was born Nov. 4, 1884, on what then was known as the Loper Ranch, Santa Fe Ave. and Willow St. His father was street superintendent for many years.

Viewing homes, lawns and trees of the area, Teel said, "You have no idea how wild this was 70 years ago. . . . They hung horse thieves here in those days. Yes, and if a fellow got fresh with another man's wife, he was likely to get hung. The system worked, too."

Dr. Herbert T. Cox of Laguna Beach, graduate of 1904, was master of ceremonies.

He recalled that 25 students started as freshmen in the class but only 17 survived the rigors of education to receive their diplomas that June 17 of 1904.

In those days, the Long Beach High School, a two-story cream-colored, Spanish style structure, stood at Eighth St. and American Ave. It was burned in 1918 and was replaced by Poly High School.

Most of the early-day high school graduates also were graduates of the Pine Ave. school which used to be at the southwest corner of Pine Ave. and Sixth St. Young pupils rode their ponies to school and tied them to the nearby pepper trees.

WAVED HAND, ART VANISHED!

TURIN, Italy (AP)—The vicar was showing a group of French tourists through the thirteenth century Church of San Giovanni.

"Here," he said, waving a hand toward two niches in the wall, "you see two of the greatest works of Ferrari in the sixteenth century—a Santa Chiara and a San Francisco."

Then he looked again, and ran to call police. Someone had stolen the painting of San Francisco.

Ike Rejects Urgings to Claim Antarctic

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — President Eisenhower has rejected recommendations that the United States stake a formal claim to part of ice-covered Antarctica, it was learned Saturday.

The recommendation was made by the State, Defense, Interior and Commerce Departments following a secret, two-year study. They concluded that, while relatively little is known about the South Polar region, the United States would be wise to lay formal claim to some of it.

Adm. Richard E. Byrd, veteran Antarctic explorer, has urged similar action on grounds that the unknown, 6,000,000-square mile area will yield valuable minerals and provide important defense benefits.

Some congressmen have introduced bills calling for such action.

It is not known exactly why Mr. Eisenhower turned down the proposal, but many officials are known to feel such a move would create considerable friction between this country and allies whose claims already cover most of Antarctica.

Seven nations now have claims—Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Norway, Argentina and Chile. Many of these overlap.

In addition, Russia has expressed interest in the region although it has not claimed any territory. One reason the government study was kept quiet so long was to avoid tipping off the Soviet Union to a possible U.S. move.

The United States does not recognize any of the claims and reserves the right to make claims in the future based on past American explorations.

The last time the United States staked a claim to unowned territory is believed to be Aug. 28, 1867, when it took possession of Midway Island in the Pacific.

The interdepartmental group which studied the problem felt that not nearly enough is known about the Antarctic and therefore no one can be sure of its future. Nevertheless, the group recognizes that Antarctica contains valuable minerals. In addition, some knowledge is now available about Palmer Peninsula, south of Argentina and the coastal areas of the polar cap.

Believe Jet Plane 'Explosion' Cause

Residents of the northern section of Long Beach were startled Saturday at about 5:45 p.m. by a loud explosion.

Police, who said their switchboard received numerous calls, said the noise was probably caused by a jet plane's sound cone striking the ground.

Segregation Hit at World Church Meet

EVANSTON, Ill. (U.P.) — The second Assembly of the World Council of Churches turned to racial problems Saturday, spurred by an American Negro minister's warning that segregation is an insult to God.

Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College at Atlanta, Ga., told an Assembly section on intergroup relations that the practice of segregation is like telling the Deity:

"You made a mistake, God, when you made peoples of different races and colors."

Dr. Ben J. Marais, of the Dutch Reformed Church in the African Transvaal, participated in the program with Dr. Mays.

Meanwhile, accredited visitors to the Assembly heard on a separate program a discussion of race relations by Alan S. Paton, Natal, of the Church of the Province of South Africa; Dr. Cornelius B. Brink, Johannesburg, chairman of the Federal Council of the Dutch Reformed Church in the Transvaal, and the Rev. Gerhard Brennecke, Berlin, of the Evangelical Church in Germany.

The United States and South Africa are considered by churchmen attending the Assembly as the world's worst hot spots insofar as racial relations are concerned.

Mays said, "Segregation based on color or race makes it impossible for the Christian of color to qualify; for one cannot change his color and he cannot change his race.

"And this restriction is tantamount to penalizing one for being what God made him and tantamount to saying to God, 'You made a mistake, God, when you made peoples of different races and colors'."

Marais, representing a denomination that practices "apartheid" or segregation of races, said the church should accept the present situation while working toward "the ideal of a church in which all men who believe in Christ shall be at home.

"If the church must, for practical reasons . . . take account of an existing position, then this accommodation must be seen clearly as a temporary measure . . . adopted only as the better of two evils," he said.

"It can be justified only on the ground that the ultimate goal may be missed if we proceed over-hastily to reach it. The goal itself must never get lost sight of."

Paton warned that "many fear that the only outcome can be revolution" in South Africa.

"But even if that were so, one must cherish unwearyingly the ideal of a society where the enjoyment of right and the assumption of responsibility will be wholly independent of one's race or color," he said.

Paton told in detail of the positions and suggestions offered by the Malan government and other groups to solve the problem and said the "most articulate non-white opinion" supports the African National Congress and the Indian National Congress "which reject utterly the idea of racial segregation.

"These two bodies are being driven to adopt more and more an intransigent position and there can be little doubt that they are either moving towards a Communist position or, alternatively, that they are becoming more and more disinclined to ask a man for his credentials; that is, to distinguish between Communist and non-Communist," Paton said.

Mays urged the churches of the world to realize that the need for desegregation is urgent.

"Even if we laid no claims to a belief in democracy, if the whole world were at peace internationally, if atheistic communism had never developed, if Fascism had never been born and Nazism were wholly unknown, a nonsegregated church and social and economic justice for all men are urgent because we preach a universal gospel that demands that our deeds reflect our theory," he said.

"To proclaim one thing and act another is sheer hypocrisy.

"It weakens the influence of the church. . . . The gospel itself . . . demands interracial justice and an unsegregated church."

Col. Francis Pickens Miller, a Southern Presbyterian layman from Richmond, Va., said the church is failing to educate laymen in the proper relationship between the secular society and God. This, he said, is "one of our great weaknesses as a worldwide Christian community."

Churches, he said, should urge "their ablest sons and daughters" to enter into "public life . . . to go as missionaries into the political arena.

"All too frequently political activity takes place in one compartment, religious activity in another," he said.

LAKEWOOD MOOSE ORGANIZE

Sec. Dulles Hailed by Air Group

BOYS TOWN, Neb. (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles was named "aviation's man of the year" Saturday.

The Air Force Association (AFA) conferred the title, and its Gen. Arnold Trophy, upon the cabinet official for "leadership which has given needed recognition and expression to the concept of the importance of air power as an instrument of our national policy."

Previous winners over the past six years have been the late Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, former Air Force chief of staff; Senators Lyndon Johnson of Texas and Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming; Gen. Curtis E. LeMay and the personnel of the Strategic Air Command; United Nations airmen in the Far East; Maj. Gen. William H. Turner and the men of the Berlin airlift, and W. Stuart Symington, former Secretary of the Air Force.

At a banquet here the AFA also conferred its annual flight trophy upon Maj. Charles Yeager, famed research pilot, and its science trophy upon Col. John P. Stapp, who recently rode a rocket-propelled sled to a new record for surface speeds, at 421 miles an hour.

Yeager, first man to fly faster than sound, and more recently the first to fly more than 2½ times the speed of sound, was honored for "courage, daring and professional proficiency."

Yeager, who has been stationed at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., is to be transferred Oct. 3 to 12th Air Force headquarters in Germany.

Stapp is chief of the aero medical field laboratory at Holloman Air Development Center, N.M., where his rocket-sled experiments have been conducted.

The Hoyt S. Vandenberg Memorial Award for distinguished service in contributing to public understanding of the air age was presented to Gill Robb Wilson of New York, editor and publisher of Flying Magazine.

The arts and letters award, for distinguished service to air power in the writing field, went to Charles J. V. Murphy, Rye, N.Y., an editor of Fortune Magazine. Murphy formerly worked for the Associated Press, the New York Sun, the New York Evening Post and the New York World.

Lt. Charles J. Young Jr., Fort Dix, N.J., received the Earl T. Ricks Memorial Trophy "for calling national attention to the skill and proficiency of Air National Guard jet pilots."

Young, a member of the 141st Fighter-Bomber Squadron of the New Jersey Guard, set a new speed record of three hours, 27 minutes and 13 seconds for the 1,945-mile flight between Ontario, Calif., and Detroit, July 24.

Moose Book Open House in Lakewood

As one of the steps for forming a new Moose Lodge in Lakewood, an open-house party will be held Monday night at the Lake Club, 17227 S. Lakewood Blvd., Kirby Smith, national membership director for the lodge in Southern California, announced.

Smith said 300 members had signed cards for the new lodge and that he hopes to sign up 1,000 members before the lodge is dedicated.

Smith declared present plans call for the buying of three acres of land in the Lakewood area and the building of a $100,000 clubhouse.

Nine of the 14 officers to be appointed for the new group are William O. Ward, junior governor; Morrie Hutson, treasurer; Norman W. Gordon, prelate; Ernest J. Evert, inner guard; Moyer M. Bupp, outer guard; Louis Ebelson, sergeant at arms, and James E. Kincead, H. N. Tuttle and Leon J. Wilson, trustees.

The open-house party will feature a buffet dinner and floor show.

Test Case Made in Radar Trap of Car Speeder

OAKLAND (AP)—Police arrested a volunteer Saturday in a test of the legality in California of radar as a speed detection device.

Scott Beamer, 40, was picked up for going too fast in a 25-mile-an-hour zone. Radar, hidden in the trunk of a police car, clocked him at 35.

Beamer said he deliberately went through the speed trap, after promising to fight the arrest in court so the police department can obtain a ruling on the legality of radar arrests. He will appear in Municipal Court Aug. 27.

"I'm interested in this," he said, "and I believe the day will come when we'll see a greater measure of safety through radar."

1st Marine Division Won't Quit Korea, Shepherd Says

SEOUL (Sunday) (AP) — The U. S. 1st Marine Division is staying right where it is—in the Korean front line—says the man who should know, Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Lemuel Shepherd.

The four-star Marine chief hopped from a Navy transport into a driving rainstorm here Saturday and told reporters:

"As long as there are requirements for troops in Korea the Marines are ready and anxious to do their part."

Shepherd flattened rumors that the Leathernecks soon would pack up and move to Okinawa where amphibious training might be more to the Marines' liking.

The Far East Command announced the withdrawal of the 25th and 2nd Army Divisions as part of its plan to pull out four infantry divisions by the end of 1954.

Two other divisions remain to be identified. There are recurring, but unconfirmed, reports that the 7th Division, which served in Korea during military government days, will remain behind.

Ex-Notre Dame Grid Star Hangs Himself

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (AP)—William R. Smith, Notre Dame football star of the '30s, committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn of his home near here Friday, state police of the Necong Barracks said Saturday.

Smith, in his college days a member of Notre Dame's famed "Watch Charm" guard, had been in the cement block business at near-by Succasunna.

TRUNK PACKED FOR FOOD ONLY

HAMILTON, Bermuda (U.P.)—Gundha, a 700-pound female elephant, became angry when airport attendants interrupted her lunch of bananas to get her on a plane for New York.

The attendants shoved, pushed, cajoled and even brought back her bananas in an effort to get her up the gangplank and into the plane. Two hours later they gave up. Gundha will complete her journey by ship.

Monarchs Just Regler Fellas on Free Cruise

MARSEILLE, France (AP)—The regal cruise ship Agamemnon steamed majestically out of Marseille Saturday with enough royalty aboard to turn a blood bank blue.

Kings, queens, princes and princesses—employed and unemployed—are off on a 12-day cruise with King Paul I of Greece footing the bill in the interest of a little tourist publicity for his country.

The most notable absence was the British royal family, which has its own yacht.

King Paul rented the 4,500-ton cruise ship and he made the rules.

He decided all kings are equal and their families are just as equal. To avoid a delicate protocol problem, everyone will draw for seats at the dinner table.

The Greek royal family also asked their sometimes colorfully clothed guests to restrain themselves, wearing simple clothes that reveal neither too much rank nor too much of anything else.

The Agamemnon, named for a king who led the Greeks against Troy, will stop at Naples to pick up a few more crowned heads, including the host and his wife, and then move on the Greek islands.

Not until the vessel gets to Corfu will Italy's ex-King Umberto come aboard. He didn't want to upset Italian feelings by boarding earlier and traveling through waters he had been voted out of.

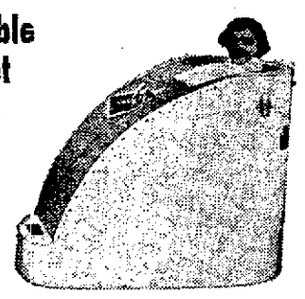

Altogether, 104 bluebloods will make the cruise.

They will have to rough it. With one exception, no personal servants were allowed. Prince George of Greece, on the far side of 83, was allowed to bring an old family retainer.

Possibly some of the younger royalty might find themselves going second class for the first time, at least for the first time they care to admit.

Singer Anna Alberghetti's Citizenship Bid Falls Flat

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Anna Maria Alberghetti, 18-year-old Italian actress, will have to wait until next year to see if she will get a chance to become a U. S. citizen.

The Senate early this month approved a private relief bill which would have granted her permanent residence but the measure died in the House.

A member of the House Judiciary Committee said House members had nothing against Miss Alberghetti personally — they just wanted to adjourn and go home. To speed up the session, the committee agreed to take up only 40 Senate-approved bills during the adjournment drive.

The committee member said "the most deserving" were selected and the one for Miss Alberghetti did not fall in that category.

Miss Alberghetti is under contract in Hollywood as a singer and actress and has been drawing $50,000 a year in motion pictures and for personal appearances.

She lives in Los Angeles with her parents. Her mother is a former pianist for the Scuola Reggia Musicale Conservatory, while her father is a graduate of the Conservatory of Pesaro in Italy.

The special legislation is needed to permit them to remain in this country because Mr. and Mrs. Alberghetti have testified they were "involuntary members" of Italy's fascist party during World War II.

They entered as temporary visitors March 16, 1953. A judiciary committee source said the immigration service has extended until March 1, 1955, temporary visas of all persons for whom a private relief bill has been passed in one house of Congress but not the other.

This will enable Congress to restudy their cases next year.

Car Overturns at Cloverleaf, 3 Youths Hurt

Three young men received cuts Saturday night when the car in which they were riding turned on its side in an effort to negotiate the northeast cloverleaf onto Willow Ave. bridge from the Harbor Freeway.

Treated in Seaside Hospital were Victor Von Laspern, 22, and Ronald Salven, 22, both sailors from Terminal Island; and Ralph E. Schenk, 24, of Frankfort, Ind., who was discharged from the Navy Friday.

Schenk suffered a three-inch laceration on his forhead.

A WEE BIT OF SCOTLAND

Authentic tartan brought from the Highlands it is, too, that screen star Cyd Charisse notes in the costume of George Chakeras, young graduate of Long Beach's Wilson High School. The two were awaiting the filming of a dancing scene in M-G-M's new CinemaScope musical, "Brigadoon," in which Miss Charisse co-stars with Gene Kelly and Van Johnson.

Long Beach Youth Called Film 'Find'

By KAY SEE

HOLLYWOOD—George Chakeras, graduate of Wilson High School, is one of Hollywood's new dancing "finds." Spotted by Gene Kelly in auditions, he appears prominently in M-G-M's lavish new CinemaScope musical, "Brigadoon," starring Kelly, Van Johnson and Cyd Charisse.

George, whose father, Steven Chakeras, resides at 4102 Nipomo Ave. in Long Beach, began his screen career two years ago, shortly following his graduation. He recently danced in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Give A Girl A Break" and "White Christmas."

It was "Brigadoon" and the audition for Kelly, however, that brought his biggest "break," Donning Highland kilts, he is featured in the spectacular Scottish sword dance, a highlight of the film, as well as in the gay opening number, "Down On MacConnachy Square". Featured also in the sword dance is Hugh Laing, brilliant star of the New York City Ballet Company.

The new musical, adapted from the record-breaking stage hit, already is being hailed as one of Hollywood's most important films of the year. Directed by Vincente Minnelli, produced by Arthur Freed, written by Alan Jay Lerner from his own stage story, and with Kelly both starring and doing the choreography, it reunites the same team responsible for the Academy Award-winning musical of two years ago, "An American in Paris." "Brigadoon" will be shown soon in Long Beach at the United Artist Theater.

POLICE CATCH THEIR MAN IN PLASTER RAIN

DAVENPORT, Iowa, (U.P.) Douglas E. Weivoda, 27, almost fell into the arms of detectives seeking him here Saturday.

Officers were going through a house here in which Weivoda reportedly was hiding. As they were about to enter an attic trap door they heard a loud crash.

Investigating, they found Weivoda hanging through the ceiling of a bedroom.

He was turned over to the Scott County sheriff's office and held for St. Cloud, Minn., authorities who asked his extradition.

Blaze in Apartment

An overstuffed chair and a rug pad were burned Saturday in the apartment of Leon A. Davis, 316 Ximeno Ave., Battalion Chief Frank G. Wood reported. He said the fire is believed to have started from a cigaret.

Labor Groups to Sponsor Play Written by Seaman

Backed by labor organizations in the harbor area, the sexy play about life aboard a freighter, "Slow Boat Across," written by Harry B. Antrotter, will be presented Sept. 3 to 6 at the Long Beach Labor Temple.

Antrotter, who wrote the play while serving aboard the murder mystery ship Fairhope, is producing the show with a cast of Hollywood actors.

Leads in the production are played by Roberta May, Hal Forrest, Nina Ravel and Ralph McColm.

The Labor Day performance, Sept. 6, will be for the benefit of the building fund of the Long Beach Exceptional Children's Foundation, Antrotter reported.

The saga of sex on the high seas also has been written in book form by Antrotter.

Tickets for the play are available at the offices of labor unions in the area and various ticket agencies.

Disneyland Bids Due Tomorrow

Bids are being called for Monday for site work on Disneyland, the big playground and showplace planned in Orange County by Walt Disney and associates. The project is bounded on the west by West St., on the north by Winston Rd., on the east by Harbor Blvd., and on the south by a line running approximately 1,300 feet north of and parallel to Katella Ave.

The bids are sought on excavation, embankments, backfill, drainage structures, bulkheading, piling, railroad overpass structures, irrigation lines, sewers and underground piping of electrical conduits and gas.

SHAKEN INTO PROGRESS

Bakersfield Snaps Back-After Quake

By RICHARD D. BIESER

BAKERSFIELD (AP)—An earthquake took this city by its roots and shook unmercifully for 10 terrifying seconds on Aug. 22 two years ago.

Tons of brick and masonry tumbled into the streets. Two persons died and 32 others were injured. Official estimates placed the extent of the damage at $48,650,000.

That quake and the aftershocks immediately following it kept the citizens of this community jittery for weeks. There were reports of persons sleeping on their lawns at night and of whole families, especially the seasonal farm workers, pulling up stakes and moving out.

Against the background of destruction and the fitful violence of the earth, the future of Bakersfield looked black.

But that was two years ago. As the number and intensity of the aftershocks dwindled, faith returned. Soon reconstruction started. Now some people will tell you that those 10 seconds of terror two years ago advanced Bakersfield by as much as 20 to 30 years by forcing new construction on the community.

The quake wiped out completely the city's Skid Row and took along as well a big percentage of the old municipal eyesores.

Now, among other things, the city is getting a spanking new civic center, a new private hospital and millions of dollars worth of new school buildings. One new church is going up and two others have been repaired and modernized.

The county hospital, located just east of the city, is getting two new wings at a cost of $2,518,000 and Administrator John Doubenmier says it will be far better arranged and better equipped than before

The biggest change is in the downtown business section. Many of the store buildings that did not appear damaged at the time of the quake were ruled unsafe later. As a result, the downtown section has undergone a real face lifting.

In all, 396 buildings were damaged. Of these, 90 have been torn down for new construction, 237 have been repaired and 69 remain to be dealt with.

Work already has begun on the new $810,167 city hall and construction is expected to get under way before too long on a new courthouse. Also planned for the civic center are a new county library and hall of records.

Elementary schools were hit hard by the quake. Superintendent John Compton reports the elementary system lost 191 classrooms or 288,000 square feet of floor space. Five schools were knocked out completely and seven others were severely damaged.

(Editor's Note: Damage to schools affected only buildings erected before enactment of state laws requiring quake-proof construction.)

Rebuilding has proceeded so swiftly, however, that within the next three or four months the system will have acquired 417,000 square feet of floor space since the quake. Involved are 16 separate projects.

Under construction at Bakersfield High School, which lost facilities valued at 2½ million, are a new administration building and cafeteria. Soon to be started are two new gymnasiums.

The Kern County Board of Trade estimates the population of metropolitan Bakersfield has increased 15,000 to a total of 185,000 since the quake.

Many of the new arrivals were drawn here by the reconstruction boom.

City Assessor John Mongold says the city's assessed valuation, exclusive of public utility properties, has jumped from $76,820,170 in 1952 to $86,681,845 this year. Bank debits, considered a good barometer of business activity, also are way up from two years ago.

The afternoon of Aug. 22, 1952, never will be forgotten in this community. It is not likely either that the townspeople ever will forget the speed with which the city was rebuilt and improved.

Must Advertise to Sell Profitably

LOS ANGELES—Without advertising no product could be profitably marketed nationally, Alynn Shilling, advertising director of National Distillers declared at a sales meeting at the Ambassador.

"However," added Shilling, "effective advertising depends upon two big basic considerations. It must be an integrated part of the whole selling team, with sales, merchandising and promotion, and it must be sensitive to contemporary economic and social conditions."

He also announced that National would spend in excess of $2,000,000 on its two top-selling bourbons, Old Grandad and Old Taylor.

Humphrey Sees Wheat Surplus as World Food

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) said Saturday that "bulgur" may be the answer to two world problems—the American wheat surplus and the political danger of hunger in Asia.

Bulgur is a Biblical food that was eaten by the ancient Babylonians, Hittites and Jews. Sometimes spelled "boulgour" or "burghol," it means one thing, parboiled wheat.

Humphrey's idea is to convert the huge domestic wheat surplus into a palatable product which could be used to help feed the rice-deficit areas of Asia now threatened by Communist aggression.

He has asked the Senate to study the proposal, put forward originally by Dr. Francis Joseph Weiss, a Washington authority on food and nutrition.

"The problem, as I see it, that now confronts statesmen and economists . . . is how to convert surpluses into goods that meet an effective demand on the world market and yet assure our farmers adequate compensation for their toil and labor," Humphrey said in a statement.

"If we can solve this problem, we have not only secured the prosperity of our agriculture . . . but also dealt a powerful counterstroke to the advance of communism which counts on the dissatisfaction of famine and poverty-stricken people."

Rush the LB Freeway

A FEW WEEKS AGO, a member of the State Highway Commission at a meeting here reported an estimate of five years for completion of the Long Beach Freeway to a connection with the Santa Ana Freeway—a connection that must be made before the Long Beach artery becomes fully effective in relieving the badly congested condition of traffic between this city, Los Angeles and northern points.

That would mean 1959, and 1959 is too far away, in view of the seriousness of the problem. We feel that the Long Beach Freeway should be completed in three years, at the most, and it is pleasing that state highway engineers, at a meeting here Thursday, gave 1957 instead of 1959 as the completion date. All possible civic and official pressure here should be exerted to make good prophets out of the engineers.

One strong point in our favor is the unparalleled co-operation given by this city in the freeway project. The City of Long Beach has spent approximately $1,000,000 in providing right-of-way for the freeway within the city limits. When the Long Beach Freeway was in the planning stage—it was called the Los Angeles River Freeway then—Long Beach began acquiring right-of-way on the west side of the river, using money from our share of the state gas tax funds. Thus, when the state was ready to start construction, the site was ready and available.

Furthermore, the City Planning Commission, with commendable foresight, carefully kept all subdivision development at a proper distance from the river in order to keep the proposed route for the freeway clear.

Highway officials have themselves stated that no city can match what Long Beach has done in co-operation with the freeway program. We are therefore justified in asking for stepped-up action on the completion of the Long Beach Freeway to the Santa Ana Freeway junction, the first item on the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce four-point highway plan presented last week to the highway department engineers.

Other points listed in the "utmost urgency" classification were widening of Carson St. easterly from San Gabriel River, continued acquisition of right-of-way and early construction on the Sepulveda Freeway through this city, and connection of the Second St. bridge with Highway 101 in the Marina area.

Let us add to this as another urgent project the widening to six lanes (divided) of Garden Grove Blvd., an extension of our E. Seventh St., to give this city better traffic connection with the rapidly developing Garden Grove area and Santa Ana. The Chamber of Commerce is working jointly with Orange County civic groups on this project, and there are indications work will begin within a year.

Long Beach is Los Angeles County's second largest city, and the center of one of the world's biggest housing developments. The arterial highway program in the area must keep pace with the population growth.

FROM ONE TOUGH JOB TO ANOTHER

JOHN S. KNIGHT

Odds Favor Ike to Vie

THE PRESIDENT had a busy week. On Monday, he signed the new tax bill, the first comprehensive revision of our taxing laws in 75 years.

Next day, he and Mamie flew to New York, registered for the Nov. 2 general election, and got back to Washington in time for Ike to hold a press conference.

Here, he replied to Democratic Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell's "power scandal" charges by saying he was "a little astonished" that any such innuendo should include a private citizen of the character and standing of Bobby Jones.

KNIGHT

The President made no attempt to answer Mitchell's 10 questions about the Dixon-Yates contract to supply power to the Atomic Energy Commission, but said that he knew when he got into political life, he would be confronted by insinuations and allegations by many types of strange characters.

On Wednesday, Ike signed numerous bills, met with the cabinet and the National Security Council but made it to Burning Tree for lunch and a round of golf.

Some people criticize the President for playing golf. Others think it's all right but shouldn't be mentioned in the newspapers. Ike figures that any man who works 60 hours a week is entitled to take an afternoon off for fun and exercise and he doesn't care who knows it.

Thursday, Eisenhower flew to Springfield, Ill., for Republican Day at the Illinois State Fair, then to Evanston for a World Council of Churches address and back to Washington that night.

It was evident from the size of the crowds and the warmth of his reception that the people of Illinois still like Ike. Local political leaders seemed pleased with the President's remark that he wanted to see more Republicans sent to congress from Illinois—though he didn't mention Joe Meek, the senatorial candidate, by name.

Meanwhile, there were such things to worry about as France's tinkering with the European Defense Community, Gen. George Kenney's warnings that Formosa could be the kick-off point for World War III and Clem Attlee's love feasts with the Chinese Reds.

But despite these and other assorted troubles, the President looks well and seems genuinely pleased with the 83rd Congress which passed a very substantial part of his program.

Columnist Roscoe Drummond, who is not addicted to partisan palaver, says that as much significant legislation has been placed in the statute books as during any comparable two-year period in recent years, and more than most.

Ike, who for a time seemed unwilling to accept the political leadership of his own party, is now moving in on the fall campaign with noticeable enthusiasm and pride in the Republican record.

PURE HOKUM

Adlai Stevenson, in a slap at Eisenhower's endorsement of Joe Meek, the conservative Republican senatorial candidate in Illinois, says the President is placing "party expediency" ahead of "even his own view of the national interest."

If the charge is true, Mr. Stevenson might tell us how many, if any, "reactionary" candidates of his own party were repudiated by the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1952?

The fine line between "principle" and "expediency" fades to an indistinguishable blur in campaign years, as Adlai well knows. Any claim to the contrary is pure hokum.

Senator Paul Douglas (D) of Illinois may wail that the international prestige of the United States "has been brought to the lowest level in history" but a good many people will not agree with this conclusion.

They see in the Eisenhower administration a return to economic sanity and a frank recognition that the United States, no matter how well intentioned we may be in the quest for universal peace, can no longer bribe, cajole nor bully our allies into a "heroic" diplomacy.

WILL IKE RUN?

While there has been talk in the past that Eisenhower might not be a candidate for re-election, the odds now strongly favor his seeking a second term.

Barring poor health, or a smashing Republican defeat this fall, Ike will be the GOP standard bearer in 1956.

Certainly no other Republican leaders loom as real challengers. The Nixons and the Knowlands have had their say but it is Eisenhower, and only Eisenhower, who has made any lasting impression upon the American people.

He has avoided "crisis" decisions, off-the-cuff pronouncements and political dog fights.

While the voices of others have been shrill and uncompromising, Ike has kept his temper and maintained his dignity.

There have been times when Eisenhower could be justly criticized for an apparent lack of leadership. I have been among his critics on those occasions.

But as Ike looks back upon the accomplishments of his administration and the adoption of the major part of his program by the 83rd Congress, he can well be proud of the record.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Ike's Tolerance of Party Dissenters Gives GOP Genuine Liberal Character

WASHINGTON — The Republican Party is emerging as the liberal party of the nation, and President Eisenhower as the truly liberal leader.

This is because, under the acid test of what is or is not liberalism, the Republican Party's leadership has taken the position that it will not punish its minority for dissenting views but will embrace within the fold the nominees of the Republican Party as chosen by the people in their respective state primaries. Freedom of thought is the basic principle of liberalism.

LAWRENCE

All such things as "purges" of party nominees by the President are taboo. Mr. Eisenhower has been variously represented as adopting the Truman-Roosevelt view of party "leadership," which is really a form of dictatorship. That same view was adopted by Adlai Stevenson in the campaign of 1952 and has just been reiterated by him.

Mr. Eisenhower, on the other hand, feels that Republicans can differ conscientiously and that some of the men who did not vote for certain parts of his legislative program did so in the honest belief that they were voting as their constituents wanted them to vote.

The support of President Eisenhower in the coming campaign for those of his party who differed with him not only is liberalism and tolerance at its best but it recognizes the very important liberal principle that the voters themselves, through their freedom of choice in the primaries, shall decide who is entitled to wear the party label in a campaign.

This has a direct bearing on the appearance just made by Mr. Eisenhower at the Illinois State Fair, where he was on the same platform with Joseph Meek, the Republican senatorial nominee in Illinois who previously had expressed different views from the president on various national issues. From a practical political standpoint, it has always been argued that the party leader who helps a congressional nominee wins the election despite the leader's open opposition.

BASIC PRINCIPLE

But the fundamental principle involved is that the party nominees cannot justly be repudiated by a president and that, once the people have chosen the party nominees, the president is in duty bound to support them.

But what about the regular Republican voters? What is their responsibility? There's an interesting situation in New Jersey, for example, where former representative Clifford Case won the Republican Senatorial nomination in the primaries. He is facing a rebellion of Republican voters because of his record in the House of Representatives, which it is charged resembled the new deal. In addition to this, he made a foolish statement after his nomination this year about his intention, if elected, to vote against the selection of Senator McCarthy for a committee chairmanship next January if the Republicans win control of the Senate.

Mr. Case still has an opportunity to clarify his position, as his original statement was vague on that point. Once he agrees to accept the obligations of a Republican nominee elected to the Senate—which includes voting for the slate chosen by a party majority for chairmanships—he is entitled to go before the voters as a Republican and to express his views on any issues that he wishes.

This does not mean that Mr. Case necessarily can win the election, because he is up against the problem of persuading Republican voters to cast their ballots for him, and no voter is bound by his party under the American system. He can change parties at will. But Mr. Case's chances of winning the support of regular Republicans will be improved if he indicates an intention to remain loyal to the Republican party and to accept the judgment of the party conference in the Senate on matters of committee control.

Senator Morse of Oregon, who classifies himself as an "independent" but who was nominated in the Republican primaries and elected in 1950, has a different concept of his responsibility to the Republican constituency which elected him. He feels that next year, if the Democrats win control, he can vote with them. This could mean that perhaps he does not intend to be a candidate in the Republican primaries again. But the important point is that Mr. Eisenhower is taking the truly liberal position when he says that he will support all Republican nominees and not try to impose any "thought control" or "conformity of thought" on the nominees of the Republican Party. He would be obliged under this doctrine to support Mr. Morse if the latter were renominated by the Republican Party next time.

It's really a liberal viewpoint, and it is unfortunate that the Democratic leadership under Mr. Stevenson is still sticking to the reactionary concept that a clique of men can disregard the choice of the voters for members of congress in the Democratic party primaries. MALCOLM EPLEY

How Sharp Campaign Paid Off

FROM a regional standpoint, any appraisal of the work of the 83rd Congress must of course give a high rating to the passage of a special appropriation of $8,000,000 to start rebuilding temporary structures at the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital in fiscal year 1954-55.

EPLEY

This badly needed improvement was suddenly boosted into certainty by a sharp and determined campaign. The groundwork was laid by Rep. Craig Hosmer around mid-1953, when he called attention of the then new VA administrator, Harvey Higley, to the deplorable wooden finger wings at the hospital here. Higley agreed to look the situation over in person, and did so. But he was besieged by a multitude of such requests, and the spark for real action in behalf of the hospital here had to come through Congress.

The problem had to be handled carefully there, to avoid the danger of a rash of requests from all over that would sidetrack the Long Beach project along with all the others. The Independent Appropriations Bill went through the House without the Long Beach appropriation attached. The strategy, worked out by Rep. Hosmer, Rep. John Phillips of Riverside County, chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, and Sen. Thomas Kuchel, was to develop sympathy in the House while working to get the funds included when the bill came up to the Senate for consideration.

Greatly aiding this cause was an important development here. Ted Anderson, a paraplegic at the hospital and a writer of exceptional competence, produced an article in the March issue of the Paralyzed Veterans Association's PVA News-Bulletin. Called "The Firetrap," it was a graphic and convincing discussion of the deplorable condition in the finger wings. Anderson's column, which was extensively reviewed immediately in the Beach-Combing column of the Press-Telegram, was sent to all California Congressmen. Rep. Hosmer read it on the floor of the House. It carried powerful impact, and to Mr. Anderson must go the highest credit for this top contribution.

KUCHEL ACTS

Subsequently, Sen. Kuchel formally proposed inclusion of the Long Beach funds in the Appropriations bill. He did this after Hosmer and Phillips arranged a luncheon with VA Administrator Higley and obtained his promise to provide a written statement of intention to use the funds at Long Beach. Kuchel included this statement with his request.

Meanwhile, Phillips saw Sen. Saltonstall, chairman of the Senate appropriations committee, and assured him the Long Beach funds would stay in the bill if the Senate would put them there. The Senate did, the House approved the bill, and Pres. Eisenhower signed it in June. It is now assured that the "firetrap" about which Ted Anderson wrote so effectively will be eliminated.

In the current issue of the PVA Bulletin, Anderson gives a review of the campaign and passes around the credits. What he has to say in this respect is of special interest, for no one followed the situation closer than he, and no one could have more interest in the outcome than patients at the hospital.

"I give three California Congressmen the lion's share . . . " he writes. "Craig Hosmer and John Phillips in the House, and Thomas Kuchel in the Senate. Hosmer brought the subject up in Congress and pressed hard for its passage. Sen. Kuchel actually introduced the legislation. And John Phillips was the skillful engineer . . . "

Others to whom Anderson gives credit: The Press-Telegram and Independent, some fine stories by Marjorie Driscoll in the Los Angeles Examiner; the California American Legion and other veterans organizations and civic groups, Dr. V. E. Edwards, manager of the Long Beach hospital. And Anderson rightly and proudly takes much credit for the PVA, appropriately calling it "PVA's campaign."

He withholds credit from the Veterans Administration at the top, but has warm words for Dr. Edwards, saying he "put himself out on a limb" in publicly supporting the campaign. "I give Dr. Edwards full credit for not backing up an inch," he writes. "When the issue was put to him by newspaper reporters, he took a firm stand and was widely quoted in print."

It adds up to quite a story. It means that the temporary structures, in which are located 295 of the 1600 beds in the hospital, will be replaced by permanent buildings. This will fulfill a promise made when the VA hospital was moved to Long Beach in 1950.

L.A.C. SAYS

Iran and Our Oil

factor is that there is now an overproduction of oil. It is a good time to leave oil in its natural storage if we are to look out for the future. Long Beach has received great wealth from high prices for oil during a period of world shortage. We got the highest royalty ever known when the Richfield contract for Palm Beach Park was signed in 1947. There is nothing in the near future to indicate such conditions will again prevail.

These conditions should be considered when we are told we should drill in front of our beaches. We have more money from tidelands on hand than we can spend for many years even if the court actions are concluded this year. With a world oil-glutted market we have plenty of time before we start drilling more wells in new territories.

One of the members of LBOD which is the operating company drilling our harbor wells is a member of the Iranian Consortium. That is Standard of California. It is joined with Standard of New Jersey, Socony Vacuum, Royal Dutch Shell, Texas, Gulf, a French company, and the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Co.

It is apparent from these world-wide operations that care must be taken not to allow these great companies to misuse their power to divide world markets. It is essential to efficient marketing that they be allowed to have working agreements. But the question is—what international agency is to be responsible to regulate this power against misuse?

Long Beach has a vital interest in how the world's oil production is managed. It can mean millions of dollars difference to us if prices fall or rise. For that reason faraway Iran is playing a big part in the economy of Long Beach.—L.A.C.

Malenkov May Visit London as Guest of Labor Party

WASHINGTON—You can look for increasing hands-across-the-Iron Curtain activity during the coming year. Plans are already being discussed for a precedent-smashing visit by Russian Dictator Malenkov to Paris and London.

PEARSON

An invitation to visit England was given Malenkov by ex-Prime Minister Clement Attlee while in Moscow recently. Premier Mendes-France has also been talking about inviting him to Paris.

Malenkov didn't answer Attlee definitely, but said he might consider coming to London next spring. Attlee issued the invitation in the name of the British Labor Party. If accepted it would put both Eisenhower and Churchhill in something of a box, since Eisenhower has been opposing any high level talks with Malenkov, while Churchill has wanted to go to Moscow for a spectacular conference with the Russian dictator in an effort to settle the peace of the world. If Malenkov came to visit Attlee, therefore, the Labor Party would steal the show.

No matter what happens, more of this hands-over-and-under-the-Iron Curtain is sure to follow, with the U. S. being put more and more in the background.

Note—Malenkov turned the heat on Attlee to visit East Germany, but the British labor leader refused. Apparently this upset Malenkov, for he spent most of his time between toasts at the big Moscow banquet urging the British to change their minds. Attlee, however, figured that a visit to East Germany was a pure and simple propaganda trap.

TURK PONDERS McCARTHY

The governor general of Istanbul, Dr. Fahrettin Kerin Gokay, sometimes called the Fiorello La Guardia of Turkey, bounced into Washington the other day. His comments were pithy and to the point.

"McCarthy! McCarthy! McCarthy!" he exclaimed. "All I read about is McCarthy. That's all I see in the newspapers, all I hear people talking about—except for this game you play with a stick . . . What do you call it? . . . Baseball.

"There's Indo-China. There's EDC. There's Guatemala. There are problems that concern you all over the world. But all you talk about is McCarthy. Why? Is he going to become President?"

AIR LINE STRIKE

Inside facts about the Americans Airlines strike—American Airlines failed to make the so-called non-stop flight between NY and LA so many times that they were called on the carpet by the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Under the rules, no airline can schedule a flight if there is no chance of consistently living up to schedule, and headwinds forced the non-stop flight to stop so frequently at Chicago that AA pilots argued they might as well change crews there, thus avoid breaking the 8-hour flight rule . . . AA pilots also offered to send an extra pilot along to relieve the crew until the entire 8-hour rule question could be settled. AA refused . . . On long overseas trips, an extra bunk is carried in which the pilot can rest. Pilots claim it's the tail end of a long trip that usually causes the accidents . . . American Airlines, which has done a great job of pioneering domestic aviation, now has replaced Pan American for its inside track at the White House. Under Truman, AA had the inside track through Truman secretary Matt Connelly. They could get almost anything they wanted. They still can . . . In one week, the CAB rushed through a special ruling that AA could ignore the 8-hour rule. Ordinarily, hearings on this would have taken six weeks . . . American Airlines has such an inside drag that Henry Friendly, counsel for Pan American, actually went before the U. S. Court of Appeals and complained about it. Yet the two used to scratch each others' backs.

TOWN MEETING

Principles

A leader of an organization is simply a representative of its members. Leaders can be good or bad, but so can members.

It may be difficult to understand, but isn't it true that the principles, not the leaders and/or members of an organization, are the things which determine whether it is good or bad?

To illustrate, it seems that normal, intelligent people would not willingly join any organization which they themselves believe is bad. And it surely is true that no organization is free from any bad leaders and/or members.

Therefore, if the latter make an organization good or bad, how could any normal, intelligent person willingly join any organization?

It is the principles or doctrines (beliefs) of an organization which alone make it good or bad. The acceptance of one wrong principle makes an organization bad.

Our country has had and still has bad leaders and members. But our country is still good because its principles or doctrines (Constitution) are good.

One principle of communism, that of the belief in the use of force (violence or its threat) if necessary to gain its demands, makes communism wrong no matter if all its other principles are good.

Service Mail

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing with regard to the mail situation as it affects service people. For instance, a man in the Far East and his wife in Long Beach put six-cent airmail stamps on their envelopes, but they do not get the airmail service they expect.

I have kept a record of letters from my husband in Japan and sometimes it takes as long as 13 days from mailing to receipt here. Other times it is just four days. Why?

Sometimes a problem confronts both concerned, and it is unfair, when there is no fighting, that it should take as long as 26 days to write and get an answer. Families can't be kept peaceful and loving that way, can they?

All I would like to know is why can't we get mail from overseas and to our men within four to five days. We pay for airmail. Why not get airmail service?

USAF Buys 25 Missiles From Swiss

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The U.S. Air Force has bought 25 cigar-shaped guided missiles from a Swiss factory and put them through secret tests in the United States, it was learned here Saturday.

Costing $20,000 each, the rocket-propelled missiles, which could carry atomic warheads, were designed to travel up to 852 miles an hour to knock out enemy planes.

An Air Force procurement officer said he understood the missiles, manufactured by the Zurich firm of Oerlikon Machine Tool Works, Buehrle Co., also were available to Iron Curtain countries.

The cigar-shaped weapons, launched from the ground and guided by electronics, are 16 feet long, 3 feet 5 inches in diameter and have a wingspread of 4 feet 3 inches. They weigh 545 pounds when loaded.

They were tested at Alamogordo, N. M., earlier this year.

The contract called for sending two score Swiss technicians to the United States to help conduct the tests and train American ground crews.

Dynamite Cargo of Truck Blasts Three to Death

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) Five hundred sticks of dynamite aboard a truck exploded with a tremendous flash Saturday, killing three men.

The dead were Charles Mills, 45, of Chula Vista, a Fort Lauderdale suburb, and two workmen who were not immediately identified.

Party for Princess; Betrothal Moot Point

BALMORAL CASTLE, Scotland (AP)—Princess Margaret celebrated her 24th birthday Saturday behind the mist-shrouded walls of Balmoral Castle, apparently still fancy-free in her heart's choice for a husband.

One of her guests was handsome 27-year-old Colin Tennant, whose name has been linked romantically with the princess. But as the day ended there was nothing to back rumors Margaret would soon announce her engagement.

In fact, as dozens of newspapermen and curious onlookers wandered in the area of the castle, Lady Pamela Glenconner, Tennant's mother, tended to dash the engagement talk.

"I'm sure I would have heard by now if there was any truth in this rumor," Lady Glenconner told the London Daily Sketch.

"Surely it is more important that Princess Margaret, who is a most charming girl, should have a really lovely birthday party."

But the details of how the pretty brunette sister of Queen Elizabeth II passed her birthday was kept from the public by the gray stone walls of the castle vacation retreat for the royal family.

An informal dance and party were held Saturday after the princess had received gifts from the queen and other close relatives. Many birthday greetings and flowers arrived at the castle.

In the little town of Ballater, some eight miles down the River Dee from the castle, residents hung out bits of bunting to note the princess' birthday.

Jet Flier Killed on Way to Riverside

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—Col. Einar A. Malmstrom, 47, acting commander of the Great Falls Air Force Base and World War II ace, was killed near here Saturday when his T33 jet trainer plane crashed.

Malmstrom, a native of Chicago, had been in the air about five minutes on a scheduled flight to March Air Force Base, Riverside, Calif., 15th Air Force headquarters.

Probe Killing of Canadian Missiles Ace

QUEBEC CITY, Que. (U.P.)—Canada's ace detectives were called in Saturday to investigate the death of a British-born guided missile expert, who was found fataly beaten in a field two weeks after he was assigned to a top secret defense program.

Det. Lt. Martin Healy, who has solved some of Canada's deepest mysteries, said he was looking into the possibility the attack on Paul Richards, 36, was "linked to his secret work."

Only Saturday it was disclosed that Canada's work on air-to-air missiles was in its final stages. Police said Richards knew some of the secrets about these missiles and that details about them would be of great importance to a potential enemy.

Richards died Thursday after being so severely injured he could not answer any questions.

He was found with his head and jaw crushed lying in a pool of blood in a tree-rimmed field of the Bois de Coulonge, the sprawling estate of Quebec's Lt. Gov. Gaspard Fauteaux. Police found a wallet containing $27 in his pocket, indicating robbery was not involved.

The estate, where the Duke of Edinburgh was entertained recently, is private and trespassers are forbidden.

Richards was on loan from Canadair, Ltd., a Montreal aircraft firm, to the Canadian armaments research and development establishment at Valcartier, near Quebec.

He took up his hush-hush assignment two weeks ago and took a room in the old section of Quebec City.

Police had little personal information about Richards, and Royal Canadian Mounted Police made a minute check of his movements since he came here. They tried to learn the identity of everyone with whom he had associated and just how much he knew about the guided missile program.

Healy was called in to direct the investigation. Healy solved the mystery of Quebec's sensational plane bombing several years ago, in which 23 persons were murdered.

"We are investigating the cause of death objectively," Healy said of the Richards case, "but we are definitely not overlooking the strong possibility that the attack on him was linked to his secret work at Valcartier."

'With MALCOLM EPLEY'

READER initialed BH says he (or she) likes this dept. best full of short items. This day, to accommodate BH, let's start with the prospective Catalina Channel swimmer who was in here with his press agent. The press agent opined the swimmer would swim the channel in three hours. Asked about that, the swimmer said he wouldn't want to "estimate" the time until he had completed the swim, which is a mighty safe time to do it.

BACK in 1906, the experts figured the "perfect woman" bigger than today's perfect woman who is, of course, Miss Universe. Judith Swanson was looking through a calendar put out by the Maclean Central Drug Store in Chicago in 1906 and came upon measurements for the "perfectly proportioned woman." Compared with Miss Universe (Miss Miriam Stevenson):

Height	5' 8"	5' 6"
Weight	140 lbs.	120 lbs.
Bust	37"	36"
Waist	23"	24"
Hips	39"	36"

The old calendar also gave these "perfect" measurements: Neck 13 inches, chest 33 inches, thigh 24 inches, calf 15 inches. No comparative statistics on Miss Stevenson are available.

AN abundance of woolly caterpillars in these parts has led to some prophecies that it's going to be a rugged winter. But a Westminster reader quotes an almanac which quotes an Iowa climatologist named Gerald Barger to the effect that wooly worms, squirrels, coons, corn and geese are unreliable in the field of meteorological forecasting.

"Squirrels can't think," he says. "The coon's fur may be the result of previous weather—but not future. What'll the weather be? We still can't peek very far into the future."

Well o.k., but how does he know squirrels can't think?

WHEN Carl Ehmann, principal of Lakewood Jr. High, joined the staff out there in 1946, the school had about 300 students, 13 teachers. Last year, there were 1500 students, 62 teachers. This year, he expects 1750 students, and 2050 in 1955-56.

That's not a true reflection of the area's phenomenal growth, however, as two other junior highs now help serve the area served by the one school in 1946. There are about 5000-6000 junior high students now in that area.

One might suppose in a section of such rapid growth there would be a lot of juvenile problems. But not so, says Ehmann. He asserts there's a very low incidence of behavior problems among his kids.

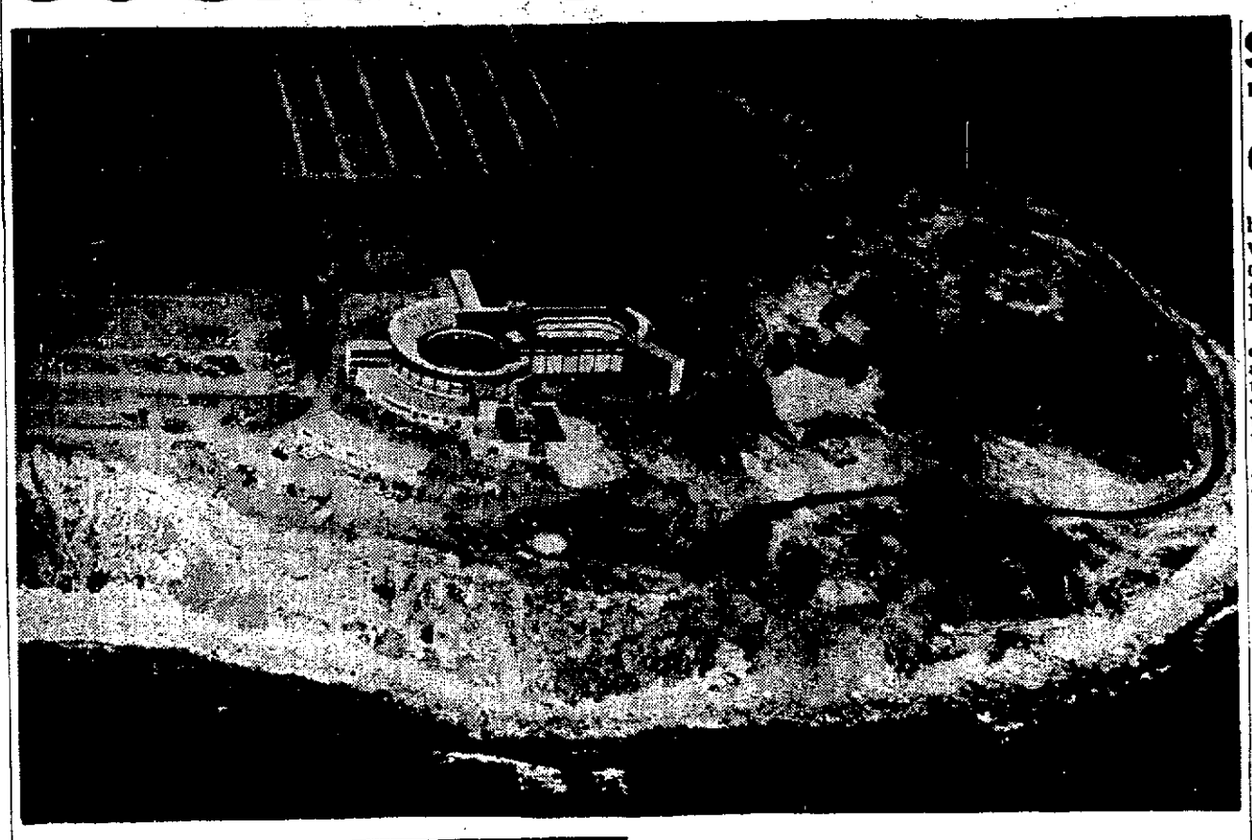

READER Charles Anderson was talking to a gal who had just quit her job working on the stock board at a brokerage office and asked her how come. Her answer:

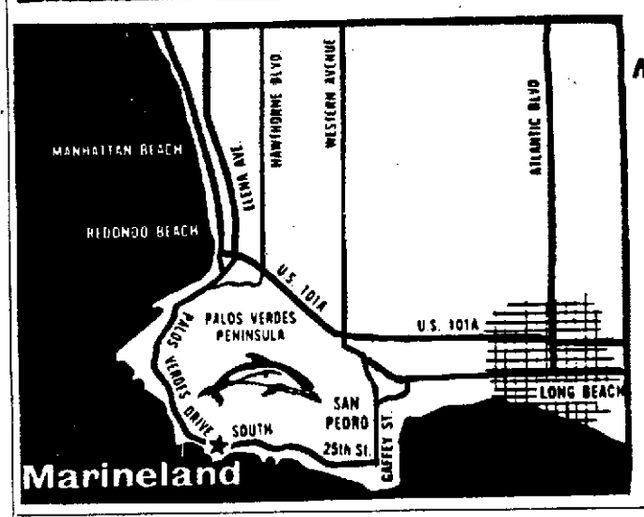

"What got me was the futility of it. You post quotations, rub them out, over and over and then at the end of the day you rub the whole thing out but the last quotation. Another thing you don't meet any fellows there. The customers are all old men (ugh!) I guess the young fellows don't have any money to invest."

DRIFTWOOD—Much talk in that neighborhood, I'm told, about an aluminum-painted house at 1602 Lakme St., Wilmington, owned by C. E. Erwin. When the sun hits it just right it shines like a star. . . . A Boston Bull pup owned by Mrs. Billie Allison, 716 Harding, refuses to grow. At three months he weighs 13 ounces while two brothers, born on the same day, now weigh 12 and 13 pounds. The midget, Bambi, is normal in every other way and is full of spirit. . . . Some talk in official and civic circles in Los Angeles about holding a world's fair before long in that village, or maybe spreading it out over the whole county.

County Supervisor Burton W. Chace, who as mayor of Long Beach was our most photographed citizen, continues to get the new pictures. There's nobody in county official circles who quite measures up to Bro. Chace, standing by a pretty girl snipping a ribbon or turning the spade of dirt. . . . Inexplicable remark by a young woman walking in front of the wide open door of the Bank of America. First and Pine, Friday p.m.: "I smell some kind of perfume I don't like?" . . . And what about that fellow standing at the corner of Fourth and Pine, same afternoon, telling people coming off the intersection to "hurry up?"

80 Sharks Get Tanked Up

MARINELAND FROM THE SKY

Aerial view of the Marineland of the Pacific, ready for opening Saturday, shows vast tanks for sea life. The circular tank has a diameter of 80 feet and the oval tank measures 100x50 feet.

Entrance road at upper left is Palos Verdes Drive—South, flanked by big parking lots. Direct route to Marineland is found by motoring via Pacific Coast Hwy. to Western Ave., turning south via Western (25th St. in San Pedro) to Palos Verdes Drive—South.

$3,000,000 'Fish Story' Comes True

A $3,000,000 "fish story" becomes reality Saturday when hundreds of specimens of sea life go on display at the huge Marineland of the Pacific at Palos Verdes.

Almost a year of construction of giant facilities will culminate as thousands of visitors flock to the oceanarium on Long Point, which is expected to be one of the Southland's top tourist attractions.

More than 80 ferocious sharks, as well as playful porpoises and other deep sea denizens were moved into the tanks last week and are being readied for viewing in conditions approximating their natural habitat.

The sharks include 40 leopards, a half dozen blue sharks and 35 smaller varieties.

Late arrivals included an electric ray four feet in diameter, capable of knocking down a man with its electronic charge; eagle rays with long stingers, three giant octopuses, 16 giant turtles and dozens of sea horses from Florida.

A tropic setting is provided in a 100x50-foot oval tank, where coral reefs, warm water and massive clam shells create a homelike atmosphere for the sea life of the South Pacific.

Cooler conditions will prevail in the 80-foot diameter circular tank for the piscatorial guests from the colder regions.

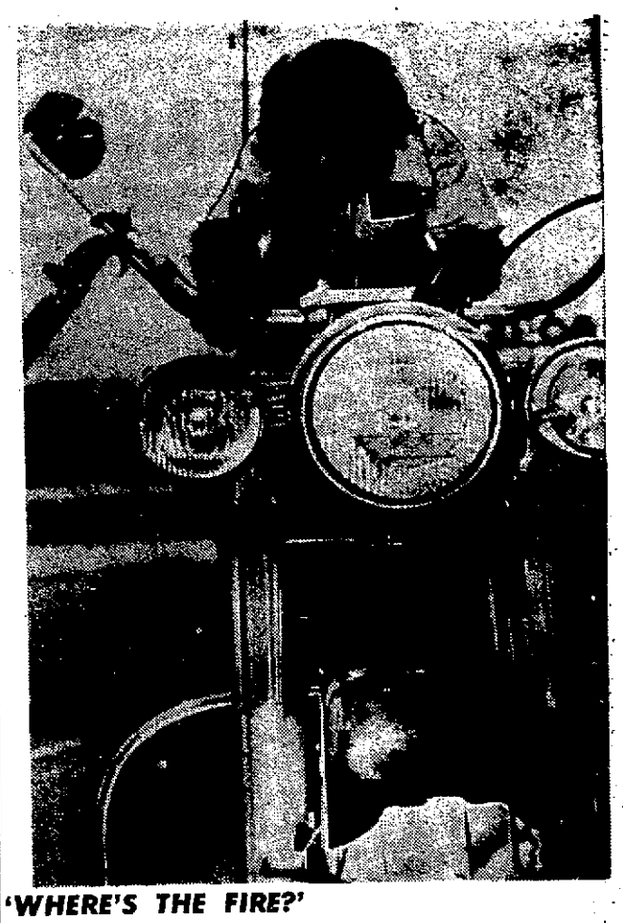

Both tanks will have underwater viewing windows and seats above where visitors may watch the specimens and the six daily feedings by divers.

The fish have been gathered by special crews during the past six months and transferred to the completed tanks from holding areas at Catalina Island and the outer harbor.

Still under construction or in the planning stage for the Marineland area are a shopping center, hotel and restaurant.

The oceanarium, patterned after the famed Marineland in Florida, is being built by the George Fuller Co. and was planned by Architects Pereira & Luckman.

From the Long Beach area, the giant aquarium may be reached by driving west along Pacific Coast Hwy. or Anaheim St. to Western Ave., thence south to Palos Verdes Dr. South (25th St. in San Pedro) and west to the Oceanarium entrance. Two huge lots provide ample paved parking space.

FUNDS FOR LEUKEMIA WING

Children's Crusade Backs City of Hope

To raise funds for the new children's leukemia wing in the City of Hope, nonsectarian national medical center at Duarte, Long Beach today opens a Children's Crusade.

Parents will be asked to sign up their children as "Little Helpers" at one dollar each. Contributions may be sent directly to the campaign chairman, Mrs. Don Bowers, 422 E. 19th St.

Each Little Helper will receive a Roy Rogers button and membership card.

The drive will end Aug. 29 with a Hope Regatta at Marine Stadium, sponsored by the Junior Sportsmen in co-operation with the Los Angeles Speedboat Association.

Founded 40 years ago in two tents in the desert of San Gabriel Valley, the City of Hope has become a world-known institution. Doctors, research experts and technicians come from countries as far apart as India and Great Britain to study the latest developments in cancer research, leukemia, tuberculosis and heart diseases amenable to surgery.

In the children's department, parents—especially mothers because usually fathers are the breadwinners—are urged to stay all day with the young patients, bathing, feeding and learning to care for them if and when they are able to return home.

Red Men Locate Convention Here

Howard Jones, newly appointed manager of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, announced Saturday that this city has been selected as the 1955 state convention site by the California chapter of the Improved Order of Red Men and Degree of Pocahontas.

Approximately 750 delegates are expected for this convention, scheduled for Aug. 20-26 next year. It will be the fifth time the group has convened here since 1940.

Selection of Long Beach as site for the 1955 convention was made this week by delegates attending the 1954 meeting at Stockton. Sacramento also had sought to serve as host to next summer's convention.

CROP TALKS SCHEDULED

Rev. Fr. William Berry visits a little leukemia patient at the City of Hope, where ailing ones will benefit from Long Beach Children's Crusade. Hope Regatta in Marine Stadium will close fund drive.

Attorney Named to Fill School Commission Job

Appointment of Attorney Lyman W. Lough to fill the unexpired term of the late Henry D. Lawrence on the personnel commission of Long Beach Board of Education was announced Saturday.

Attorney Lough was appointed by the executive director of the state personnel board to the local commission.

Operating under state control, the commission deals with problems concerning the classified employes—caretakers, secretaries and clerks—of the school system.

Lough has resided in Long Beach since 1920. He attended Poly High School, Long Beach City College and Southwestern Law School and was associated with Long Beach Building and Loan Co. from 1935 to 1950 with exception of three years of military service.

Robbery Jury Hung, Court Plans Retrial

Unable to reach a verdict after two days of deliberation, a jury trying two men on robbery and kidnaping charges was dismissed Saturday by Superior Judge Beach Vasey.

Judge Vasey ordered the defendants, James G. Taylor, 19, of 2829 E. Anaheim St., and Joseph D. Martineau, 22, of 1481 Warren Ave., to appear Tuesday at 9:15 a.m. for setting of a new trial date.

Taylor and Martineau are charged with taking Wilburn W. Rogers, 209 E. 46th St., from a cafe last May 25 and to a motel where they tried to hold him prisoner until he could withdraw $4,000 from his bank.

Taylor ran when police drove up to the motel on a routine check but was captured.

Martineau, police said, escaped with Rogers but was struck with a vodka bottle by his prisoner and later put under arrest.

The men are also charged with taking $100 at gunpoint from Rogers wallet.

Both Taylor and Martineau claimed they merely took Rogers, at his request, to the motel and denied they robbed him.

NO ROLL CALL

It'll Be Picnic for Councilmen

Councilmen won't be on the receiving end at the annual city employes' picnic Saturday in Recreation Park.

They will be on the working end—waiters.

Councilwoman Ruth Bach disclosed Saturday night that members of the Council have accepted the invitation to serve as waiters at the picnic. She declined to state whether that means "singing waiters."

A barbecue lunch is slated for 12:30, followed by sports for city employes, their spouses, and the small fry.

Arnold Named to Racial Study

Jack T. Arnold, 6060 Lewis Ave., manager of the Culinary Alliance and Hotel Workers Union, has been named a member of the Los Angeles County Committee on Human Relations.

In a letter apprising Arnold of his appointment, Supervisor Herbert C. Legg wrote: "This committee seeks the causes of racial tensions and attempts to eliminate those causes. It is further assigned to devise all possible means of preventing racial conflict, working in co-operation with other agencies dedicated to that purpose."

McCarthy to Talk in San Diego Soon

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Republican Party leaders said Saturday that 200 tickets already had been sold for a campaign-fund-raising dinner talk by Sen. Joseph McCarthy here next Saturday night.

Retired Navy Rear Adm. Leslie E. Gehres, chairman for the affair, said he understood McCarthy was coming to California especially to attend the dinner.

The Wisconsin senator will be repeating a visit he made at about the same time last year.

CONVENTION TELECAST

Visiting Firemen to See 'Rescues'

Dramatic "rescues" of persons from "burning buildings" by Long Beach firemen using the new canvas lifesaving chute will be televised by KTLA in the "City at Night" program Thursday night.

The firemen, under Chief Frank S. Sandeman, will stage the demonstration at 10:30 p. m. Thursday in front of Municipal Auditorium as a high point of the 59th annual conference of the Pacific Coast Inter-Mountain Association of Fire Chiefs opening here Monday. The firemen will operate aerial ladders and new fire-fighting equipment shown at the convention.

With the life-saving chute in use here, 40 persons can coast to safety from a window in 10 minutes, says Chief Sandeman.

Exhibits including fire-fighting, fire alarm, airplane crash fire-fighting and emergency radio equipment will be open to the public Wednesday night.

Thursday the fire chiefs will go to Camp Pendleton to watch fire-fighting by use of helicopters and airplanes.

Six hundred delegates will attend the conventions of fire chiefs and the ladies auxiliary, according to Chief Sandeman, official host. Fire chiefs are expected from the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain area plus Hawaii, Alaska and Sweden. The convention last was held in Long Beach in 1946.

Fire Chief Association officers are: President, J. L. Stevenson, Stockton; first vice president, J. K. Piercey, Salt Lake City; second vice president, S. H. Edmondson, Pasadena; secretary-treasurer, Jay W. Stevens, San Francisco; directors, William Batchelor of Pendleton, Steve Taylor of Boise, Gayle V. Coger of Fresno; exhibits chairman, L. C. Canning of Midvale, Utah.

Auxiliary officers: President, Mrs. James Caldwell of Ellensburg, Wash.; first vice president, Mrs. E. C. Kuehner of Chehalis, Wash.; second vice president, Mrs. Robert P. Long of Lemoore, Calif.; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Thomas M. Lane of Alameda.

Convention speakers will include Chief Sven Sonnerberg of Malmo, Sweden; C. L. Bolz, former Pasadena fire chief and now professor in public administration at USC; R. M. Bugbee of Boston, representing the American District Telegraph Co.; Harry V. Dobson, chief electrical inspector of Santa Barbara; Warren Y. Kimball, editor of the magazine "Firemen"; Dr. John D. Gerletti, former associate professor of public administration at USC, now secretary-manager of the International Association of Fire Chiefs; Mrs. Muriel Morse, assistant general manager of the Civil Service Department, Los Angeles, the first woman to address this group. Program chairman will be Chief John H. Alderson of Los Angeles.

A get-acquainted dance is slated for 9 p. m. Tuesday in the Pageant Room of the Wilton Hotel, with music by the Long Beach Fire Department orchestra, directed by Milford Sams.

Richard Graves, Democratic candidate for governor, former executive secretary of the League of California Cities will address the closing banquet at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the Wilton.

Officers will be elected Wednesday and installed Thursday night.

Events for the women will be luncheon Tuesday at Hilltop Cafe, Signal Hill; luncheon Wednesday at Knotts' Berry Farm, Buena Park; brunch and fashion show Thursday in the Roof Garden Room at the Lafayette Hotel.

Ski Show, Regatta Listed in City's First Aqua-Fair

Plans for the city's first Aqua Fair on Sept. 17, 18 and 19, featuring all forms of water events, were announced Saturday by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Developed under the auspices of the Chamber's Tourist and Special Events Committee, the three-day water festival is primarily designed to spotlight Long Beach as the aquatic sports center for Southern California.

Events which will be presented in the citywide water fair include water ski jumping exhibitions, swimming meets, sailboat regattas, speedboat races, adult and junior fishing derbies and water ski show. The free programs will be scheduled in several aquatic recreational areas, such as Marine Stadium, Alamitos Bay, beachfront waters and swimming pools.

In addition, the Chamber announced there would be demonstrations in various phases of water safety as well as some military air-sea rescue operations.

Winners will be awarded prizes in all sporting classifications.

Included in the organizations cooperating in the planning of attractions are the Recreation Commission, Sport Fishing Landings, Long Beach Boat and Ski Club, Alamitos Bay Yacht Club and military and city officials.

Albert G. Davis, past Chamber president, named as general chairman of the project, said, "The main purpose in sponsoring the 'Aqua-Fair' is to focus the public's attention on Long Beach and its great aquatic areas which are capable of providing so much excellent recreation for all ages."

"We are confident that this fair will grow larger each year and offer more and more spectacular and thrilling water events," Davis said.

SKI FOR TWO

Norma Williams and Bob Schmid illustrate the kind of water capers scheduled for the first Long Beach Aqua-Fair. Dates for the show are Sept. 17, 18, 19.

First Rhode Island Red Feted--That's Fowl News

LITTLE COMPTON, R. I. (U.P.) About 3,000 persons turned out Saturday to honor a chicken by eating 1,500 of its descendants.

The occasion was the 100th anniversary of the birth of the first Rhode Island red. Scene of the afternoon Rhode Island red barbecue was the grassy common in this quaint 300-year-old village where the first bird popped from its egg.

State officials, poultrymen, villagers and chicken lovers nibbled chicken with an appreciative palate despite overcast skies that at one point threatened to extinguish their enthusiasm.

Almost within aroma distance of the barbecue is the farm where, according to loyal Rhode Islanders, the first Rhode Island red pecked through its shell.

Seems the first red was conceived by mating a giant red Chittagong rooster from India with a Cochin China pullet. That was accomplished by Capt. William Tripp of Little Compton and John Macomber from near-by Westport, Mass.

In 1925, Rhode Island red poultrymen wanted to put up a monument to Tripp's and Macomber's brain child. But no one could agree where the monument should be erected.

Rhode Islanders wanted it in Rhode Island, specifically in Little Compton. But Fall River, Mass., home of the first Rhode Island red club, wanted the monument erected in their city.

The two communities bickered back and forth until a compromise was reached. A plaque was placed in the hamlet of Adamsville, R. I., about half way between the two rivals.

But Saturday Rhode Islanders felt that history was set straight. A new bronze plaque was dedicated. It is situated along the roadside near the original Tripp farm in Little Compton.

Security Probers Will Hear Views of Stratemeyer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee announced Saturday that Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, former commanding general of the Far East Air Forces, will testify Wednesday at a public hearing in Orlando, Fla.

Another high-ranking retired officer, Gen. Mark W. Clark, recently appeared before the subcommittee and urged a break in diplomatic relations with Russia and her satellites and efforts to turn the United Nations into an organization against Russia.

Clark's views promptly drew a dissent from President Eisenhower, a former comrade in arms.

'Kinderlift' Ended; 1440 Get Vacations

BERLIN (U.P.)—The U. S. Air Force Saturday ended its "Operation Kinderlift" which flew 1,440 German children from Berlin to West Germany for vacations.

The last planeload of returning youngsters landed in Berlin. The children, mostly from refugee families, stayed with West German foster parents during their holidays.

It Was a Form of Lend-Lease

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A Beirut landlord who tried to play an ancient trick for fooling taxgatherers had the tables turned on him by his tenant with an equally ancient trick. The landlord asked the apartment dweller to sign three leases which he himself had already signed: One 25 per cent higher than the rent she'd actually agreed to pay and which he wished to show any prospective buyers of the property; one showing the actual rent—intended to be the valid lease; one 25 per cent lower than the rent she'd agreed to pay—for the tax collector.

The obliging tenant signed all three but then tore up the first two. She now pays 25 per cent less rent.

Left Calling Card---Police Do Calling

NEW BERN, N. C. (U.P.)—A housewife identified a young Cherry Point Marine Saturday as the youth who crawled into bed beside her and fled without his trousers when she awakened and screamed.

Mrs. James C. Tyndall told police she reached out and took his wallet from his trousers left beside the bed. The youth, who had dashed into another room, slipped back into the bedroom, retrieved his trousers and fled from the house.

Police, using identification cards from the wallet, arrested Pvt. Ronald G. Glessner, 18, of Wheeling, W. Va., and held him without bond.

Glessner was charged with first degree burglary, a capital offense in North Carolina, and with attempted rape.

Stars Nip Angels in 12-Inning Thriller

9th in Row for Lemon

Indians Increase AL Lead

BALTIMORE (UP)—Larry Doby slammed a bases-loaded triple with two out in the sixth inning to send Cleveland on its way to a 4-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night and increase the Indians' American League lead to 4½ games over the New York Yankees.

The Orioles touched Bob Lemon for a run in the first inning, but the Indian righthander slammed the door in their faces after that to win his 18th game of the season against only five losses, and his ninth straight. Lemon gave up eight hits as he walked five and struck out three. He was helped out of two tight spots by a pair of double plays.

Fireballer Bob Turley was the victim of Doby's long smash to left center. It was the second time that Doby had personally beaten the Oriole right-hander. Exactly four months ago, on April 21, Doby hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth inning to beat Turley, 2-1, after Al Rosen had broken up a no-hitter by ramming a hit to left.

The victory was Cleveland's 15th in the last 17 games and the loss ran Baltimore's losing streak to 11 games, the Orioles' high for the year. Twice before this season, the Orioles had dropped 10 in a row.

Through the first four innings, Turley did not give up a hit. But Rosen broke the spell with a leadoff single in the fifth.

In the sixth inning, Turley contributed to his own downfall by walking Sam Dente and, after Jim Hegan's attempted sacrifice bunt was turned into a forceout and Lemon struck out, Al Smith also walked. Bobby Avila laid down a perfect bunt for a hit to load the bases and Doby cleared them with a 390-foot clout to left center.

The Indians pulled Lemon out of his toughest hole in the fourth inning when they reeled off a triple play. With Vern Stephens on second and Clint Courtney on first on two straight singles, Jim Fridley lined to Lemon, who threw to second, doubling Stephens. The relay to first pulled Vic Wertz off the bag, but Courtney overslid it and was tagged for the third out.

Red Sox Trip Yankees, 10-9

BOSTON (UP)—Don Lenhardt's 12th inning single with the bases loaded brought the Boston Red Sox from behind Saturday, to edge the New York Yankees, 10-9, before 25,003 fans at Fenway Park.

The Yankees suffered another severe blow when Outfielder Gene Woodling broke his right thumb backing up against the leftfield wall. He probably will be out for the rest of the season.

There were two away when Lenhardt belted the single off Whitey Ford to score Sammy White and Billy Consolo, ending a four-hour and one minute long ball game. It was the second Boston victory in a row over the second place Yankees, faltering in their pennant fight.

Russ Kemmerer was the winner and Ford the loser. The suspenseful contest saw the Bombers overcome a 5-1 deficit and go ahead 6-5 on a three-run homer in the eighth by pinch-hitter Hank Bauer.

JOHN LANDY

Landy Mile Mark OKd

BERN (AP)—John Landy's magnificent 3:58 mile was approved officially as a world record Saturday by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

The Australian runner established the mark at Turku, Finland, last June, clipping 1.4 seconds off Roger Bannister's record which had been approved only a few days before.

Also approved by the federation was American Bud Held's 263-foot, 10-inch javelin throw of Aug. 8, 1953, at Pasadena, Calif.

Australia's Hec Hogan got his 100 yards time of 9.3 seconds approved. It was made last March 3 and ties Mel Patton's world standard.

Vic-Tony Tandem Topples Aussies

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Masterful teamwork, aided by a signal system, sent America's Davis Cup pair of Vic Seixas and Tony Trabert into the finals of the National Doubles Tennis Tournament Saturday with a sparkling 8-6, 8-6, 5-7, 6-4 victory over Australia's Rex Hartwig and Neile Fraser.

The two-hour, 15-minute struggle which prevented an all Australian men's finish, sends America's top-seeded team against the Aussies No. 1 tandem of Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall. They were 6-2, 6-4, 12-10 conquerors of Bill Talbert, New York, and Hamilton Richardson, Baton Rouge, La.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., beat England's Ann Shilcook and Helen Fletcher 6-1, 6-2 for the right to meet defending champions Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, in the women's final.

Seixas, the veteran Philadelphian, and Trabert, the youngster from Cincinnati, boldly set out to put the pressure on the Aussies' great doubles man, Hartwig, letting the 20-year-old left hander Fraser make his own misplays.

With Trabert's smashing service and net rushing and Seixas' skilled moves made by prearranged signals, the pair showered impossible shots at Hartwig's feet or placed them in areas where his returns were made off-balance and went into the net.

Leading two sets to one, Vic and Tony broke Hartwig's service on the first game of the final set and won the match in the 10th game when Trabert served a love game.

Hoad and Rosewall broke Richardson's service in the 21st game of the third set with the aid of two double faults by Ham.

Winning Run Scores On Saffell's Squeeze

The Hollywood Stars and Los Angeles Angels dueled through their second consecutive extra inning game at Wrigley Field Saturday afternoon with Hollywood finally scoring the winning run in the 12th inning to defeat the Angels 5-4 and regain the PCL lead over San Diego by one-half game.

Angel relief hurler Joe Hatten aided the Stars to the victory with a wild pitch in the final inning. Dick Smith singled, advanced to second on a sacrifice, went to third on Hatten's wild one and then squeezed home on Tom Saffell's bunt.

Lino Donoso, who relieved George O'Donnell in the ninth, as the third Hollywood pitcher, was the victor for a 16-5 record. Turk Lown took the loss for a 4-3 record.

Hollywood started off with a bang when Eddie Stewart slammed a homer after Smith walked for a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but the Angels copped a run in their half of the first and took the lead with two in the fifth.

Dale Long connected for his 21st homer in the eighth to tie it for Hollywood, 3-3, and the Stars jumped into the lead again in the 10th when Bobby Del Greco doubled with Stewart on.

Donoso threw away victory in the Angel half of the 10th with a two-base error that led to a tying run. He threw to first with no one there, allowing Vic Marasco, who had walked, to advance all the way to third.

Donoso bore down and struck out the next two Angels, but Bud Hardin singled for the 4-4 tie.

Casters Register Perfect 100 Score

In a tourney where the seemingly impossible has become a constant occurrence, Don Meyer of Burbank and Roy Norton of Santa Monica each recorded perfect scores of 100 to tie for first place in the dry fly accuracy event in Saturday's National Casting Tournament at the Recreation Park pool.

Meyer won the castoff with a score of 98.

The performances of the pair took on added color as Meyer, at 17 years old, and Norton, at 54, were the youngest and oldest competitors in the event. It was only the fourth time in 46 years that two 100 scores have been registered in this division.

Eight tied with 99 for third place and Long Beach's Cliff Wyatt and Steve Aleshi of Kansas City caused more excitement by each coming through with perfect scores in the first castoff. Aleshi won the third try and third place with a 99 to Wyatt's 98.

In the women's division, Kay Brodney of San Francisco won with 97 — followed by Mrs. J.

Rams Lose Lipscomb

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Coach Hampton Pool Saturday indicated he may have to rely on Charley Toogood to play both offensive and defensive tackle next Friday against the Cleveland Browns.

That's because the Los Angeles Rams' regular defensive tackle, 270-pound rookie Gene Lipscomb, is hobbling around on crutches. The club physician said Lipscomb didn't suffer any fracture in Wednesday's romp against the Washington Redskins, but because of all his weight, the healing process may extend beyond Friday.

WINNING SEEMS FUTILE

Hose Still 8½ Back

DETROIT (UP)—Bob Keegan gained credit for his 15th victory of the season Saturday but needed help from both Jack Harshman and Don Wilson in the ninth inning to preserve a 2-1 triumph for the Chicago White Sox over the Detroit Tigers.

Keegan, who walked seven and struck out six, issued a pass to Al Kaline to open the bottom of the ninth. Harshman came in to dispose of Bill Tuttle and gave way to Johnson, who fanned pinch hitter Hoot Evers and got Walt Dropo on a pop-up to short center to end the game.

Minnie Minoso got the White Sox off to a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when he led off with his 16th homerun of the season. It marked the first time that Minoso had hit that many homeruns in one season during his career.

A double by Nellie Fox, Minoso's single and an error by Fred Hatfield on George Kells grounder produced the winning run in the sixth inning.

The Tigers got one in the bottom of the sixth on singles by Harvey Kuenn, Bob Nieman and Ray Boone.

The loss was charged to George Zuverink, his ninth against seven victories. Keegan has been beaten seven times.

The White Sox win brought their season's record to 80 victories against 44 defeats for a .645 percentage, 18 points better than the National League leading New York Giants, but they find themselves still mired in third place 8½ games behind the red-hot Indians and four games back of the second place Yankees.

The Sox and Tigers square off again in a single game at Briggs Stadium, Detroit, today. White Sox Manager Paul Richards will start Billy Pierce, who has won six and lost seven for the season, while Fred Hutchinson will counter with young Billy Hoeft for the Tigers. Hoeft has won six while dropping 13.

Cubs Jolt Milwaukee Hopes Again

Once Over Lightly
by DAVE LEWIS

Many disturbing reports have been received concerning the ever-increasing might of Russia's athletic forces . . . particularly the Soviet track and field team.

I don't believe that the American sports public begrudges a foreign athlete any success he deserves . . . as long as that success is earned in a true sense of fair play which we demand in our own sports competition.

However, it is no secret that Russia is using athletics for political reasons and as a result the Soviet government is subsidizing its athletes to a point where they easily could be labeled out-and-out professionals.

While it is true that it is becoming more difficult to distinguish an amateur from a professional in almost every sport throughout the world, the manner in which the Russians are going about their international sports competition is creating a ticklish as well as a smelly situation.

The Russians failed to win a single gold medal in the track and field competition of the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki.

While the native Russians were no match for our athletes in their first major competitive appearance outside the Iron Curtain, they nevertheless showed much promise by placing high in several events.

IN THE OVERALL picture, participation in the '52 Olympics was a highly successful venture for the Russians despite the fact they had to build up their high point total in what we call minor sports. Nevertheless, their showing enabled them to capitalize on some propaganda which became rather vicious when aimed at the West and the U. S. in particular.

Since 1952, the Russians have been making intense preparations for the 1956 Olympic in Melbourne.

And this week in Bern, Switzerland, the results of these preparations will be seen when the Soviet track and field stars compete in the European championships which are staged every four years.

Times, marks and boasts from behind the Iron Curtain must be taken with a grain of salt . . . and that is why the Bern meet will be watched closely by American track and field officials since the competition will give us a much clearer picture of what to expect from the Russians in 1956.

Progress of most European countries in track and field—France and Italy are among the few exceptions—has been truly startling this year. With the 1954 season about three-fourths over, five European records have been bettered and more are expected to fall.

AND, OF COURSE, Roger Bannister of England became the first to crack the four-minute mile and Emil Zatopek, the great Czechoslovakian distance ace, established three new world records.

As far as top honors are concerned, the Russians are expected to take the lion's share in the meet at Bern. Germany and Great Britain loom as next best followed by Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Finland and Hungary.

Pride and joy of the Russian forces, of course, is Vasiliy Kuznetsov, who recently set a new European record in the decathlon with a surprising total of 7,292 points which has been surpassed only by Bob Mathias.

The Soviet star's detailed performances were: 100 meters, 11 seconds; broad jump, 22 ft. ⅛ inch; shot put 44-11⅛; high jump, 5-10½; 400 meters, 51 seconds; 110-meter high hurdles, 15.4 seconds; discus, 163-6⅝; pole vault, 12-9½; javelin, 198-10⅜, and 1500 meters, 4:54.4.

Carrying Hammer and Sickle hopes in the dashes is Ardalion Ignatyev, who will challenge Germany's Heinz Futterer in the 100 and 200, and collide in a major duel with Germany's Karl Haas in the 400.

The Russians likely will be blanked in the 800 and 1500 meters. Headed by Nielsen of Denmark and Boysen of Norway, who have run 1:48 and 1:48.1, six Europeans have run the 800 under 1:50 and eight others have bettered 1:51.

AND THE 1500 "metric mile" field looks much too fast for the Soviets with Bannister, Olympic champion Joey Barthel, Denis Johansson of Finland and Jungwirth of Czechoslovakia.

Zatopek, greatest distance runner of all-time, is the man to beat in the 5,000 and 10,000-meter runs although it is reported he wasn't in the best of health during the month of July when he was beaten by Kovacs of Hungary by 10 yards in the 10,000.

Russia's Vladmir Kuts looms as Zatopek's chief rival in the 5,000 while the Soviets hope to press Zatopek and Kovacs in the 10,000 with Basalayev and Ivanov. Although the latter pair's times are the third and fourth best recorded this season in Europe, they don't figure to upset the top two.

Bulanchik, who was fourth behind three Americans in the 110-meter hurdles at Helsinki in '52, is still Russia's best high hurdler, but his times indicate he hasn't improved very much—if at all. He was clocked in 14.5 in the Olympics while his best this year to date is 14.6. He's favored to win the event, though.

Yuriy Lituyev and Yulin are still the Russian's top two 400-meter hurdle performers. Lituyev pushed Charley Moore to victory in the '52 Olympics while Yulin placed fourth.

Canadian Football Opener on National TV Saturday

TORONTO (AP) — Canadian football goes into the United States for the first time next Saturday when the Eastern Big Four professional league opens its 14-game schedule.

The game here between the Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts will be carried by television on the National Broadcasting Company's coast-to-coast network. It will be the first of 13 games—all Saturday affairs—to be shown to American TV viewers in the NBC's big experiment to woo United States fans to the Canadian game.

NBC is gambling that Americans will go for the speedy, eye-catching Canadian game, which by its limited blocking emphasizes the individual ability of each player.

The big difference between the two games of football are that Canadian teams play 12 men, use three downs instead of four and allow blocking only 10 yards in front of the line of scrimmage. Unlimited blocking is permitted only on kickoffs. Safety men receiving other kicks are on their own in attempting to run the ball back.

There seldom are tie games, since a single point can be scored on a kick. The single, sometimes called a rouge, can be scored by a kick to the deadline or if the safety man fails to run it out from the end zone, measuring 25 yards from the goalposts to the deadline. Touchdowns count five points instead of six but conversions are the same, one point.

American fans will see a lot of familiar figures on their TV screens. Each team is allowed to carry 10 "imports" in addition to three other Americans who have outlived the "import" status by playing four straight years in Canada.

Larry Grigg, who scored the only touchdown in Oklahoma's victory over Maryland in the Orange Bowl last January, is the most prominent player landed by a Big Four team this season. He's the key man in the Montreal backfield which includes Quarterback Sam Etcheverry from Denver University; Alex Webster from North Carolina State and Chuck Hunsinger, formerly with the Chicago Bears.

GOOD REASON FOR HAPPINESS

Smiling Bobo Olson, who successfully defended his middleweight crown against Rocky Castellani Friday, is surrounded by happy family Saturday as he takes things easy in his San Francisco home. Olson, richer by $125,000 for his victorious fight, here is joined by (left to right) Carl Jr., 8; wife, Dolores; Vincent, 5, and Brenda, 4.—(UP Telephoto.)

Rocky Still Cocky, Asks Another Try

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rocky Castellani of Cleveland still isn't convinced that Carl Bobo Olson is too much for him. He and his manager, Al Naiman, want another crack at Olson's world middleweight title.

Olson still reigns as king of the middleweights after a 15-round decision over the 26-year-old Cleveland boxer Saturday night, a decision that had the unanimous vote of the referee and the two judges.

But Naiman, wealthy Cleveland industrialist who guaranteed Olson $125,000 for Friday night's match, apparently has a highly elastic pocketbook. He declared Saturday he is willing to offer another $125,000 guarantee if Olson will put his crown on the block again.

This caused a bright, happy light to glow in the eyes of Sid Flaherty, manager of Olson. "For that kind of a guarantee," he announced, "Olson will fight Castellani once every month."

Olson, 26, of San Francisco, bore scarcely a mark from the 15-round fight. He went horseback riding on the beach yesterday while Castellani was treated for an injured left hand. Naiman said X-ray examination showed the upper left thumb was fractured. It happened in the second round, he said, when Bobo blocked a left hook with his elbow.

But Castellani wasn't using that as an alibi. "I broke a bone in the same hand early in my second fight with Ernie Durando," he said, "and went on to beat him. I know I can do better the next time against Olson. I wasn't able to untrack myself last night."

San Francisco's campaign to regain its old reputation as a great fight town hung in the balance as the result of the fight's disappointing gate.

Seals Nod Oaks in 11

OAKLAND (AP)—Jim Westlake singled home Ted Beard with the winning run in the 11th inning Saturday as San Francisco edged Oakland, 6-5, for the Seals' third straight Pacific Coast League victory over the Acorns.

Adrian Zabala, who took over for Hiller in the ninth, was credited with the win, his 11th against seven losses.

Browns Down Packers, 14-13

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UP)—The Cleveland Browns edged the Green Bay Packers Saturday night, 14-13, after scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter.

The Browns' first score came in the early part of the game when halfback Sherman Howard went over on a handoff from the nine-yard line. Lou Groza then made the first of his two conversions.

While the Packers looked uncertain on the ground and got no place in the air, Fred Morrison went through center from seven yards out for the Brown's second touchdown.

Green Bay's ground attack picked up in the third quarter and George Ratterman, substituting for Otto Graham, was spilled on the Cleveland four-yard line. Cleveland punted and the Bays took over on the Browns' 40-yard line. After a pair of ground-gaining plays, Tobin Rote's pass to Billy Howton was good for 17 yards and the touchdown.

Bob Garrett, recently traded from Cleveland, made the conversion.

Veryl Switzer sparked the Packers' fourth-quarter touchdown drive with a 44-yard run. Rote's toss was caught by Howton who fell over the line for the second tally. Garrett missed the conversion.

Giants '11' Lambasts Cardinals

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP) — The powerful New York giants rolled almost at will against the sluggish Chicago Cardinals Saturday night to score a 26-0 victory in a professional football exhibition game before 13,000 fans here.

Veteran Chuck Conerly pitched three touchdown passes to End Bill Stribling in the first half and Halfback Frank Gifford plunged for another score in the waning moments of the game.

It was the first loss in three starts for the Cards, whose passing attack never threatened and whose running attack never seriously challenged the New York goal.

Conerly went to work midway in the first period, climaxing a drive from midfield with a 21-yard touchdown pitch to Stribling. He collected two more scores in the second period on tosses of 14 and 24 yards to the sticky-fingered end. After a scoreless third period, the Giants, added another TD with five minutes to go when Gifford ended a 60-yard march with a one-yard dive into the end zone.

The Cards attack was so inept they failed to collect a first down until midway in the third period when Fullback Johnny Olszewski romped 30 yards to the Giant 22-yard line, Chicago's deepest penetration. End Pat Summeral attempted a field goal from the 30, but missed. He tried again in the fourth period from the 36-yard line, but it was wide.

The Giants rolled up 340 yards net rushing and passing and completed 8 of 15 passes. The Cards picked up only 62 yards rushing, but completed 16 of 27 passes, mostly in the final period.

Canada Cuppers Win, Keep Hopes Alive

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Canada kept its Davis Cup hopes alive Saturday when Lorne Maine and team captain Brendan Macken downed Mexico's "second string" doubles combination.

Racking up the first Canadian victory of the series, Maine and Macken scored an easy 7-5, 5-7, 6-3, 6-2 win over 35-year-old Francisco Guerrero Arcocha and young Francisco Contreras.

Friedrich Drops First U.S. Bout

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Hans Friedrich, highly touted German heavyweight prospect, lost his first fight in the United States Saturday night as undefeated Jack Scheberries of San Jose won a close 10 round unanimous decision in the main event at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Friedrich weighed in at 201 pounds to Scheberries 198. There were no knockdowns, but the Californian staggered Friedrich in the seventh and again in the last round with stinging right hooks to the body and jaw.

It was Scheberries' 10th straight win in professional ranks. Friedrich had a 15 and one record in European campaigning before coming to this country.

Davis Wins 100-Mile Springfield Feature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Jimmy Davis of Pacoima, Calif., grabbed the lead on the first lap and stayed there until the finish of the 100-mile AAA race at the Springfield State Fair Saturday.

Davis, averaging 92.57 miles an hour, was timed in one hour, four minutes and 49.06 seconds.

Chuck Stevenson, former Milwaukeean who now makes his home in Garden Grove, Calif., was second, finishing about 20 seconds behind Davis.

Don Freeland, Inglewood, Calif., was third; Bob Sweikert, Indianapolis, fourth, and Dick Peters, Plainfield, N. J., fifth.

49ers Rout 'Skins With 30-7 Victory

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers Saturday night defeated the Washington Redskins 30-7 in a National Football League exhibition before a crowd of 23,389.

The effective passing of 49er Quarterback Y. A. Tittle and the brilliant running of Halfback John Henry Johnson highlighted an otherwise loosely-played contest.

Jack Scarbath, Redskins passing ace, had trouble hitting his receivers, and the Redskin line was no match for the 49er offense. San Francisco took a 23-0 lead in the first half.

After fighting to a scoreless standoff in the first period, the 49ers broke the ice in the second quarter on a 40-yard field goal by Art Michalik.

Johnson scored the first touchdown from the six after the 49ers launched an offensive that took them from the Redskin 43 to a touchdown in four plays.

Pete Schabarum went over for the next San Francisco score from the 10, and Johnson set up the third TD by charging 51 yards to the Redskin one. Joe Arenas went over for the tally.

The 49ers picked up another seven points in the fourth when Tittle passed to Bill Jessup from the one after Johnson set up the scoring chance with a drive from the 10.

Washingtons' lone touchdown drive started after Ray Collins recovered Johnson's fumble on the 49er 25. Seven plays later Rob Goode plunged over from one foot out. Ben Agajanian converted.

Seattle Pulls Triple Play, Spills Bevos

SEATTLE (UP)—With the help of a second inning triple play, the Seattle Rainiers defeated Portland 4-3 Saturday night to run their winning streak to nine straight games.

Seattle registered the first triple play seen at Sicks' Stadium since 1949 in the second inning. With Granville Gladstone on third and Jim Gladd on first, Glenn Elliott hit a ground ball to third baseman Leo Thomas. Gladstone was run down and tagged out between third and home, then Artie Wilson, who made the putout, threw to second to nip Gladd who had rounded the base too far.

Meanwhile, Elliott, apparently thinking that three were out, wandered off first base and first base coach Bill Fleming started to push him back to base. Elliott was ruled out after Fleming's assist, completing the triple play.

Ward Whips Campbell for Canada Title

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — Harvie Ward Jr. of San Francisco, steady as par itself, wore down big Bill Campbell with relentless iron play Saturday and crushed his American Walker Cup teammate, 5 and 4, to win the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship.

Campbell's game completely collapsed in the afternoon after he had taken a one-hole lead through the morning round. It kept intact his bitter distinction of being perhaps the champion runnerup of international golf.

For Ward, a boyish-looking, 29-year-old automobile salesman who hails from North Carolina, the victory marked him as a distinct favorite to make it a double slam in the U. S. Amateur Championship at Detroit beginning Monday.

"I have never been much of a morning golfer," Ward said apologetically after the crowd of about 3,000 had applauded his triumph at the sedate London Hunt and Country Club.

Campbell, by the same token, proved he wasn't much of an afternoon player. After rallying twice to grab a one-hole lead through the morning round, he lost six of the first nine holes of the afternoon and soared five strokes over par in a crackup he seemed helpless to check.

Eight Quit Swim Test

FOLKESTONE, England (AP)—Joaquin Baptista Pereira, a stubby, 33-year-old father of three from Portugal, Saturday won the France-to-England International Swimming Race across the English Channel.

Eight of the 15 entries, who included three women, failed to finish the 21-mile ordeal which began at Cap Gris Nez, France, early Saturday.

Pereira, crediting the port wine he drank en route as "doing me a world of good," completed the race in 12 hours, 25 minutes. The record of 10 hours, 50 minutes was set in 1950 by Hassan Abdel Rehin of Egypt.

The only American entry in the field representing 12 nations was Bob Paysour of Gastonia, N. C. The 26-year-old ex-fireman gave up two miles from the English shore.

Glen Burlingame, the 28-year-old Chicago sculptor who failed four times in his attempt to swim the English Channel, made it Saturday in 14 hours and 10 minutes.

Braves Slump 7 Tilts Back

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The Chicago Cubs scored four times on four hits in the first inning Saturday and went on to jolt the pennant-dreaming Milwaukee Braves 5-2 and knock them seven full games off the National League pace.

The victory was the Cubs' second in a row over the Braves and dumped the Milwaukeeans seven games behind league leading New York and five behind second place Brooklyn. Both the Dodgers and Giants were rained out.

A triple by Ernie Banks followed by a home run by Steve Bilko, each good for two runs, were the big blows in the Cubs' four run first that routed Brave starter Chet Nichols with two out. Banks' triple followed a single by Gene Baker, a force-out grounder by Ralph Kiner and another single by Hank Sauer.

Sauer slugged his 34th homer of the season in the fifth for the other Cub run.

The Braves scored twice in the sixth when they filled the bases on walks to Del Crandell and Danny O'Connell and an infield hit by Bill Bruton with one out. Crandall scored on a sacrifice fly by Ed Mathews which Bob Talbot dropped, and Bruton came home on another sacrifice fly by Hank Aaron. Joe Adcock struck out with two men on to end the inning.

NATIONAL SINGLES PLAY

Good Chance for Bev Fleitz

Beverly Baker Fleitz, pride of Long Beach tennis, begins the quest of another major victory to add to an already lustrous season Saturday when the national singles tennis championships get under way at Forest Hills, N.Y. She leaves Long Beach Monday.

With the great Maureen Connolly still sidelined from her injury last month, any of four contenders are considered capable of replacing the San Diego lass as U. S. singles queen. Mrs. Fleitz stands out among her top rivals—Louise Brough, Doris Hart and Shirley Fry—because of a straight set victory over Miss Connolly earlier this season.

In men's singles, it doesn't make much difference to the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association who wins, as long as it isn't an Australian. An American winner will make the tournament a success.

The big man of the United States delegation is crew-cut Tony Trabert, the former University of Cincinnati student, who has dropped out of school to prepare himself for the professional circuit after next winter's Davis Cup challenge round. He's the defending champion, and as such, the man to beat.

Australia's aces, Lew Head and Ken Rosewall, who won the Davis Cup last year, are the main stumbling blocks for Trabert or any other American who hopes to come through. They're talented youngsters, but they can be beaten. In the Newport invitation two weeks ago, neither reached the semi-final round.

IN THIS CORNER
with DICK ZEHMS

A big boom looms along the pro golfing trail in 1955.

Author of this prediction is George Lake, Recreation Park pro and vice president of the PGA.

As George sees it, the 1954 tournament season, in which the "have nots" suddenly have become the "haves", is laying the foundation for something bigger and better come another turn of the calendar.

The old guard is on the wane. The new crop, closely matched in ability, skill and experience, is in the process of pushing the big names of yesteryear farther down the prize list.

"This appears to be a period of transition on the tournament circuit," reasons George. "So far this year we have had 25 different winners in 32 tournaments. This presages well for the future—new blood, new personalities and new faces.

"I'll go so far as to make this somewhat startling forecast for 1955. I don't think the Ben Hogans, Sammy Sneads or Lloyd Mangrums will win a single one of what the PGA considers pro golf's 'big five'—Masters, U. S. Open, Tam O'Shanter, Western Open or PGA tournament!"

Just to back up his contentions, George offered this list of tourney winners thus far in the 1954 campaign. It's a surprising list, as follows from Jan. 1 up to the Fort Wayne Open now being contended:

L. A. Open	Fred Wampler,	$4,000
Bing Crosby	Dutch Harrison,	$2,400
San Diego Open	Gene Littler, winner, but ineligible for first prize money.
Palm Springs	Fred Haas,	$2,000
Brawley Open	Bob Rosburg,	$1,000
Phoenix Open	Ed Furgol,	$2,000
Texas Open	Chandler Harper,	$2,200
Mexican Open	John Palmer,	$2,910
Houston Open	Dave Douglas,	$6,000
Baton Rouge Open	Bob Toski,	$2,000
Miami Four-Ball	Tommy Bolt-Dick Mayer,	$3,000.
Seminole	Lew Worsham,	$1,500
Azalea Open	Toski,	$2,000
Greensboro	Doug Ford,	$2,000
Masters	Sammy Snead,	$5,000
Tournament of Champions	Art Wall,	$10,000.
San Francisco Open	Shelly Mayfield,	$1,400.
Ardmore Open	Julius Boros,	$7,200
Palm Beach	Sammy Snead,	$2,000.
Eastern Open	Toski,	$4,000
Colonial Open	John Palmer,	$5,000
Western Open	Lloyd Mangrum,	$3,000
Virginia Beach	Pete Cooper,	$2,400
U. S. Open	Ed Furgol,	$6,000
Insurance City	Tommy Bolt,	$2,400
Motor City	Cary Middlecoff,	$3,000
Darling Open	Julius Boros,	$6,000
PGA Championship	Chick Harbert,	$6,000.
Kansas City	Wally Ulrich,	$4,000
All-American	Jerry Barber,	$3,420
Canadian Open	Pat Fletcher,	$3,000
Tam O'Shanter World	Bob Toski,	$50,000.
Fort Wayne		????????

No longer, obviously, do the Hogans, Sneads and Mangrums monopolize the circuit. No longer are they the only ones making trips to the bank for nice deposits of greenbacks. Their stranglehold has been relaxed—broken.

It wasn't until April that any of the old guard crashed through to the winner's circle. "Slammin' Sam" did it in the Masters.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS for this transition, for this parade of new faces to the mike to graciously accept the greenbacks.

"I think you can trace it to several factors," Lake expounded. "First, I would say that the change can be attributed to the fact that the settled national picture is a factor. The tournament aspirants have had eight years in which to grow and blossom into tried and tested champions.

"Next, I think you can point to the junior golf program in the development of these new champions. Fred Wampler, Gene Littler, Bobby Rosburg and Buddy Holscher, all of whom have done well on the tour and will do better, are products of junior, high school and college programs. They've been helped by the intense competition they received early in their carcers. Now they step to the full tee full of confidence and technically well equipped to battle the old masters.

"And with more emphasis being placed on junior golf each year, the nation is bound to produce even greater golfers in the future.

"This is all for the good of the game—the best thing that could happen. In the early stages of the tournament tour, there were perhaps a half dozen big guns who were capable of winning. Now there are 30 or more in every field!"

WHAT OF the immediate future? What names will replace the Hogans, Mangrums and Sneads? I asked George.

"They're already on the winner's list," he replied. "I would pick Toski and Littler as the two outstanding monopolists of the future, if there are any.

"Toski has a great swing. It will hold up. He has the shots, the disposition, the temperament. He's won four already this year.

"Littler, the former amateur champion from San Diego, also has all the equipment and the desire.

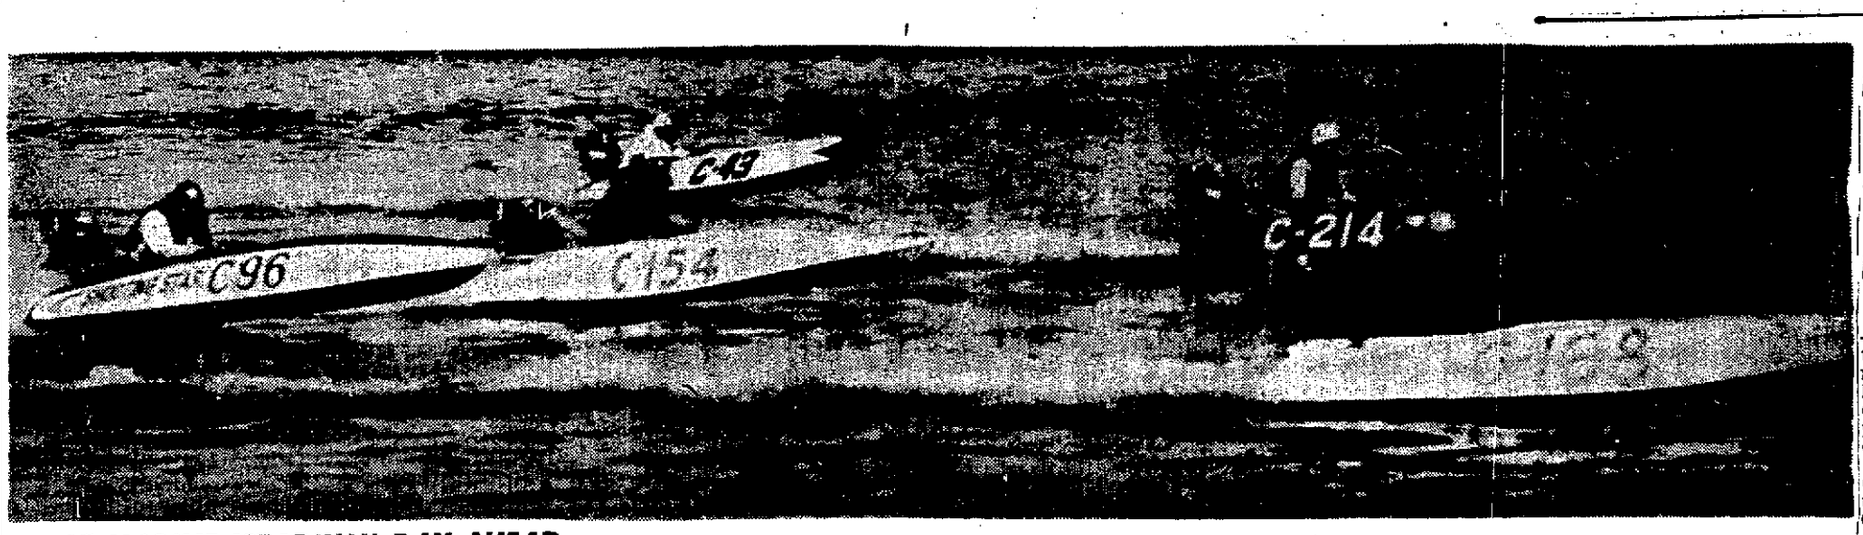

"And there are others on the way, yet unpolished but soon to blossom out.

"This year of transition will create an even greater tournament circuit in 1955. Why, the sponsors will have a field day. Pro tourney popularity should reach a higher peak than ever before next year. The shots will be better, the drama greater. You wait and see."

Remind me to get my loafers shined up for some long walks next January!

Ford Takes 1-Shot Lead

Demaret's 68 Aids U.S. Cup Team Bid

LAVAL-SUR-LE-LAC, Que. (U.P.)—Jimmy Demaret outshot Sammy Snead for the second day in a row Saturday and helped advance the American team into a tie for third place behind deadlocked Australia and Argentina at the 36-hole mark of the Canada Cup golf matches.

Argentina's Antonio Cerda and Roberto DeVicenzo, the defending champions, fired respective second rounds of 68 and 71 to move into a first place tie with Australia at the mid-point of the three-day international competition which began with 25 teams from 26 countries. Peter Thomson and Kelvin Nagle of Australia started Saturday's second round with a four-stroke lead over Canada.

Demaret matched the lowest score of the second round when he fired a four-under-par 68, while Snead improved on Friday's mediocre performance with a 72. Australia and Argentina were tied with 281 each. The tournament winds up today with two 18-hole rounds.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver again carried the Canadian team with a 68 round which included two eagles. Canada's 284 total tied the U.S. and Scotland's Eric Brown and Tom Haliburton.

As he walked off the course, Snead muttered "three putt greens." Actually, the West Virginian slammer three-putted only two greens. Once for a bogey on the sixteenth and again for a par on the 18th. Snead's approaches failed him. Too many of his approach shots slid past the pin or fell too short for the birdie putt.

Demaret shaved two strokes off par on the outgoing nine when he sank a 15-foot putt on the second hole and put his second shot eight feet from the cup on the sixth for birdies. He added four more birdies on the incoming nine.

New Card Pitcher Hits Pace

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.)—Gordon Jones, the pitching boy the whole team's talking about, has allowed only three earned runs in 24 innings for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The husky, round-faced right-hander from Sacramento, Calif., has had a hectic season. After a spring training camp session with the Cards, he was sent to their AA farm club at Houston in the Texas League.

But he failed to make the grade there and was sent to Omaha in the Class A Western League. He had a record of 10-5 when the Cards, desperate for pitchers, brought him up.

The 23-year-old youngster, who led the California State League with 200 strikeouts for Fresno in 1950 before a three-year hitch in the Coast Guard, has shown a blazing fast ball and a fine curve with the Cards.

But how can he fool the major league batters with the stuff that wasn't good enough for the Texas League?

Jones smiled at the question. "I give most of the credit to my manager at Omaha for that," he said. "It isn't exactly the same stuff. Manager Eddie Anderson, who had plenty of experience catching for the Cards and the Brooklyn Dodgers, helped me with my change-up and showed me how to improve my slider."

Braves to Rely on Thomson

MILWAUKEE (U.P.)—The big war clubs of the Milwaukee Braves suddenly fell silent, but it would be a rash move to count the Braves out of the National League pennant race today.

Two important factors could make a big difference for the Braves in the stretch drive.

There was ample time to bounce back from the cool-off—after 20 victories in 22 games which closed the Braves from 15½ games to 3½ of league-leading New York.

Despite five losses in the last six games which dropped Milwaukee seven games off the pace, they still had 36 games to go and were but seven behind in the loss column.

A second important factor to the Braves' pennant hopes down through the September stretch was that injured Bobby Thomson was expected to be ready for full duty.

Thomson, who broke his leg in a spring exhibition, had been pinchhitting a month and was left on base the first time in Chicago Friday to run for himself.

But right now the Braves hitting is far off the pace.

Cleanup hitter Henry Aaron had seven hits in his last 39 at bats and has driven in two runs in 11 games. Bill Bruton had not driven home a run in 12 games.

Joltin' Joe Adcock, who got four homers in one game at Brooklyn had seven RBI's in 17 games during which his batting average, best of the Braves, fell from .325 to .319.

Uses Only 26 Putts to Shoot 66

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (U.P.)—Veteran Doug Ford blazed around the Elks Country course in six-under-par 66 Saturday to take the third-round lead in the $15,000 Fort Wayne Open golf championship with a 54-hole total of 205, 11 under par. He needed only 26 putts to cover the 18 holes.

Ford was the third leader in as many days, and tournament officials predicted a third straight play-off will be necessary Monday to decide the $2,400 first-prize money. Three others were hot in pursuit of Ford only one stroke back.

Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa., won the play-off last year, and Jimmy Clark, Laguna Beach, Calif., outlasted the field two years ago.

Ford, Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., fired four birdies and an eagle three on the 470-yard ninth hole. He was out in 32 strokes and home in 34 to forge a slim lead over Pete Cooper, Tampa, Fla., the leader at the halfway mark, Jerry Kesselring Kitchener, Ont., and Johnny Palmer, Charlotte, N. C.

Cooper shot a 71 Saturday, Kesselring 70 and Palmer a 68, all good for 206 totals.

Wall, Bud Holscher, Santa Monica, Calif., and Bill Nary, Reno, Nev., also blasted out 66's. Wall and Holscher were in a five-way tie at 208, while Nary moved up to the leaders for the first time, in a seven-way tie at 210.

The leaders:

Doug Ford	70-69-66—205

Goering, 96, and Mrs. Lois Myers, 95.

Billy Peters' 99 took first place in the junior competition with Paul Rhodes and Warren Grinnel tied at 98 and Delano Huff in fourth with 97.

In the second major event Saturday—the ⅝ ounce accuracy bait—Marion Garber of Toledo, Ohio, tied the existing record with a cast of 99 to beat out Warren Rector, Tulsa, Okla., 97, and Jimmy Bass, Dallas, Tex., 96.

The women's play was an all-Long Beach affair with Mildred Wolff ending out Norma Collins, 97-95. Both had 93s originally. Maybelle Clark, also of Long Beach, was third at 92.

Today's schedule winds up the five-day tournament. Leading off will be wet fly accuracy at 8 a. m.; skish spinning accuracy follows at 10 a. m., and afternoon activity has ⅝ ounce accuracy bait at 1 p. m. and team accuracy bait at 3 p. m. All are scheduled for Recreation Park.

GERRY STALEY
Wins in Relief

Jablonski's Hit in 11th Trips Reds

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U.P.)— Ray Jablonski's bases-loaded single in the 11th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs at Busch Stadium Saturday night.

A pair of walks and an infield hit by Stan Musial prepared the way for Jablonski's tie-breaking blow.

Gerry Staley won his seventh victory in relief.

The Cards overcame a 4-0 deficit to take the lead on a two-run seventh inning and Bill Sarni's three-run homerun in the eighth, but Cincinnati tied it in the ninth.

WHO WON TITLE?

Local Driver in Quandary

Bob Willis of Long Beach, whose Roughneck won top points and thus the 1954 national championship of the E-Racing runabout class at Buffalo, N. Y., returned home over the week-end, not sure yet whether or not he is national champion.

Due to a highly-disputable "definition of rules" deal, he is under protest. Willis needs a big fat win Labor Day to get into the E-Class national high point running. If kicked out of his national title it will be a fatter need. So go the rev-artists.

Speedboat Regattas Billed Here

By BOB RUSKAUFF

The high-flying outboards; the swift-flying inboards!

These two great and combative divisions of motorboat racing will take over Marine Stadium the next two week ends in the last two race meets of 1954.

Sunday, Aug. 29, one week from today, some 90 outboards in nine fractious classes, will open competition at 12:30 in a race-meet, combined with an aquatic carnival, which is being sponsored by the Junior Sportsmen of the City of Hope.

Eight days later on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6, an inboard speedboat armada which Secretary Ruth St. Oegger says is "getting more ponderous with every mail," will compete in the ninth Labor Day California-National Sweepstakes regatta featured by the 1954 national championship competition for the "Mighty Atoms" — 48-cubic-inch hydroplanes.

The latter event, and with every apparent right, is being billed as "the greatest inboard race meet conducted in 22 years on Marine Stadium."

The Los Angeles Speedboat Association, which has already conducted two race meets at Marine Stadium during 1954, will handle the City of Hope outboard event next Sunday.

The "Hope Regatta" is luring a topflight field including two national champions—Orlando Torigiani of Bakersfield in A-hydro and Manuel Carnakis, the mayor of Bakersfield, in the C-racing runabout class.

Actress Roberta Linn, queen of the regatta, will present the awards to winning drivers.

2nd Round Play Today

Matches during the first round of play in the 25th annual Long Beach closed tennis tournament were concluded Saturday at Recreation Park but some 25 pairings are scheduled today in second round play.

Highlights of Saturday's matches were the fine winning efforts turned in by Phil Smoot, Sam and Tiger Waggoner in the junior boys singles. In mixed doubles, the team of Hoguet-Lohmuller was an upset winner over Harter-Harter.

Today's pairings:

9:30 a. m.— Pat Thomey vs. Joy McClenathan; Tedd Thomey vs. B. Passerello; P. Smith vs. J. Biessle.

11 a. m.—Hunter-Hess vs. Thomey-Johnson; L. Carnahan vs. H. Eveleth; N. Sklar vs. E. Baines; D. Willett vs. Crouch.

Noon—Harter-Pederson vs. Jardeleza-Hanges; Hunter-Richards vs. Benish-Smith; Hess vs. Lockyer.

1 p. m.—C. Felker vs. C. Evans; Benish vs. Acosta; Tate vs. winner of Thomey-Passerello; Waggoner vs. winner of Buck-Follasco.

2 p. m.—Hess-McClenathan vs. Thomey-Thomey; Reed vs. winner of Carnahan-Eveleth; Green vs. winner of Crouch-Willett.

3 p. m.—Passerello vs. winner of Sklar-Baines; Hoguet vs. winner of Evans-Felker; Green-Reed vs. Baines-Acosta.

4 p. m.—Richards vs. Harter; Roseman vs. winner of Benish-Acosta; Johnson-Brown vs. Reed-Morris.

5 p. m.—Mitchell-Bolton vs. Baines-Pierce; Felker vs. Jardeleza.

Geiberger Grabs Jaycee Golf Title

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Long, lean Allen Geiberger of Santa Barbara, Calif., Saturday coolly shot his way to victory in the ninth annual International Jaycee Junior Gold Tournament.

The 16-year-old California state Jaycee champion toured the 7,250-yard University of New Mexico course in 36-38—74 to fashion a 72-hole total of 296.

Phil Rodgers of San Diego, Calif., shot a 75 to give the California team a one-two finish with a 72-hole total of 300.

Patton Amateur Favorite

GROSSE POINTE, Mich. (U.P.)—A new champion is certain in the U. S. Amateur golf tournament starting Monday and it looked Saturday as if the winner of the gruelling six-day match play event might be a darkhorse or an unknown.

Gene Littler, the 23-year-old Californian who walked off with the title at Oklahoma City, Okla., last year, abdicated the throne by turning pro, leaving the Amateur without a defending champion for the first time since 1937.

A field of 200 of the game's "play for glory" boys, including five former champions and a host of other top stars, will battle it out over the 6875 yard layout of the country club of Detroit in man-to-man encounter for the vacant crown.

All of the talk around the country club points to Billy Joe Patton as the favorite on the strength of his performances in the Masters and U. S. Open.

But such highly-regarded players as Harvey Ward Jr., San Francisco, and Bill Campbell, Huntington, W. Va., finalists in the Canadian Amateur; former U. S. Amateur champions Charley Coe of Oklahoma City, Okla., Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N.Y., Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N.Y., and Ted Bishop of Weston, Mass.; Dale Morey of Indianapolis, Ind., runner-up to Littler last year, and two-time British Amateur king Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., have solid backing.

Once Over Lightly

of Kurchavov is a leading contender in the steeplechase.

The Russians figure prominently in all but two field events . . . the high jump and broad jump.

The Soviet high jumpers are finding it difficult to climb over 6-3 and likely will be blanked in the event which will feature Sweden's Bengt Nilsson, who set a new European record recently with a 6-8 11/16 effort. Meanwhile, six or seven broad jumpers have better marks thus far than the Russians.

The Russians appear to have the No. 1 man in the hop-step-and-jump in Leonid Shcherbakov, who has bettered 51 feet this year.

Albov and Chernobay have both cleared 14-1¼ in the pole vault and figure to challenge Sweden's Lundberg, who has the best mark to date, 14-4.

Otto Grigalka, a Latvian representing the USSR who was beaten only by the three Americans in the shotput at Helsinki, is favored to win the iron ball event from Jiri Skobla of Czechoslovakia, and is flirting with the 170-foot mark in the discus which could put him in the first five or six.

Three Russians are over 235 feet in the javelin with their great decathlon star, Kuznetsov, having registered a tremendous 256-6 effort recently to press the 259-foot throws by Hyytianen of Finland and Sidlo of Poland.

In the hammer throw, world record holder Sverre Strandli of Norway, Olympic champion Josef Csermak of Hungary and the USSR's "iron man," Mikhail Krivonosov, are expected to produce the greatest ball-and-chain battle of all-time. All three have hit 200 feet this year. Two other Russians are over 195 feet and still another over 190.

Bern is the Soviets' proving ground for the '56 Olympics. It will be interesting to see what they do!

Hippensteil in Parks Tennis Win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A powerful young Peruvian took a tennis lesson Saturday from wily Linn Rockwood, Provo, Utah, in the semifinals of the men's singles at the National Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

Rockwood, chopping and slicing, taught Alex Olmeda, Arequipa, Peru, that power isn't enough. Set scores were 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

Defending champion Clyde Hippensteil of San Bernardino, Calif., smothered Glenn Bassett, Santa Monica, Calif., 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Barbara Chandler, Boise, Idaho, and Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss, San Bernardino, won Saturday to gain the women's finals.

TWO RACING UPSETS

Stranglehold, 'Outcast, Errard King Gain Wins

Mrs. N. Gordon Phillips' Stranglehold, running the 109th race of his career, roared through the stretch with undeniable drive Saturday to win the $10,000-added San Diego Handicap at Del Mar before a turnout of 18,567 racegoers.

The 5-year-old California "iron horse" with Jockey Bill Pearson up, packed top weight of 122 pounds and ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:41 4/5, just a fifth off the track record set by Blue Reading.

Stranglehold hit the wire a full length ahead of Golden Abbey, with Blue Trumpeter third.

R. H. McDaniel's Last Round, coupled in the wagering with the winner, was fourth and Grey Tower finished last.

With only four betting interests in the race, there was no show wagering. The entry paid $3.70 to win and $2.20 to place.

In Chicago, Joseph Gavegnano's swift colt, Errard King, whipped High Gun and Hasty Road in the $115,250 American Derby to stake a strong claim for this year's 3-year-old laurels.

Errard King overtook the pace-setting Hasty Road on the final turn and surged in front to stave off the final drive of favored High Gun to win by two lengths.

If duplicating his important triumph in the recent Arlington Classic when High Gun ran third, Errard King garnered $68,900 first money and ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:49 4/5.

The winner paid $10.20 to win. Hassayampa, Sea o' Erin, Roemary B., Black Metal, Old Forge and All View trailed the first three in that order.

At Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Alfred Vanderbilt's Social Outcast raced to an easy three and one-half length victory in the $50,000 Whitney Handicap as Fisherman, the only 3-year-old in the field of eight, finished second by two lengths over Domquil.

Social Outcast ran the mile and one-quarter in 2:04 2/5 and paid $12.60 for winning tickets.

Two Yanks Win in Scotland Meet

EDINBURGH, Scotland (U.P.) — Ralph Fessenden of Illinois and Floyd Jeter of Los Angeles scored victories Saturday at the Highland Track and Field Games, but Josh Culbreath, United States hurdles champion from Morgan State, wound up fourth in the 120-yard hurdles.

Fessenden won the 440-yard run in 50.4 seconds with F. Higgins and M. Wheeler, both of Britain, finishing second and third, respectively.

Jeter, runner-up in the National AAU high jump in June, won that event by clearing six feet, two inches.

WAR COST TED, FELLER MANY RECORDS

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Ted Williams and Bob Feller need no endorsements to their greatness, but how many records did their war service cost them?

When Williams slammed two homeruns against Washington last week giving him a lifetime total of 359, he tied Johnny Mize as the sixth most prolific homerun hitter in baseball history. Ted is sure to surpass Joe DiMaggio's 361 for fifth but the next highest, Lou Gehrig's 493 and Mel Ott's 511, seem well out of reach.

Jimmy Foxx had 534 and Babe Ruth's fabulous total was 714. But unlike Williams, who spent over five years in the service since he first broke into the majors in 1939 the careers of Gehrig, Ott, Foxx and Ruth were uninterrupted in their prime.

In his nine full seasons Williams averaged 32.8 homers per year. On this basis, his five absentee years have deprived him of at least 164 more which, added to his present total, would give him 523. But this is without considering the wearying effect of lengthy war service and the passing years have had on muscles and reflexes.

TED WILLIAMS

The year before his first entrance into service, 1942, he walloped 36 homers and he returned in 1946 to hit 38, considerably above his full season average. He was recalled again in 1952 when almost 34 and saw active service with the Marine Air Corps in Korea. Again he made a comeback but time was running out.

Some of his records include: Last player in the majors to hit over .400—406 in 1941; most consecutive years leading the league in runs, five, and most consecutive years leading league in bases on balls, six.

Cleveland's Bobby Feller also was called into the service at the height of his career. He came off a 25-13 season in 1941 to spend four years in the Navy.

BOB FELLER

In the four years before his entrance into the service, Feller averaged 251 strikeouts per year for a total of 1,004. Adding this as an equivalent total for his four-year absence to his lifetime total of 2529 including this season's 52, he would have a grand total of 3,535.

The total strikeout lifetime record held by Walter Johnson is 3,497.

Feller won 26 games in 1946, 20 in 1947 and 22 as late as 1951. His lifetime victory total of 259 including the 10 he has so far this season still gives him a chance to enter the select 300-or-more wins list which comprises an even dozen baseball greats so far.

Feller shares the record for most no-hit games, three, and holds the record for most one-hit games, 11.

STARS OF TOMORROW

By BOB SKLAR

Divided up into equal 15-man East and West squads, thirty outstanding Catholic Little League performers will see action Saturday afternoon in the loop's annual all-star game, climaxing a successful season and an exciting championship race that has not yet been decided.

Sponsored by the Judge Walter Desmond Council of the Knights of Columbus, the clash will begin at 1 p.m. with vice-mayor Gerald Desmond and former big league umpire Beans Reardon on hand for pre-game ceremonies. Admission is free, according to league president Barney Walczak.

Three players will represent each club in the 10-team loop, gaining the honor by vote of their teammates. Each all-star aggregation will have a brother combination, John and Tom Gausephol of St. Cyprian performing for the East and Jim and Tim Rivard of St. Athanasius for the West. Rosters:

EAST

WEST

St. Lucy—John Carreiro, Jim Sharp, Matt Lorgs; Holy Innocents—Bill Waite Spencer Santiago, Marc Reichner; St. Anthony—Pat Horan, George Scott, Ed Marino; St. Barnabas—Tom Tucker, Bob Novotny, Bill Goulet; St. Anthanasius—Jim and Tim Rivard, Bill MmDiarmid.

CONTENDERS for the Catholic Little League championship have been whittled down to two going into the final week of the season with an excellent possibility of a playoff necessary to decide the winner.

St. Cyprian's holds a one-half game lead over St. Barnabas but both teams have a rough opponent to hurdle in the final week of play. Cyprian's (14-3) tackle St. Matthew's (12-4) in their finale Tuesday night and St. Barnabas (13-3) must overcome St. Bernards (11-5) Wednesday.

St. Athanasius blasted Holy Innocents Saturday afternoon in a contest originally scheduled for next week.

ALREADY POLICE LEAGUE champions after an undefeated seven-week season, the Northtown Merchants open their bid to annex the Chief's Cup today when they take on K&R Drilling in an opening round playoff game at 1:15 p. m. at Silverado Park.

In the other contest scheduled in the Chief's Cup playoffs Proctor's Sporting Goods meets Lakewood Center at 1:15 p. m. at Jordan High School. Winners of today's games will clash for the title next Sunday at Silverado Park, after which awards will be presented at a picnic. The public is invited to attend all events.

Two of Northtown's stellar performers shared individual honors at the close of the regular season last week. Ronald Osgood earned both the loop batting and pitching championships, hitting a robust .588 and compiling a 5-0 mound record with a 1.44 earned run average. Steve Bach paced the league in hits and runs batted in with 12 and in runs with 13. Final standings:

NORTHTOWN GIANTS took over the Elks 888 National League lead during the past week with a 3-0 triumph over the former leaders, Leever's Wildcats, and look like good bets to hold the first spot and qualify to meet American League pace-setter Proctor's Little Sports in the playoffs.

Regular season play ends this week with the Giants, boasting a 7-1 mark, holding a full game lead over the Wildcats with two games yet to go. The unbeaten Little Sports have clinched their loop crown with a 12-0 record. Today's schedule:

At Marshall Jr. High: 1:30 p. m., 7-Up vs. Paul's Market, Federal Savings vs. Ricarts, Lakewood Plaza vs. Pacific Valve, Los Cerritos vs. Belmont Yanks.

At Hughes Jr. High: 1:30 p. m., Cessna Flyers vs. Seals, Little Sports vs. Ray & Eddie's, Giants vs. Brown's, Leever's Wildcats vs. Uptown Optimists.

Glen Wedel turned in a no-hit, no-run pitching performance Saturday afternoon as the Downey Cardinal Midgets scored their 48th consecutive triumph, 10-0, over MacCullum Steelers in a Golden State League game. Rockets Travel to Inglewood for Playoff Opener

The Long Beach Rockets open playoff competition today, traveling to Inglewood to meet the highly-rated host nine. Goal for Bill Fiestner's Rockets is the semipro baseball championship of Southern California. Game time is 2:15 p. m.

Rockets will entertain Inglewood next Sunday at Recreation Park in the second game of their best two-out-of-three series.

Rockets' traveling squad today will consist of Kenny White and Tom Lloyd, catchers; Larry Jones and Dave Lavey, UCLA tosser, pitchers; Jack Graham, first base; Chuck Winslow, second base; Jerry Jeglum, third base; Red Meairs and Joe Cochran, shortstops; and Bob Carter, Ev Pearson, George Selfridge and Don Taylor, outfielders.

With two-thirds of the Rocket personnel sporting some professional experience, the local nine may develop into the tournament darkhorse.

Park Lawn Bowlers Sweep Meet Honors

Recreation Park Lawn Bowling Club members swept top honors in the annual club tournament held Saturday in conjunction with an exhibition match between a championship touring team of Australians and an all-star Southern California aggregation.

The international competition ended in a tie with each squad winning one match.

Recreation club tourney victors included Sherman Mix, Bob Barrows and Bill Jackson, first place in the first division; Jack Rose, Bob Filingham and Dr. Lauvscher, first place in second division, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howarth and Johnny Fowler, third place in second division.

The Australian team composed of Fred J. Winn, Glyn Bosisto, Neville Green, John Beck, Walter Maling and Edgar Collins, came to Southern California after competing in the British Empire and Canada Games. They will play another exhibition match at 9:30 this morning.

First Call for Alumni, LBCC Grids

First call for the 1954 Long Beach City College varsity and alumni gridders goes out this week, with the old grads scheduled to open practice Tuesday evening, Aug. 21, and the varsity hopefuls slated for their first drills September 1.

Both squads will draw equipment at the City College men's gymnasium, Lakewood campus, Aug. 30 and 31. The squads will meet Sept. 18 in the 13th game of the traditional series, now deadlocked at five games apiece and two ties.

Head coach Buck Andreasen's varsity squad will be scheduled for twice-a-day drills on the City College field until school opens Sept. 13. Coach Merle Decker's alumni will work out under the lights at Jordan from 7 to 9:30 p. m.

Working with Andreason will be veteran line coach Jim Clayton and newcomer Bill Hicks, who replaces brother Joe, called to Army duty in mid-July. Barney Artman and Eldred "Pinky" Vestermark, coaches, and manager George Marmion will again assist Decker on the alumni staff.

After so-so seasons the last two years, Viking coaches have adopted an air of guarded optimism about 1954 prospects. Fifteen returning lettermen are expected, including five from the 1949-50-51 squads, along with the best turnout of local prep stars since City College's banner years of 1950-51.

Among 17 lettermen not returning, UCLA-bound Gerald McDougall, the Viking's all-Southern California star last year, will be especially missed this season. Andreasen can find some consolation, however, in the return of such previous stars as halfback Glen Briggs ('50), quarterbacks Nick Uglesich ('49) and Ray Ramirez ('51), and guards John Manahan ('50) and Pete Ripa ('51), all outstanding performers.

Lettermen from last year's squad expected to return include backs Roger Hull, Buddy Bailey, Frank Patonai and Harley Bayne, and linemen Bill Gaw, Brian Miller, Bob Beardslee, Pat Peterson, Bob Mindte and Cleve Overall.

The perennially powerful Alumni are expected to have back most of the key players who have now won four straight over Viking varsity teams. Heading the list is Fullback Chuck Holmes, who recently turned down a bid to try out for the Los Angeles Rams. Holmes, a 215-pound one-man wrecking crew, ran wild for four Alumni touchdowns in last year's game.

Other ex-Viking greats expected to turn up in alumni uniforms include Bob Dowell, Ray Gaines, Mel Tebbutt, John Callard, John Arnold, Jack Brannon, Bob Keller, Neil Peek and Jack Price.

Stewart, Vincent Score Italian Wins

ORTISEI, Italy (AP)—Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles and Tony Vincent of Miami Saturday reached the semifinals of an international tennis tournament.

Stewart defeated Antonio Maggi of Italy, 6-3, 6-4. Vincent eliminated Italy's Ugo Medici, 6-3, 10-8.

Louise Brewer, another Yankee, gained the women's semifinals by trouncing Italy's champion, Silvana Lazzarino, 6-2, 6-1.

JUNIOR GIRLS

Meyerson to Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty-four girls, ranging in age from 11 to 17 and headed by defending champion Millie Myerson of Los Angeles, are scheduled to start play next Monday in the qualifying round for the sixth United States Girls Junior golf championship.

Miss Myerson is seeking to become the first girl to win the tournament twice and also to keep the title on the Pacific Coast, where it has remained for the past four years.

Three of Miss Myerson's strongest rivals also are West Coast girls, Ann Quast, Ruth Jessen and Margaret (Wiffi) Smith.

All-Stars Face Card '9' Here

With the Long Beach Rockets a traveling team today, the L. B. All-Stars take over Recreation Park today, meeting the Pacific Airmotive Cardinals at 2:15 p.m.

Starting for the All-Star nine will be Bill Osterhoudt, catcher; Alan Johnson or Jack Quail, pitcher; Stan Hubert, first base; Bob Mesa, second base; Ralph Adams, third base; Dick Rountree, shortstop; and Bob Decker, Mike Yeager and Loren Hilf, outfielders.

Johnson, former Jordan High star, and Mesa, who prepped at Poly, were members of Long Beach City College's state JC championship nine last season.

Add a little spice to your game and help further the athletic development of Long Beach youngsters.

That's what you'll be accomplishing by entering the 5th annual Sports Unlimited Hole-in-One Tournament to be held next Saturday and Sunday at Recreation Park, South Course, Lakewood, Meadowlark and Huntington Beach.

And all (?) you have to do to win is make a hole-in-one during the regular course of play. To such fortunate sharp-shooters will go a $200 set of matched clubs and bag. There will also be three closest-to-the-pin prizes of $15 and $5 gift certificates. Everyone is eligible.

Sports Unlimited has contributed much to the promotion of prep, junior, and YMCA sports. Let's place golf solidly behind them!

PUBLINX team play begins today with Brookside at Meadowlark, Willowick at Alondra Park, and Montebello at Rancho in championship flight engagements. Recreation Park drew a first-round bye. Results will appear in the Independent, Press-Telegram . . . A rain-soaked course notwithstanding play in the National Amateur Championships begins at Detroit Monday with a top crew of Southlanders including John Gray of Palos Verdes CC competing . . . Next big area pro-am is ticketed for Alondra Park, Aug. 30, with Frank Cormaci, Wayne Otis, Laddy Drake and Harry McCarthy early entries . . . Bruce McCormick set a new San Gabriel CC course record Wednesday with a 30-29—59, 12 under par. He fired 12 birdies and 6 pars to smash Ellsworth Vines' old mark by three strokes . . .

TEN-YEAR-OLD Tim Cameron posted notice of "things to come" in a big way for so little a man at Virginia Monday. Tim came in with an 85 over the difficult course—breaking 90 for the first time. He was accompanied by Dowell Lawson Jr. . . . Not to be outdone, father Sam Cameron turned in a spectacular 155-yard eagle on the 538-yard 18th hole at Virginia. The shot came out of the "bear-trap," a ditch in the rough, famous for causing unpleasantness. . . . Entries are still available for the Santa Ana City Championships at Willowick Labor Day weekend. Ditto for the Recreation Park Men's Club putting tournament, set for whenever the field is completed.

PARTICULARS recommends the new Southland Sports Journal, available at all courses, for interesting features and commentary on area play. Larry Gleason of the Circle Driving Range edits the golf page and his list of associate editors is staggering . . . Virginia's Jim Ferrie was selected as the alternate in the Morse Cup team matches which will precede the California State Amateur championships at Pebble Beach, Sept. 20-26.

THE DATE FOR the Virginia Men's Club championships between Ferrie and Del Walker has definitely been set for Wednesday. . . . Mrs. M. Kaller of the Recreation Park Woman's Club returned to the links this week in triumphant fashion after a year's inactivity due to a skiing injury, by shooting a 92 for fourth place in a club tourney. . . . Those trusty sharp-shooters, the Independent-Press-Telegram golfers, go at it again today at Huntington Beach. . . . Meadowlark's Bill Vail fired an eagle-2 on the 447-yard 10th hole of his home course with a 3-iron. . . .

HOLE-IN-ONE laurels to H. L. (Buck) Myers of 4340 East La Cara Street who aced the 93-yard third hole on the South Course while playing with Johnny and Cleo Berglund and Helen Myers. Ball bounced two feet from hole and rolled in.

HARRY BOUCHIER combined a 78 gross with a 13 handicap for a winning tally of 65 in the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes. E. M. Drum, 79-12, (breaking 80 for the first time) and O. M. Slosson, 78-11, were second, two strokes off.

In third at 68 was Dale Zink, 80-12, while grouped at 69 were E. J. Davis, 93-24, L. V. Cassaday, 80-11; John Connolly, 77-8; L. D. Lawson Jr., 76-7; Mel Collins, 86-17, and Dr. Malcolm Todd, 89-20.

Blind Bogey (78) and (79) victors were Chase McCoy, Henry Robertson, Bill Murrell, John Cone, C. F. Van de Water, Stanley Smith and Ralph Irwin.

ROUGH STUFF ON SKATES

Braves' jammer Hal Janowitz hits deck after taking crushing block (right to the jaw?) thrown by Ken Monte (left) and teammate George Vogt in recent roller derby action in Los Angeles. Both Monte and Vogt have been named to all-star squad that will face Braves starting Sept. 2 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Roller Derby Comes to Long Beach on Sept. 2

With only eight games remaining for the Los Angeles Braves in their Roller Derby series at the Exposition Park Armory in Los Angeles, the popular home town club is anxiously awaiting its opening games at Long Beach Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With Sept. 2 set as the starting date, the Roller Derby, and the Braves, will remain in the outdoor arena for a one-month stand with games being played on Thursday through Monday nights, inclusive.

The change of playing sites will be a welcome one to the Braves, particularly since Long Beach has always proved to be a popular race town attendance-wise, and also because it will mean the end of an 11-month stand at the Armory, longest in the history of the Roller Derby.

Capacity crowds featured the Los Angeles event for 48 consecutive weeks.

Starting with an all-star team composed of the combined array of stars from the Bay Bombers and the team returning from Honolulu, the Braves will conclude the race by taking on the champion New York Chiefs.

Almost sure to be named to the all-star lineup are such standout performers as Johnny Cazar, Ken Monte, George Vogt, Charlie O'Connell, Bob Venter, Loretta Behrens, Betty Boyd, Georgeanna Kemp and Carole Seifert, and possibly Ann Calvello.

Comeback in Majors Seen for Byrne

SEATTLE (AP)—The plate has stopped dodging the pitches of Thomas Joseph Byrne and the one-time wild man of the Yankees has become the Pacific Coast League's steady old man—and a red hot prospect for a major league comeback.

When he turned back the Portland Beavers 3-1 this week it was his ninth straight victory for Seattle's Rainiers and his 18th of the term, putting him in a deadlock with Roger Bowman of Hollywood for the league's flinging honors. He has lost eight.

The 34-year-old southpaw also moved into ties with Marino Pieretti of Sacramento for durability, pitching 21 complete games, and strikeouts, with 172.

But the startling thing about it—even to Byrne—is the fact that his strikeouts are outnumbering his bases on balls. Tommy has shared in a couple of major league "wild man" records—most hit batsmen (4) and most bases on balls (16) in a single game.

Nitehawks Take on Santa Ana

Joe Rodgers' powerhouse Long Beach Nitehawks, winners of the "world" championship last year, tangle with the strong Santa Ana Teamsters nine here Monday night at Park Ave. Field. Game time is 8:15.

Proceeds of the fund-raising contest will be used to send the Nitehawks to Selma (15 miles north of Fresno) where the "world" championships began Saturday.

The teamsters nine features Johnny Fouch, speedball specialist, and veteran Bris Bristow. They're rated one of the outstanding teams in the Southland.

Newcomer Ritchie Stephens will pitch for the Nitehawks. Rodgers tabs him one of the most promising young moundsmen anywhere.

The Nitehawks, winners in 18 of their 21 games, will depart Friday for Selma. Traveling squad will include pitchers Ted Carlsgaard, Jack Randall and Stephens; infielders Larry Silvas, Cleo Govette, Jimmy Jones and Clint Herron; outfielders Lou Novikoff, George Pearson, Bill Hull and Les Worden; catchers Stan White and Carl Zimmerman; utility players Red Meairs and Ev Juergens and Manager Rodgers.

Nitehawks, beaten only once last season and easy victors in each of their 1953 tournament games, have won 18 of 21 games this year, including four victories in five games against the San Pedro All-Stars, who in 1952 and '53 captured the National Congress Softball title.

Four Nitehawks received All American honors last year—White, Carlsgaard, Goyette and Worden, in addition to Manager Rodgers. Carlsgaard was rated best pitcher in the Selma tourney in 1953.

Nitehawks will work out here Tuesday and Wednesday. Their first round foe Saturday has not as yet been determined. Rodgers hopes local fans will make the journey to Selma, for the tournies probably won't be held in California again for several years. Next year it'll be in the Midwest.

Grandfather Wins 20-Mile Lake Swim

CEDAR POINT, Ohio (AP)—A 52-year-old grandfather from Whitestone, N.Y., swam the 20 miles from Pelee Island to this Lake Erie resort Saturday in 15½ hours in a race that four younger men could not complete.

Grinning and dripping, William Sadlo walked up the beach to the cheers of a crowd of several thousand and the arms of his worried, grayhaired wife.

"It was the toughest swim I ever made," said the balding athlete who teaches swimming in the New York City's Schools.

Snyder, Szabo in Rematch Against Rice, Blears Here

"Okay, okay," conceded matchmaker Louie Miller of the Long Beach Wrestling Club Saturday. "It's going to hurt my pride, but I'll do it."

So Miller signed Wilbur Snyder and Sandor Szabo for a return tag match against Tom Rice and Lord Blears to be held Thursday night at the Municipal Auditorium.

He made very plain two stipulations:

There will be TWO referees and there will be a TWO HOUR time limit.

Miller was still angry with everybody concerned after Thursday's mixup which ended with the referee cringing beneath the ropes and Snyder still swinging from side to side across the ring, caroming over anyone who rose to halt him.

Rice tried. Blears tried. The referee tried. And finally Miller jumped into the ring and tried. All four were tumbled like bowling pins.

Miller took every action he could think of. He held up the purses and plans to present his woes to the Athletic Commission. He was completely dazed by Snyder's actions during the intermission.

Snyder is usually a nice boy. Miller's pride was injured because it was the first time anyone has gotten the best of him in a ring in a long while. Snyder bowled him over several times.

The Rice-Blears teaming is a rare one and came about this time through an accident to Lord Layton, originally scheduled for the bout. But Layton was severely injured in a match at the Olympic Wednesday and was hospitalized.

Warren Bockwinkle and Karl Davis are scheduled for the 45-minute best of three falls semi-main. Two other bouts will be on the card, with Gene Lederman, Long Beach product, making his second pro start against Thor Hagen and Red Shoes Dugan meeting Hardy Kruskamp in the opener.

TROPHY FOR FISHING RODEO

Donnell Culpepper, Fishin' Around, has a look at the sweepstakes trophy which The Independent, Press-Telegram will give to the boy or girl catching the largest fish on Belmont Pier in the All-City Fishing Rodeo Thursday. All boys and girls 15 or under are eligible to compete. See today's Fishin' Around for details.—(Staff photo.)

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

This story is for the kids—all those youngsters 15 years of age and younger. The first citywide fishing rodeo is just a few days away. The date's Thursday, Aug. 26. The time: 6 a. m. to 1 p. m. The Place: Belmont Pier.

The all-city fishing rodeo is sponsored by the Long Beach Recreation Department and Better Fishing, Inc., a nonprofit organization for the promotion of fishing among the nation's juveniles.

There will be plenty of prizes, topped by a sweepstakes trophy to be given by the Independent-Press-Telegram. That award will be for the largest fish caught and the winner may be a boy or a girl. There will be another merchandise prize for the sweepstakes winner.

The Independent-Press-Telegram trophy is a handsome 15-inch-high gold cup, topped by a fish and appropriately engraved, with space provided for the winner's name. There will be no cost to the winner for having his or her name engraved on the beautiful award.

So boys and girls, better get those rods and reels working. If they're not working, get dad busy on them. You may be the winner.

If you haven't entered the tournament, see your playground director today, get an entry blank and fill it out. The city's playground directors report intense interest in the rodeo. One said that it would take a couple of busses to transport his youngsters to the pier, but he will get them there.

REGISTER AT PIER

If you don't register at one of the playgrounds you may sign up at Belmont Pier Thursday morning. Purpose of the playground registration is to get an estimate of the boys and girls who will take part in the rodeo.

And tell dad and mom not to worry. They can come along if they'd like to watch, but they can't fish. The city will have adequate protection for the children, with policemen, firemen and lifeguards co-operating to see that everything's safe. Even the Red Cross will have a first-aid team there if needed.

Charlie Richards of the Long Beah Spin-Fishing Club is chairman of the committee arranging for free bait. He reports that there will be live bait for at least a couple 6f hours, assuring the young anglers of a chance to catch halibut.

There will be plenty of mussels, clams and salted anchovies when the live anchovies run short.

And don't forget that you'll get hungry, so bring your own lunch.

Judges' stands will be set up in convenient locations and a loud-speaker system will keep anglers and spectators informed on the standing of the contestants.

MARLIN AND YELLOWTAIL

Those strange albacore still were missing Friday and no one seemed to know where to find them, but the barracuda came back in sufficient numbers to satisfy a lot of the ocean-going patrons.

Good news came from San Diego, where the yellowtail are staging a good comeback at the Coronado Islands. Boats there were returning to San Diego with between 100 and 200 fish daily.

The marlin season off San Diego and La Jolla was in full swing. Mrs. Billie Hoss, San Diego, boated her third marlin in two weeks and the 34th billfish of the season. It was a light-tackle fish of 188 pounds.

Mary Schuhmacher, 936 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach, got a marlin weighing 120 pounds on heavy tackle and Richard Hehr, just 10 years old, of Pasadena, boated a 125-pounder on medium tackle.

Light-tackle enthusiasts are having a field day at the Coronados with bonito. The water there is swarming with those fish and the total catch is running close to 1,000 per day.

TACKLE PERSONALS

The Department of Fish and Game will auction 200 guns, 16 spotlights and several rods and reels at 10 a. m. Saturday, Sept. 11, at the National Guard Armory in Exposition Park, 700 W. Exposition Blvd., Los Angeles.

Those items, confiscated from fish and game violators, will be placed at the Armory for inspection at 10 a. m. the preceding day and two hours before 10 a. m. on the day of sale. Proceeds from the sale will go to the DF&G Preservation Fund.

California's share of the Pittman-Robertson funds for the restoration and development of wildlife resources in fiscal 1955 amounts to $461,048. That money comes from the state's percentage in the federal excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition.

BEST TRUE STORY OF WEEK: A farmer testifying before a fish and game commission in Ardmore, Okla., last week said: "An open season on deer is not the answer to the crop damage the deer are causing. The hunters will do more damage than the deer."

Ohio Boy Triumphs in Nat. Caddy Finals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gene Cardi, 17-year-old Columbus, O., Aquinas High School junior, Saturday defeated Richard Burgoon of Carlisle, Pa., 2 and 1 in the 36-hole championship round of the ninth annual Caddie Championship.

SANTA ANA UNIT OPENS

Grand opening is scheduled for today of Stratford Lane in Santa Ana, another Cunningham Co. development. Luxury-type homes, one of which is sketched above, will be sold to veterans for nothing down.

No Down for Vets in Stratford Lane

The grand opening of Stratford Lane, the new Cunningham Co. development in Santa Ana, is today, announced Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., exclusive sales agents.

These distinctive homes are built by the Cunningham Co., prominent Southland builders since 1941. "If you know your builders," advises Mr. Hart, "and investigate his previous performances, you will have an idea what to expect from his house."

News to vets is that they can purchase a luxury-type home with no down payments — just costs and impounds. Prices are from $11,500 to $14,400, and houses are approved for non-vets at new low FHA down payments.

A variety of floor plans, as well as choice of several California Contemporary exteriors with living rooms front or rear, two, three or four bedrooms, attached or detached garages, combine to give the home-seeker opportunity to select the home which meets his individual preferences and needs.

Exposed beam ceilings, insulated, some models with hardwood paneling, select oak floors, view windows, extra large closets, two pullman-type baths with luxury-size mirrors, oversize garages, lots of cupboard space, thermostatically controlled heat, with forced air in some models, are but a few of the desirable features of Stratford Lane homes.

Stratford Lane homes will feature kitchens with Stanthony Venta-Hood and exhaust fan, lovely and lasting Formica work surfaces, built-in cabinets with natural wood finish, and garbage disposers.

'Carnival' Opening Today at Magnolia Manor Unit

A "carnival opening" that should make home hunting fun is planned today at Magnolia Manor when the West Anaheim home development holds its grand opening at the site on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway in West Anaheim.

Kiddie rides, free sodas and searchlights will greet visitors at the big Orange County home development that will offer a choice of 16 exteriors and 400 homes.

Built by Dal-Mor Builders and sold by Doyle & Shields, the Magnolia Manor "wonder homes" bring the buyer nearly 1,300 square feet for a full price of $10,150 to $10,750 and a "move-in price" for non-veterans as well as veterans of only $495.

Spaciousness, styling, planning and price are all part of the Magnolia Manor advantages, the sales firm pointed out and listed a score of features that point to a fast sell-out of the 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bedroom "wonder homes."

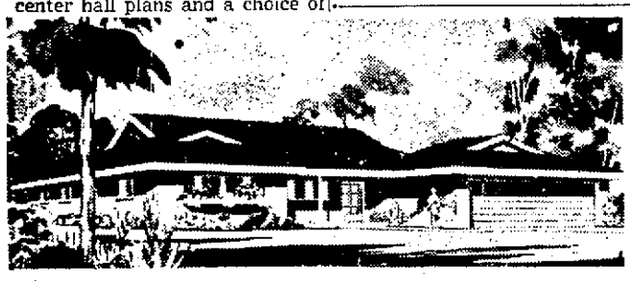

Front or rear living areas, breezeways, attached or detached garages, wooden kitchen cabinets, disposals, ceramic tile sinks, center hall plans and a choice of three-bedroom and den or four bedrooms were all listed as outstanding features.

Magnolia Manor is located on Magnolia Blvd. just off the Santa Ana Freeway in West Anaheim and is close to schools, shopping and main arteries that lead to Los Angeles, Long Beach, Garden Grove, Santa Ana and other large cities.

Many to Attend Realty Convention

Plans for representation of the Long Beach Board of Realtors at the forthcoming golden anniversary of the CREA in San Francisco Oct. 10-14 are being spurred upon receipt of notice that the program has been completed and a record attendance of over 4,000 realtors is anticipated, according to Arnold Berg, local president.

Already some 50 delegates have registered from Long Beach, according to Barbara Moss, secretary-manager. Some 74 sessions devoted to a variety of technical subjects on the conduct of the real estate business will be discussed.

LOW DOWN PAYMENT

This four-bedroom or convertible three-bedroom and den home with two baths is typical of the style and spaciousness featured at Magnolia Manor in their grand opening this week end. The Magnolia homes are built by Dal-Mor builders and offer a move-in price to both vet and non-vet for as little as $495. The new 400-home development is off the Santa Ana Freeway just east of Buena Park on Magnolia Ave. in Anaheim.

Dooley Garden Shop New Unit for Hardware Mart

A half-block long showcase is offered in the front of the new Dooley's Hardware Mart unit which was opened Friday. It is the new garden shop which operates in conjunction with the big hardware at 5075 Long Beach Blvd.

The wide, full height, completely glassed front and side permits full view of the entire interior of the garden store from the sidewalk or street.

Parking, customer loading zones and receiving and service departments are located in the rear of the store, adding extra shopping conveniences for customers.

Opening of the garden shop is another step in the expanding history of the Dooley store. It now is a block and a half enterprise while the original unit opened 34 years ago was a small store.

Charles R. Dooley, in announcing the expansion, said the buying public has widely approved the store policy of offering large stocks of hardware merchandise and appliances so they can do their shopping in one store.

Name Bechler on Bank Board

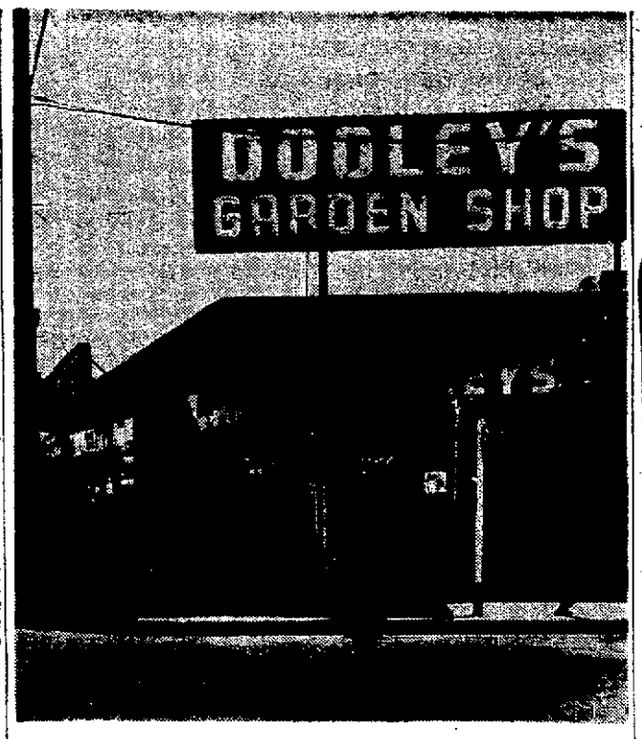

Edwin C. Bechler, prominent Long Beach creameryman, has been appointed to the advisory board of the First and Pine branch of Bank of America, it was announced today by Walter B. Havekorst, vice president and manager.

In his capacity with the board, Bechler will lend counsel to officers of the branch in matters pertaining to the interest and development of the community. He is president and manager of the Mt. View Dairies, Inc., and is active in numerous local civic and service organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Elks, University Club and the Pacific Coast Club.

The First and Pine branch board is one of a number throughout California which serve in advisory capacity to B. of A. branch officers in local matters. The board membership includes A. L. Parmley, chairman, and W. Ward Johnson, W. R. Darnell, Frank J. Parr, Frank E. Wall, Rex. L. Hodges, and Bechler.

Catholic School for San Pedro

Plans have been prepared for the Los Angeles Catholic Archdiocese for an eight room one-story school building for the Mary, Star of the Sea Church, 717 Cabrillo Ave., San Pedro. The building will be 120 feet by 32 feet.

ANOTHER DOOLEY UNIT

Opening of a garden shop with a half-block-long showcase window at the Dooley Hardware Mart, 5075 Long Beach Blvd., Friday added another major unit to the big North Long Beach store.

Promotion Head at May Co.

To Key Post With May Co.

The appointment of Walter T. Powers to the post of director of publicity and sales promotion of May Company's four Southern California stores was announced by Walter J. Brunmark, vice president and general manager of May Company.

In this capacity Powers will direct all advertising, publicity, and sales promotion activities of the West's largest department store.

The new ad head leaves his post as advertising and sale promotion manager of the Higbee Company department store in Cleveland to join the May Company.

Born in New York and a graduate of Notre Dame, Powers is married and the father of two young sons.

La Mirada Soon to Show First of Big New Group

Ushering in a new intensive community development program for the 2100-acre unincorporated city of La Mirada, fronting on the Santa Ana Freeway-Firestone Blvd. at Valley View Ave., formation of the La Mirada Civic Council for architectural and quality-control of home building there was made public yesterday.

Organization of the new civic body was effected to guide La Mirada's over-all community plan which anticipates the construction of 10,000 homes in the next two years, a major shopping center, new schools, churches and industrial district, officials explained.

"It is the aim of the La Mirada Civic Council to insure every resident the finest in modern living," it was stated. "To achieve this, a set of high standards has been established and only those builders fully complying with the rigid specifications of this code will be permitted to display the La Mirada 'Quality-Controlled' seal. Plans bearing this insignia must be inspected and approved by our organization."

Growth of La Mirada is scheduled to step ahead briskly with the preview showing there next weekend of furnished exhibit homes at Valley View Ave. and Stage Rd., marking the introduction of Parkwood-La Mirada, the Devon Construction Co.'s 540-home, $8,000,000 community. Plans are under way for a park and golf course adjacent to La Mirada, it was announced.

First of a new group of builders to enter the La Mirada scene since recent acquisition of the 2100-acre property by Louis M. Halper, of Halper Construction Corp., the Devon firm will offer three and four-bedroom and three-bedroom with family room homes, all with two baths.

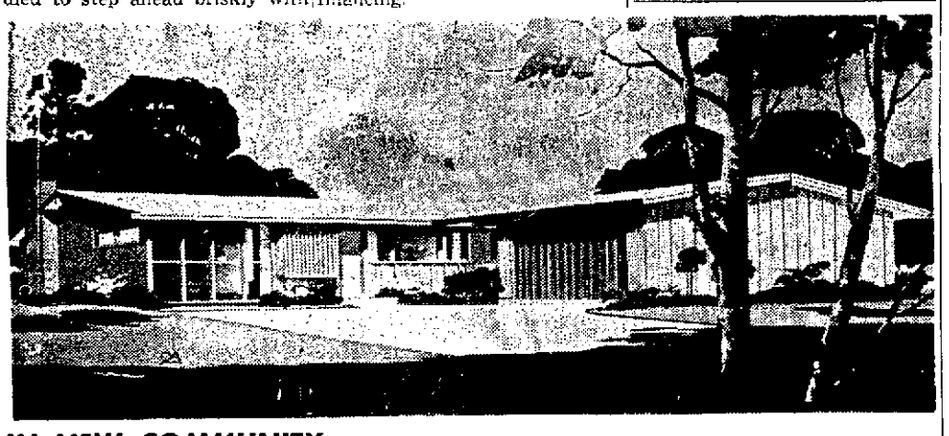

Based on nine floor plans and 41 exterior elevations, the Parkwood-La Mirada homes were designed by Architects David Freedman and Palmer & Krisel, members of AIA, with traditional plans by Freedman and contemporary stylings by the latter firm.

Highlighted features of Parkwood-La Mirada homes will include an olive tree, 15 to 25 feet high, planted on each lot, along with front lawns and basic landscaping. The homes will be available on VA and FHA long-term financing.

Use Local Board in Realty Survey

The local Board of Realtors received word from the National Association of Real Estate Boards that it was one among 111 boards with Multiple Listing operations which participated in the nation-wide survey made recently. The survey focused on 25 basic questions, which brought out direct information on the type of operation and number of participants.

Barbara Moss, secretary-manager of the board for some 22 years received a letter of commendation from the California Real Estate Association for the extensive research and preliminary work she contributed in three years of study which culminated in the state association adopting her standardized set of rules that would create a more direct service to the public on a far-reaching basis; uniformity of this program will assist tremendously in the sellers knowing the best possible way of merchandising the sale of their property. She has received national recognition having been national chairman of Multiple Listing for over five years just preceding her election to national president.

IN NEW COMMUNITY

The above attractive exterior typifies the diversified homes rising in Parkwood-La Mirada, new Devon Construction Co. development at Valley View Ave. and Stage Road, La Mirada.

Report Buying Rush in Aldon's New Unit

Though not a home was completed, nor even a framework up, at the Aldon Construction Co.'s newest luxurized residential community, Buena Plaza, last weekend's introduction of the new development to the public brought 8000 visitors and advance sales of $1,000,000 in what spokesmen for the nine-year-old major home-building firm called "the greatest public response in Aldon's history."

Officials asserted that record attendance has continued daily since the opening of the sales office, as construction gets under way on six model homes, typical of 624 four-bedroom, two-bath dwellings, priced at $13,725 each, in the overall community of Buena Plaza, which will comprise more than 2,000 residences valued at approximately $35,000,000 and a giant $7,000,000 shopping center.

Sales headquarters for what the Aldon firm calls its "Masterpiece Series of 1955." embodying 22 new exterior stylings based on seven varied floor plans and introducing new liberalized purchase terms for veterans and non-veterans, has been opened at Miller St. and La Palma Ave., Buena Park, location of the first unit.

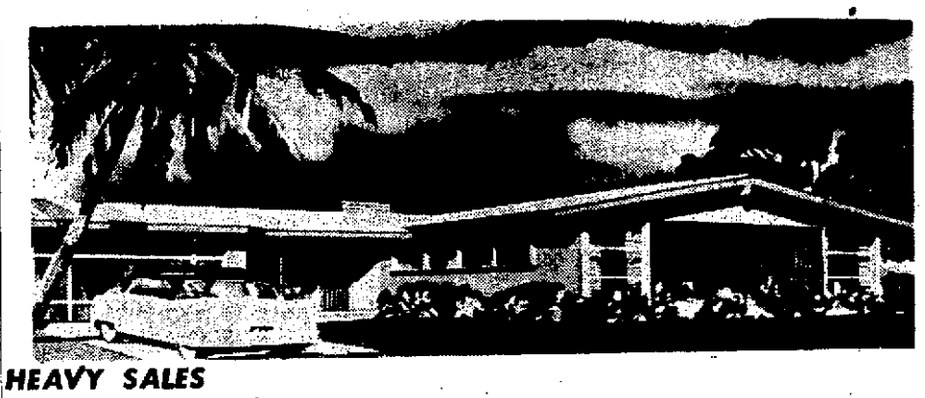

"Never before in our richly rewarding experience as home builders in the popular price field have we seen such an overwhelming response at such an early stage of the development," a key spokesman said.

Sales agent E. "Billy" Hamburg explained that veterans may buy the new homes without any down payment — not even cash for escrow costs and impounds, and on 30-year 4½ per cent VA loans, with monthly terms of $71.49 for principal and interest.

As a result of the new national housing act, Hamburg added, newly-reduced FHA terms are made available to non-veterans at Buena Plaza.

The first unit at Miller St. and La Palma Ave. may be reached from Long Beach east on Carson St. (which becomes Lincoln Ave.) to Miller St. and turning north.

Buena Plaza features include ornamental street lights, used brick or slumpstone floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, sliding glass walls, 75,000 BTU forced-air heating with thermostat-control, oversize stall showers with six feet of ceramic tile, natural-finish kitchen cabinets, Waste-King garbage pulverator.

HEAVY SALES

Above exterior typifies 624 four-bedroom, two-bath homes rising in initial unit of new $35,000,000 Aldon Construction Co. community, Buena Plaza, Miller St. and La Palma Ave., Buena Park. VA and FHA terms are available.

Casas Lindas Estates Unit Selling Fast

Nothing down for vets and low FHA terms for non-vets are the favorable financing terms offered buyers of the Casas Lindas Estates. This beautiful Garden Grove subdivision is fast selling out, according to Frank Hart, sales manager for Walker and Lee, Inc., sales agents.

Priced at $12,250, these three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes feature California traditional design with central floor planning, redwood siding and stucco exteriors.

The overall design of expert planning is expressed in the efficiency kitchens, drawing considerable praise from viewers, it was noted. They are highlighted with such features as stove exhaust fans, dishmasters, garbage disposals, natural birch cabinetry, ceramic tile work areas, service porches and breakfast nooks.

Forced air heat, with thermostat control, touch-plate wiring with master control panel, rock-wool insulation, double garages, landscaped lots, wardrobe and walk-in closets, duplex electric outlets, papered walls, concrete driveways, aluminum sash, paved streets, curbs and gutters are a few more of the many features found in Casa Lindas Estates.

Eastern Builders, Inc., developers of the subdivision, have two model homes on display, done in modern and colonial themes, open evenings and Sundays for inspection. These homes may be reached from Long Beach by driving out Seventh St., to Ninth St. Turn left at Ninth.

OFFERED IN CASAS LINDAS

Heavy sales are reported in the Orange County tract of Casas Lindas Estates, one of which is shown above. The homes are spacious on large lots.

Standard Motels Pays Dividend

Directors of Standard Motels, Inc., Inglewood, at a special meeting declared the company's second consecutive dividend at the rate of 7% on the Class "A" and 5% on the Class "B" shares. Payment date is Aug. 25 to all stockholders of record Aug. 15, 1954.

The directors reported that less than 25% of the company's capital had been income producing during the past year due to a large expansion program which was not completed for occupancy until March 26, 1954.

Income for the four months April 1st through July exceeded $550,000.

Christmas Night Shopping by Dec. 6

Major downtown Long Beach retail stores will be open every week day night for Christmas shopping starting Dec. 6, the Retailers Associated reports. Some will start the night openings a little earlier. Special gift wrapping classes will be held between Nov. 15 and Dec. 1 to teach new clerks how to properly wrap Christmas bundles.

KITCHEN OF CHARM

With many built-ins offered plus wide working space, the kitchens in the Park Lane Estates homes are great attractions to the home buyers, reports the sales agency of these Santa Ana homes. This is one of the model homes.

IN LAKEWOOD DISTRICT

Model home shown above is representative of the new three-bedroom, two-bath dwellings rising in the new third unit at Lakewood Estates, new community located on Orangethorpe Ave. at Palo Verde Ave., in the Lakewood district. Veterans may purchase the dwellings, priced from $11,840, with down payments ranging from $295, plus costs and impounds, on monthly terms from $58.85 for principal and interest.

Park Lane Estates Sales Shown Brisk

Sales are brisk at Park Lane Estates, the subdivision of "executive" homes in Santa Ana, reports Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., exclusive sales agents. "Both vets and nonvets are taking advantage of the new financing terms to buy these luxury homes," Hart continued.

Park Lane Estates can be purchased by nonveterans on the new low FHA terms, while vets can buy one of these luxury homes for as little as 5% down.

Hart pointed out the fact that the builder, Henry C. Cox, has many years enjoyed a reputation of distinctive home building in highly desirable locations, a feature that is proving especially attractive to young executives and professional men who wish to enjoy fine quality homes built in prestige neighborhoods . . . neighborhoods that give the country estate feeling, yet located within easy distance of business and recreation centers as well as other points of interest.

Featured in the design of the eight floor plans is the centrally located living room, calculated to be the center of home activity with the other rooms situated so as to give a well planned and convenient balance to the whole house. All living rooms have mahogany panelling, artistically designed and placed planters as well as beautiful fireplaces.

These two or two and one-half bathroom homes offer 16 elevations from which to choose.

Park Lane Estates is at the corner of Flower St. and Memory Lane in the city of Santa Ana, easily reached via the Santa Ana Freeway. Furnished models, furnished by Horton Furniture Co. of Santa Ana are three blocks west of Flower St., on the corner of Memory Lane and Westwood. Visitors from Long Beach are directed to go out Seventh St. which becomes Garden Grove Blvd., and later Memory Lane.

Homes on Sites They Select

The Santa Aan Realty Co. announces a plan by which home buyers may new purchase "custom built" new home in individual neighborhoods at prices which will compete with tract homes.

Fifteen of these multi-feature homes are available for sale and liberal FHA loans may be obtained by the buyers if desired.

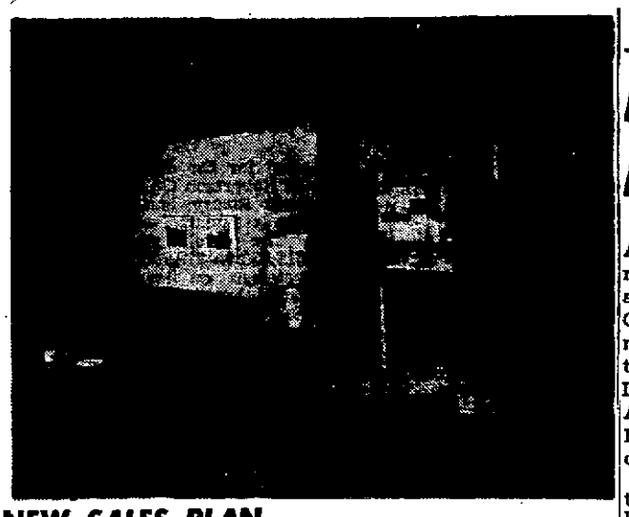

These homes have been constructed on "hand picked" lots in both the north and south sections of Santa Ana and range in price from $11,950 to $16,950.

The Santa Ana Realty Co. is holding "open house" on the model home located at 1122 Richland daily from 1:00 p. m. to 8:00 p. m. This model home has been landscaped and is completely furnished by Bradley & Johnson of Orange.

All homes contain either two bedrooms and den or three bedrooms, and are available with 1¾ or 2 baths. The kitchens feature spacious mahogany cabinets, dual sinks with disposal units.

Service porches are found in all models and plumbing has been installed for automatic washers.

To reach the furnished model home located at 1122 Richland, take Flower Street seven blocks south from First Street to Richland. Go west on Richland two blocks to 1122 Richland.

NEW SALES PLAN

One of the long drawn out waits in selling one home before the buyer can move into a new home has been eliminated by the builders of Grovemont Estates in Santa Ana in an announcement issued today. The prospective buyer may use the equity in his present home, after appraisal as to its market value, and apply that equity to the down payment on a new three-bedroom, two-bath home in Grovemont Estates in Santa Ana.

SPRINGDALE PARK OVER HALF SOLD, DEVELOPERS ANNOUNCE

Springdale Park, called the closest subdivision in Orange County to Long Beach, is meeting good sales response, the developers report.

A small unit of 43 homes, 25 of them have been sold in two weeks. They are selling to nonveterans for as little as $495 down for a large three-bedroom home with open beam ceilings.

Springdale Park is close to Meadowlark Golf Course and three miles from the beach. Each home is on a large lot with a 25-foot garage. The homes offer country living with city conveniences. Because of pasture land and trails nearby many of the homes have been purchased by horse lovers, the developers added.

Expect 500 Here for Meeting of Builders

Early arrivals for the National Association of Home Builders regional XV meeting Tuesday afternoon, August 24, Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach, will make a tour of the new residential developments in the greater Long Beach area, reported Mark A. Thoreson of Van Nuys and Beverly Hills, regional vice president.

Thoreson, former president of the Home Builders Institute, Los Angeles county-wide association of community developers, will preside at the afternoon and evening sessions, expected to draw 500 builders and their wives.

The event is sponsored by the Building Contractors Association, of California, Home Builders Institute, San Diego Building Contractors Association, Southern Nevada Home Builders, Inc.

Visitors will attend from the 14 Southern California counties, and Southern Nevada.

Mrs. Home Week of greater metropolitan Los Angeles—Jean Lewis, mother of a 3-year-old son, model, and TV actress—will greet the women attending, most of whom will tour the harbor in the afternoon.

Mrs. Home Week also will visit the model homes in Park Estates that will be open for National Home Week, Sept. 19-26.

The afternoon clinic on Construction Techniques will hear Charles A. Bowser, Washington, D. C., FHA technical standards director, on two subjects: "New FHA Organization in Washington," and "Changes Now Under Way From a Cost to a Valuation Concept."

Bowser also will comment on his reactions to the new FHA program as a former builder.

Earl (Flat Top) Smith, El Cerrito, Calif., will speak on "Merchandising," Len Haeger, Washington, D. C., NAHB technical department director, on "The Changing House—Methods and Design," and Jack Sargent, Topeka, Kans., builder, on "A Changed Builder."

Lloyd S. Whaley of Long Beach, developer of Los Altos Village, will be host at a luncheon for Mrs. Home Week and for participants in the clinic discussions.

Day Nursery to Open Sept. 13

Hobby Horse Day School at 1710 Redondo Ave. will open Sept. 13 to children aged 2 to 6 years.

Instruction in dancing, personality development, rhythms and music is offered. Added this year will be instruction in French by a graduate of Cannes College, Cannes, France. Hot lunches are served under supervision of a dietician and the program includes many field trips.

LUXURY DWELLING

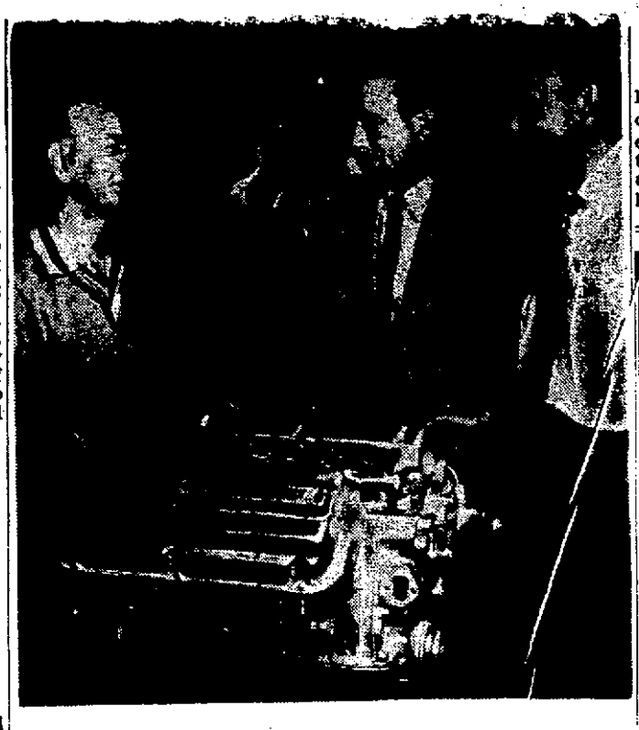

Here is a four-bedroom, two-bath exterior representative of new homes in the new fourth unit at Orangewood Estates on West Orangethorpe Ave. near South Nicholas Ave., just west of South Spadra Rd., Fullerton.

Four New Models Open

Four new model homes, furnished by Hub Furniture and typifying the remaining 63, three and four-bedroom, two-bath dwellings available in the fourth and final unit of Orangewood Estates, are on view this weekend in the new community on West Orangethorpe avenue, near South Nicholas avenue, just west of South Spadra road, Fullerton.

This was announced by spokesmen for the developers, the W. E. Robertson Co., pioneer Southland luxury home builders for the last quarter century.

The dwellings, priced from $11,050 to $12,750, are offered to veterans on terms of nothing down but costs and impounds, and monthly payments from $57 for principal and interest. FHA terms are available to non-vets. The homes are conveniently located within the city limits of Fullerton, with full access to that community's ample and established facilities.

ENGINE FOR SCHOOL

A new De Soto Firedome eight engine was given the City College by McClure-Nowling Motors to use in training mechanics. Shown with the motor is Herschel Thomas of the school, Ken Nowling and Bob McClure.

Realty Board's Program Listed

The Long Beach Board of Realtors Breakfast Forum will conduct its regular weekly exchange of listings and co-operative sales meeting, Tuesday, 7:15 a. m., according to Joseph Reed program chairman.

Guest speaker is H. J. F. Hanemann, civil engineer and specialist in valuation of real estate and acquisition of land for public purposes. He is chairman of the Monterey Woods Improvement Association. His subject "Uncle Sam Plays Landlord." Arnold Berg, president, will preside.

World of Wheels

By Dick KLINE

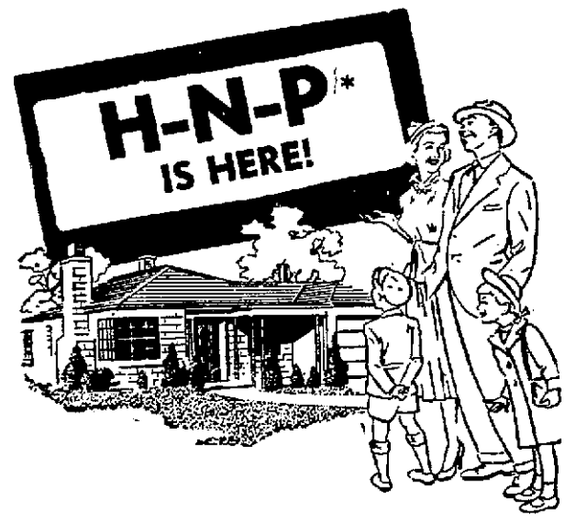

McClure-Nowling Motors, local DeSoto dealers, presented a DeSoto Fire Dome eight engine to the Long Beach City College to be used in training mechanics. Herschel Thomas of the automotive division of the college expressed appreciation for the gift and advised that it will be an important tool in training mechanics in the functions of modern high-compression engines.

May Move in Before Fall

Home owners may take immediate occupancy in the new Lifetime Home group before school starts in September, according to builders Henry C. Cox and Affiliated Companies. Located on Chapman Ave., one-fourth mile eats of Brookhurst in Garden Grove, Lifetime Homes are near excellent schools and shopping centers.

Four out of five floor plans in the new development offer 1½ or two baths, a convenient feature for today's busy families. Homeseekers are invited to inspect the five model homes, artistically furnished in a variety of styles especially adaptable to casual California living.

Popular features in the new three and four-bedroom Lifetime Homes include all-electric kitchens with completely automatic built-in Thermador oven and range, electric disposal, exhaust fans, built-in breakfast nook, large living rooms with fireplace and sliding glass wall, colorful bathrooms with Pullman lavatory and ceramic tile showers. Floors are oak throughout.

Lifetime Homes may be purchased by qualified veterans with no down payment (impounds only). Monthly payments on these new homes include taxes and insurance eliminating any additional costs for the new home owner. All improvements, including public sewers, are already installed.

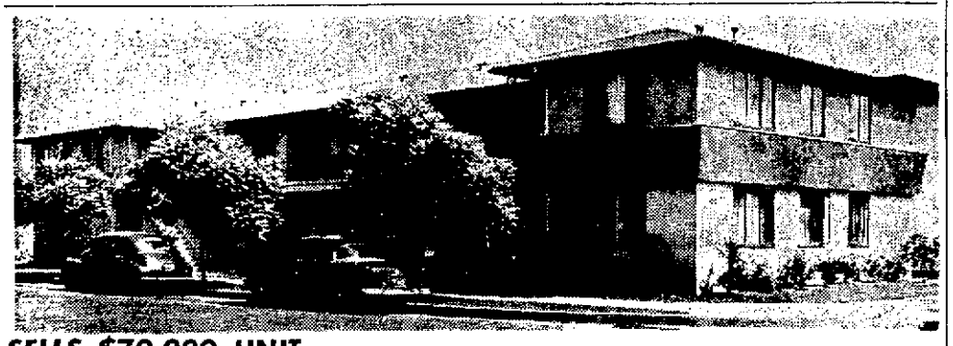

DIFFERENT STYLINGS

"Ship and Shore Windows" are part of the new and different styling at the Anaheim Village homes at Euclid and the Santa Ana Freeway in Anaheim. The windows that blend with open beamed ceilings, solid alderwood kitchen cabinets and a choice of three or four bedrooms are just part of the variety that the Orange County site offers.

Realty Board Asks Zone Change Delay

Interest is being generated by the Board of Realtors in a study of the proposed county zoning change and its effect upon unincorporated areas.

The executive committee, Arnold Berg, Tenny Moore and Harold Steele will appear before the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors Tuesday morning at 10:30 a. m. to ask for a 60-day postponement of any action until the real estate boards within the county can make proper investigation and study. The proposed changes to be considered will be the desirability of modifying certain sections to permit in residential and commercial zones the establishment of various governmental uses. In the opinion of the board, it is felt that the government should not be permitted to set up one type of law for its citizens and to claim exemptions for itself, said Arnold Berg, president.

SELLS $70,000 UNIT

Harris Rogers, local income property builder, has just completed and sold this attractive contemporary designed nine-family apartment at 2090 Magnolia Ave. for $70,000. Mrs. Rose Van Studdiford was the buyer. The features include floating floors and soundproofing, storage walls, multiple TV outlets and disposal units. To exemplify vacant lot costs, Rogers reports the site was purchased this year for $11,500, while the previous owner bought it in 1944 for $1200. Rogers now has under construction and for sale an elaborate 11-unit own-your-own apartment structure at 933 E. First St.

Homestead Park Consults Housewives

Grand opening of Homestead Park homes at Brookhurst and Cerritos Sts. in Garden Grove is being held this week with the new homes built around outdoor living areas, it was announced by developers James C. Nicely and Jack G. Cochran.

"We have planned these homes in consultation with several average housewives," the developers commented, "keeping in view that ease of living and keeping house are one of the most important essentials of a new home."

The three-bedroom and two-bath homes averaging 1,200 square feet, exclusive of garage and porches, have been laid out with a center hall plan and extra large bedrooms.

They will sell to qualified veterans with no down payment and monthly payments on principal and interest as low as $63.50 per month.

Other major features of the Homestead Park homes include built-in automatic gas oven with surface cooking unit, upholstered breakfast nook, natural finish wood cabinet, Waste King pulverator, fireplaces, forced air heating, partially fenced, glass walls to patio, exposed beam ceilings, Bendix washer-dryer (optional), double garages, wardrobe closets, TV outlets, two covered porches, landscaped in the front, and close to schools and the Freeway.

From Long Beach drive east on Spring St. which becomes Cerritos until it runs into Gilbert in Garden Grove.

Gardendale Half Sold Out

Gardendale officials yesterday announced a 50 per cent sellout of the new community of 162 three-bedroom, two-bath homes, described by the builders as Garden Grove's first development of all-contemporary homes with a host of modern features.

A major sales factor of the dwellings, situated in smog-free Garden Grove at Brookhurst Ave. and Cerritos St., is the planning of the homes, which are literally "built around the kitchen," it was noted by officials of the Pioneer Land Co., sales agents for the property.

Priced at $12,995, the homes are available to veterans on nothing down terms, with monthly terms like rent. Veterans may move into the dwellings on a payment of $125, it was noted.

The homes may be reached from Long Beach by driving east on Spring St., which becomes Cerritos, following to end of street and the development.

W. O. Zoeller, Coy Sanders Honored by Realty Board

Being a coffee salesman and then a music store proprietor occupied William O. Zoeller for many years. Then in 1941 he came to Long Beach and sold appliances for two years. Finally he entered the real estate business and at last found his right field. Zoeller, honored by the Long Beach Board of Realtors as the "Realtor of the Week" has seen great success in this field and he predicts a great future for the city.

Zoeller was born in Chicago and as a child went to Trinidad, Colo., where he finished school. He traveled many years as a coffee salesman, calling on grocers and then in 1938 opened a music store in Santa Barbara.

After entering realty here in 1943 he operated from an office at 2085 Pacific Ave. until last year when he purchased and opened an office at 1425 E. Wardlow Rd. Zoeller specializes in homes and incomes and is associated with his wife, who also is a broker. They have one salesman.

He has been on the board of directors of realty here and one year was vice president of the board. His hobby is fresh water fishing.

W. O. ZOELLER
From Coffee, Music to Realty

COY SANDERS, honored as the Salesman of the Week, is somewhat a newcomer to realty but no newcomer to winning honors in Long Beach.

Born in the Ozark country in Taney County, Mo., Coy has been in Long Beach 15 years. His education includes Chaffey College where he received the highest honors; Pomona College where he was a Phi Beta Kappa; Claremont Graduate School, Phi Delta Kappa; U. S. C. Delinquency Control Institute and additional work at Whittier College.

In business Sanders had experience with Montgomery Ward and Co. In public life he has held such positions as director of guidance and counseling of the Long Beach Juvenile Bureau; Community Boys' Work Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and is widely known as a consultant and speaker in the fields of youth work and community organization.

COY SANDERS
Likes to Serve People

"I have found real estate a challenging, if demanding, profession, offering satisfactions proportionate to one's efforts," says Coy.

"Long Beach realtors are a grand group to work with and Long Beach home seekers and sellers are grand groups to work for.

"Neither Mrs. Sanders, with whom I am associated in business, and myself would be happy unless we were serving people. In real estate we can do just that and what is best, Ruth and I can do it together."

Their office, the Ruth Linquist Realty Co., is at 5934 Orange Ave., and their home at 4001 Pine Ave.

A. I. B. Opens Fall Classes in This Area

Complete plans for the American Institute of Banking classes to be held in this area this winter will be discussed at a dinner meeting of the Harbor District Chapter representatives Thursday night at the Lafayette Hotel, announced Miss Ruth Ray, Farmers and Merchants Bank, the publicity director.

The dinner will be for the consuls, the representatives in each bank who will then meet with fellow employes to discuss the banking school program.

Committee representatives arranging the dinner are Ted Madouros, Bank of America, Fourth and Pine Ave., chairman; Marjorie Knox, Security, Bixby Knolls; Wayne Barber, Bank of America, Fourth and Pine, co-chairman.

The program will include presentation of certificates of achievement to 21 A.I.B. members. Virgil Gillespie, as president of the Long Beach Clearinghouse, will make the awards.

A panel discussion of the consul duties will be held with participants including Leo Penn, El Monte Bank of America; Robert DeWalt, California Bank, Bellflower; Everett Cogswell, First National of Bellflower, who is president of the Harbor Chapter, and Jo Ann Londeree of the Bank of Belmont Shore.

Miss Ray said instructors and classes have been set up for this fall term with the members attending a three-hour session once a week for 14 weeks. They will be:

Franklin Junior High School: James J. Horan, R. D. Carter, Hayden Bolander, Fundamentals of Banking; S. B. Ritchie, Commercial Law; Ted Madouros, Negotiable Instruments; Michael Brent, Economics I; Paul G. Rife, Accounting I; Paul Sullivan, Business Administration.

Lakewood Junior High School: C. H. Walton, Jr., Fundamentals of Banking; Jack O. Davis, Commercial Law; Winfield Jones, Negotiable Instruments; A. Ames Tuthill, Bank Administration.

Harbor Junior College: Stanley Hooper, Fundamentals of Banking; Anthony Nizetich, Negotiable Instruments.

Balboa Vista Buyers Can Move Right In

As the coast-wide lumber strike became increasingly alarming to the builders in Southern California this week, Project Manager Bud Raulston of the Newport-Balboa Vista 800-home tract was thanking his lucky stars and earning the congratulations of associates for his foresight in having purchased enough Douglas fir to build all 800 of his houses.

"I had a feeling a year ago that this was going to happen," Raulston explained, "and so we hauled in enough Douglas fir to take care of all our framing and sheeting. It required much piling and storage for awhile, but now we're glad we did."

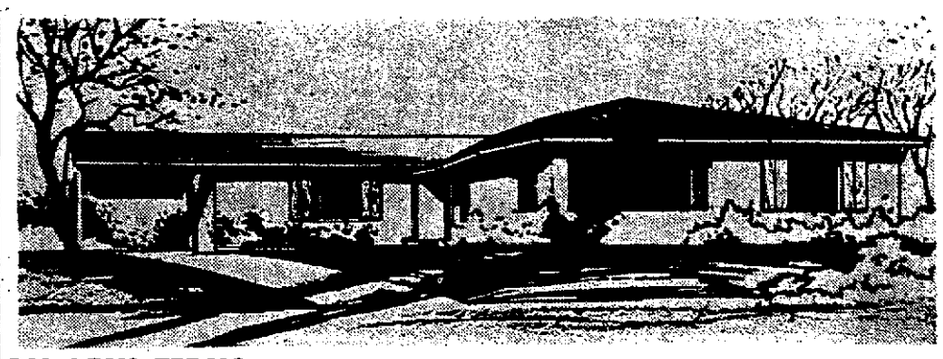

The result has been that more than 500 families have already moved into the Freedom Homes and the remaining three hundred are being sold on a "buy today-move in tomorrow" basis—all homes complete with all lumber in.

"The strike is so serious that wholesale prices of lumber have already jumped 50 per cent," Raulston stated, "and I predict that many home builders who are now just starting construction will have to raise prices and will also be stalled at least 6 months in their construction processes."

The lumber strike reaches to the loggers and millers. The fact that logging is only done certain times of the year will also cause a delay in building up the supply again when and if the strike is settled, Raulston added.

Freedom Home builders have not increased their prices because of the strike and are still offering their three-bedroom 1345-square-foot under roof home at $7995, earning them the title of the lowest priced mass builder in the west. The same terms are available to both vet and non-vet.

Model homes and sales offices are open daily including Sunday until 9 p.m.

ON LOW TERMS

Here is the three-bedroom Freedom Home which sells for $7,995. It is one of the lowest priced FHA-inspected homes in the nation, made possible because of special mass production building methods right on the site of construction. Non vets and vets are given the same terms of $46.26 monthly principal and interest payments. The Newport-Balboa Vista tract overlooks Newport Harbor. Model homes are at Victoria and Placentia in Costa Mesa and are open 9 to 9 daily including Sunday.

Speech Contest Here on Sept. 7

The Real-Ette Toastmistress, President Doris Reid and Realtors Toastmasters President Louis Hanscom announce the elimination contest to be held on Sept. 7th to select an entry into the Home Town Speech Contest being held in San Francisco in October at the State Real Estate Association Convention. The winner will compete with other board entries.

JOIN ARTHUR MURRAY'S
"Over 40 club"
Classes meet once a week

See how easy it is to stay young ...have wonderful times

DON'T SIT BACK and watch the younger set have all the fun! Come in and join Arthur Murray's brand new "Over 40 Club" and have good times yourself. You'll learn all the new dance steps, regain lost confidence, develop new grace, make new friends at these gay informal classes.

Fun alone should be reason enough to join the "Over 40 Club" but here's another equally good reason why you should sign up today. Dancing keeps you young. For years doctors have been recommending Arthur Murray dance lessons. They know that dancing tones up muscles . . . improves posture . . . strengthens weak arches and makes a person feel and look years younger.

Learning the Arthur Murray Way is quick and easy, too. Even a beginner can go dancing after just one lesson thanks to the amazing Arthur Murray discovery—"The Magic Step To Popularity".

So plan now to join the new "Over 40 Club". Classes meet once a week in our beautiful new ballroom. But do hurry . . . classes are already getting filled up.

FREE LESSON
You are cordially invited to have a free dance analysis . . . Let any one of the instructors show you the secret of effortless, graceful dancing. There is no obligation, of course.

You'll feel like 20 again when these experts show you this shortcut to good times and popularity

Ever-popular Joseph O'Brien is such a skillful teacher that in just one lesson he can show anyone the secret to all dances.

Pretty Florence Jennings is a specialist with shy people. In almost no time she teaches them the shortcut to good dancing.

Robert Almack is a favorite with both young and old. Pupils thrill at how easily they learn to dance under his expert guidance.

"I feel years younger, much happier since I enrolled at Arthur Murray's," says Martha Stone.

"Learning to dance at Arthur Murray's taught me how to relax and have fun," says L. Hode.

"I've gained confidence—am a new person since my first visit to your studio," says Naomi Clyde.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

If you have never seen three million dollars worth of furs and diamonds then you'd best look in on "Toast of the Town" (2) at 8 p. m. as Ed Sullivan has his "Toastettes" so garbed.

The six dancers will be dripping in such things as chinchilla, mink, sable, fox, and ermine sparkled with two-and-half millions in jewels. Their gowns will be creations of Samuel Winston, furs by Frederica and the jewels from famous Harry Winston, Inc.

This "Toast" will be presented in color to inaugurate the new $1,500,000 TV studios of CBS in New York. This gigantic color studio is just half as expensive as the furs and jewels but will earn more in the long run.

Highlight of the diamond collection will be a 127-carat emerald-cut diamond worn on a chain made up of diamond baguettes, valued at a million dollars.

The talent on this colorcast, which will come to us via hot kine and thus be in black and white, will include Eartha Kitt, John Raitt, Janis Paige, Miss Malta and Company, dog act, the Andrea Dancers and an acrobatic troupe billed as The Bogadis.

DRAMA—Philco's TV Playhouse (4) at 9 p. m. will deal with a once-famous singing star who, after 50 years in show business, is reduced to singing in an obscure Greenwich Village club. When she refuses to work according to the rules laid down by the owner she is fired. . . . Railroad Detective Matt Clark leads beautiful "Cattle Kate" to the gallows instead of the altar during the "Stories of the Century" (11) at 9 p. m. featuring Jean Parker as Kate. . . . Two smooth-talking check passers fleece a string of Portland funeral parlors with a hard-to-trace racket during "Man Behind the Badge" (2) at 9:30 p. m. . . . A mystery comedy is the fare for G.E. Theatre (2) at 9 p. m. starring Richard Carlson and Zasu Pitts. . . . A Korean war veteran goes to a small Southern town to track down a gambler who shot his sheriff father to death during "The Web" (2) at 10 p. m. . . . Ruth Hussey and David Brian star as a couple who lose their first child and almost their marriage during "Your Play Time" (2) at 7 p. m.

MISS UNIVERSE—Larry Fineley's "Strictly Informal" (2) at 10:30 p. m. will have 13 of the Miss Universe contestants on his show tonight. Barber Shoppers Sing for Picnic

The S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. barber shop chorus will provide special entertainment for the annual Missouri picnic to be held at Bixy Park Sunday, Aug. 29, program chairman James R. Seaton announced Saturday.

An estimated 50,000 former Missourians and their relatives are expected for the affair, sponsored by the Long Beach Missouri Society, said Seaton. Sandwiches, soft drinks and pie will be served by Lee and Morey Caterers.

Rev. David Livingstone, president of the All States Society, will give the invocation and lead the salute to the flag. Oliver Bryson will direct community singing.

No. 1 Marine Knows No Plan to Quit Korea

SEOUL (AP)—Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, said Saturday he knew of no plan to withdraw the Marines from Korea.

"When I left Washington 10 days ago, I did not know of any plan for the redeployment of either the 1st Marine Division or the 1st Marine Air Wing," Shepherd said.

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

Mario Lanza, whose voice once again rings out in the hit movie, "The Student Prince," comes out of his personal semi-retirement to star in one of the "Shower of Stars" shows on CBS-TV for Chrysler Corporation. Lanza's co-stars on this extravaganza, part of a new series starting this fall, will be a famous husband-and-wife team . . . bandleader Harry James and long-reigning movie queen Betty Grable.

One of the innovations planned for Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" during the coming season is the local "cut-in." What this means is that local talent in small towns all over the country will get a chance at the big break, with their acts being done locally but spliced into the national show.

An ex-boxer turned actor, Paul Grant, bragged about never having been knocked from his feet in the ring. His first TV assignment as an actor found him being beaten unmercifully by villains in the "I Led Three Lives" series. Then came his second chance, in a Fireside Theater show starring former child actor Bobby Driscoll. Lo and behold, the script called for Driscoll to knock Grant out for the count! Now he's thinking of going back to boxing, so he can stay on his feet.

Maybe you'd like to have that new big screen TV set, but you figure the cost of a good set would knock your budget for the count. Well, you can stay on your financial feet and still get superb big screen HOFFMAN television. Come in and see! PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd. Ph L.B. 40-7406.

Rehearsal Dinner for Pair

Concluding a round of parties prior to their marriage Friday evening, Miss Ann Parks and Joe Turley Bramblet were entertained Wednesday evening at a rehearsal dinner in the home of Miss Parks' uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Ben Parks of 5280 El Roble, Park Estates.

Miss Parks, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kirtland C. Parks of 4135 Annapolis Rd., and Bramblet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bramblet of Hannibal, Mo., are now honeymooning following their vow exchange in Lakewood Village Church. They will return in several weeks to their new home at 2049 Conquista St.

A profusion of colored lanterns lighted the patio and garden of the Ben Parks home as the many friends of the popular pair arrived for the buffet dinner. A green and white theme was used throughout with the buffet table graced by an attractive arrangement of white asters, delphinium and stephanotis in a silver epergne. Green candles in silver candelabra cast a soft glow over the beautiful appointments on the Point Venice lace cloth.

Enjoying the festivities, which included dancing later in the evening, were Dr. and Mrs. Kirtland G. Parks, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bramblet, parents of the couple; Mr. and Mrs. George Michaels, who served as matron of honor and best man at the wedding; Linda Wood, sister of the bride, Beverly Lancaster, bridesmaids; Andrea Heyden, flower girl; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robery Heyden of Fullerton; David Parks, brother of the bride, and Charles Bell, ushers, and Mrs. Charles Bell of Los Angeles.

Others sharing the courtesy were Miss Jo Ann Parks, Miss Carol Beck, Mr. and Mrs. B. King Parks Jr., Jerry Parks, Mottell Peck and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Parks of Los Angeles and Mrs. Sam M. Smith.

Out-of-town guests were Ann's grandmother, Mrs. Guy H. Fuller Sr., her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fuller Jr. and Tom Fuller, all of Oklahoma City, Okla.

With her marriage, Ann relinquishes membership in Long Beach Bachlorettes. She attended Cottey College in Nevada, Mo., and Pepperdine College and is a member of Chapter CB, PEO.

EXOTIC THEME FOR PARTY

Draping the fish net from tree to tree in the patio, which will form a background for the authentic Hawaiian Luau at Virginia Country Club Saturday evening, are members, from left, Mrs. Peter Mamula, Raymond Dudley, Mrs. Dudley, Dr. Mamula and Mrs. Lee Piltz. Flower leis, such as the ladies are wearing, will add color and atmosphere to the "Night in Hawaii." Dr. and Mrs. Mamula are general chairmen for the gala party. There will be the colorful "Pig in Pit" ceremony under the stars in a setting of palms, torches and tropical flowers. Music will be by Eddie Bush and his singing Surfriders.

Citizenship Papers Prized by Kadvanys, New Americans

By JEAN B. MOORE

"We are citizens of the United States now. It's a wonderful feeling. We wouldn't give a million dollars for our citizenship papers." Two doctors are speaking. They are Dr. Alex J. Kadvany, a Hungarian, and his petite blond wife, Luba, a native of Poland.

Both have known the fearsome and hideous side of war. Both have seen their countries overrun by enemies. Both have memories they want to forget and a future they hope to remember.

If Fate hadn't stepped in, they might be living now in Colombia, South America. When they left their war torn countries several years ago, they landed in Canada where relatives lived. They had a four week in-transit pass in the United States before they had to board a liner for South America.

Then, unexpectedly, their lively blond daughter, Gingi, was born in New York and immediately their status changed. They had a little United States citizen on their hands and through her were able to remain in this country.

In the years that followed, Gingi proved useful again. In school she learned English and helped her mother who was learning the language by study at home and speaking to neighbors and store clerks.

And when that great day came toward the end of July that the Drs. Kadvany drove to Los Angeles for their oral examination leading to citizenship, Gingi promised, "I'll pray that you pass it."

In the Los Angeles court each was asked questions about the history of the United States. They had prepared for it well. In the five year waiting period they had studied. They knew, perhaps, more than the average American who studies history in grade and high school and proceeds to forget in the years that follow.

So they passed the examination, and they celebrated that day with their witnesses, Mrs. Charles Oliver and Mrs. Martin Nishkian, with a luncheon in Los Angeles. Several days later they returned to the court to take their oath of allegiance along with 40 other new citizens.

Sixteen months ago their brown eyed John David was born in Long Beach. He and Gingi, who is now 7½ and one of the brightest pupils at the Country Day School, keep their mother busy with home duties.

Although she is a licensed medical doctor in Europe, Mrs. Kadvany has had no time for practice here. She keeps abreast of activities, however, by being an associate member of the Long Beach Woman Doctors Society.

To watch her, trim in her size 10 dress, playing happily with her two children, it is difficult to realize the experiences that befell her in Europe. The war cost her her father and two brothers. Her family home was burned to the ground and she escaped with only a few family jewels.

In a rich voice still flavored with her native tongue she says, "I decided to escape from Poland. It didn't matter if I got caught. I had lost everything. You get to the point where nothing matters. Then you take the chance."

Some friendly Italians supplied her and a woman friend with nurse's uniforms. Then, along with the woman's brother, they boarded a train and bluffed their way across the border. Fortunately both spoke Italian and German and convinced border patrols that they were Italian nurses.

Their ruse worked, and Mrs. Kadvany enrolled at the University of Budapest for further study of medicine after two years study in Poland. On the teaching staff at the university was the man she was to marry several years later in Rome.

It seems strange that Mrs.

Travelers Home

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leebrick of 4360 Lime Ave. returned home last week after a three-month sojourn in Europe. They toured 11 countries and spent some time in Paris, France, with the Laurence Updikes, former Long Beach residents

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

Two of the five scholarship winners of last year's awards by Long Beach Panhellenic, Judith Conley of City College, left, and Mary Tscherny of Wilson High, are shown talking with Mrs. Herbert Erwin, chairman of the scholarship committee. The other three winners were Sharron Commean of Jordan High; Judith A. State of LBSC, and Carolyn Caulson of Polytechnic High. Funds raised from the fashion show Saturday at Lakewood Country Club will go toward five additional scholarships next year.—(All photos on page by staff photographers.)

Pink Decor at Formal Garden Fete

Gracious hospitality was extended 150 friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stowe Carney and Mrs. Ansel Olson when the trio entertained Saturday night at a cocktail party and formal dinner in the the Carney gardens at 4160 Locust Ave.

A myriad of colored lanterns cast a soft glow over the assemblage. Decor for the party was pink with delicate asters, roses and lilies forming centerpieces for the small dining tables.

During the evening, Jack Crawford's Orchestra played for dancing.

Assisting the hosts were Drs. and Mmes. Howard Coale, Milton Van Dyke, Rufus Davis, Walter J. Furie, George Paap, Messrs. and Mmes. Sam Peck, George P. Taubman Jr., Earl Burns Miller, Logan Goodknight, Harry Newton, Frances Heusel, Lawrence A. Collins Sr. Morris Holmquist and Don Murphy.

'NIGHT IN HAWAII' COMMITTEE

Native costumes from Hawaii will be worn by members of Virginia Country Club at the authentic Luau planned for Saturday night at the clubhouse. Arranging flower leis to be worn by all at the dinner dance are committee members, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McBride, left, while Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hess look on approvingly. Native dancers direct from Waikiki Beach will entertain around the lily pond during the cocktail and dinner hour and for further entertainment, there will be the spectacular knife dance.

'DUSK TO DAWN' FASHION SHOW

Patricia Hanbery Becomes Bride of Frederick Kellogg

Candles lighted St. Luke's Episcopal Church and white gladioli and chrysanthemums adorned the altar for the marriage Saturday of Miss Patricia Kay Hanbery and Frederick Kellogg. The young couple spoke the nuptial lines at 5 p. m. with Rev. F. C. Benson Belliss officiating.

The former Miss Hanbery is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kent Hanbery of 3320 E. First St. Parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Kellogg of 5830 Bay Shore Walk.

For the single ring ceremony the brunette bride was attired in a Cahill original, fashioned of ivory nylon tulle and Chantilly lace. Accenting the bouffant skirt was a deep flounce banding caught at intervals with satin roses. A coronet of Chantilly lace trimmed with seed pearls held her fingertip-length veil. Bridal flowers were phalaenopsis and stephanotis.

Mrs. Frederick Kellogg

Coral chiffon gowns with pleated bouffant skirts and matching velvet jackets were worn by the bridal attendants, who were the bride's cousin, Miss Evelyn Hanbery as maid of honor; Miss Beverly Hanbery, sister of the bride, and Miss Carol Kellogg, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaids. The maid of honor carried chartreuse-tinted spider chrysanthemums, and the bridesmaids, pale yellow chrysanthemums.

Douglas Banning was best man, and escorting guests to their places were James Jones, Jeff Carey and George Duncan. Miss Patricia Graham presided at the guest book at the church.

After the ceremony the large assembly of guests gathered at the Hanbery home for the reception, where Miss Sandra Gillespie greeted guests at the door.

Mrs. Hanbery's gown was aqua blue lace over toast-colored nylon net. The bridegroom's mother chose ashes of roses lace and nylon net.

The popular young newlyweds, who both were graduated from Wilson High School, are honeymooning at an undisclosed destination. The bride attended Scripps College and Whittier College. Her husband is a graduate of Stanford University.

Wordens Visit Here From East

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Worden and children, Leslie and Charles, of Princeton, N. J., arrived last week to visit with Mrs. Worden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester B. Fine Sr. of 1112 E. Ocean Blvd. The former Marjorie Fine and her husband are being feted by many old friends during their two-week sojourn.

They also arrived in time to help welcome Terry Ann, the new daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fine Jr., and to visit with the Fines' other children, Trudy and Rodney.

Last Saturday evening they were dinner guests of Mr. Worden's uncle and aunt, the Chester Williams in Laguna Beach. In addition there have been several family dinners and during this next week, they plan to visit Knott's Berry Farm and other points of interest in the Southland.

Garden Party by James Kresls

Strolling troubadors serenaded 100 guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Kresl when they entertained last night at a gala cocktail and buffet supper party in the gardens of Mrs. Kresl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Waldvogel, 4255 Country Club Dr.

Assisting in greeting the guests were Messrs. and Mmes. John Sadler, John Clarke, Tom McCary and Don Davis.

Carmelite Nuns' Group to Gather

Carmelite Nuns' Auxiliary will meet Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. in the Catholic Center, Sixth St. and Alamitos Ave.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Patrick Malone, M. M., who will show movies and talk on the missionary work of the Maryknoll Fathers.

Hostesses will be from St. Bartholomew's parish under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Reiman.

Mrs. Peter Victor Peterson Jr.

Solemnize Nuptials in Southern Garden

Miss Ann Dennewitz Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sherwood Anderson of Abingdon, Va., became the bride of Dr. Peter Victor Peterson Jr., son of Dr. Peter Victor Peterson, president of Long Beach State College, and Mrs. Peterson at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Sunday, Aug. 15.

The wedding took place on the lawn of Ripshin Farm near Abingdon and Marion, Va., summer home of the late author, Sherwood Anderson, grandfather of the bride. Handmade rings of hammered gold, designed by the bride, were exchanged before an altar placed in a natural setting of hollyhocks and marigolds along a native stone wall.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leland Caulder, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Parish of Washington County. He was assisted by Mr. Peter Brown of Abingdon, serving as acolyte.

The wedding music was provided by Ludwik Sikorski, violinst, composer and professor of music at Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va.; and Alys Sikorski, pianist. Sikorski played "Gavotte and Variations" by Stravinsky; "Suite on a Chant" and "Andante from Medea," his own compositions. For the wedding processional he played the introduction to "Suite Italienne" by Stravinski; and for recessional, "Largo" from G-Minor Sonata by Tartini.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white dress of her own design, fashioned princess style with near-circle skirt, ballerina-length. The bodice, of imported French lace over silk, extended from the waist in petaled points into the skirt of nylon tulle over silk. Her veil of French illusion fell from a cap of matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Judy Anderson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and her sister's only attendant. She wore a bouffant dress of pale green silk-cotton, with matching bandeau and mitts. Her bouquet was of miniature red roses and field flowers.

Mrs. Anderson, mother of the bride, wore rust-orange silk with dark brown accessories, and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Peterson, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of navy blue crepe and lace, with matching accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Dr. E. Craig Turner, of Blacksburg, Va., served the bridegroom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given at Ripshin by the bride's parents.

Out of town guests included Dr. and Mrs. Peterson and Miss Eleanor Peterson of Long Beach.

The couple's wedding trip will extend to the east coast, New York City and along a northern route to Los Angeles. They will make their home in Los Angeles where the bridegroom is a member of the faculty of Los Angeles State College.

Assembly Dance

Spinsters and Bachelorettes will give an Officers Assembly Dance at Officers Club, Allen Center, today from 8 to 11 p.m. All bachelor officers in the service are invited.

'Tea House' Is Colorful DoctorTheme

Just a touch of imagination mixed with huge murals, colored lights, lanterns and balloons last Saturday transformed a by-day tennis court into a luxurious by-night version of the mysterious and colorful far east.

Seventy friends of the James Carrolls were bidden to the couple's 6515 Bayshore Walk home for a "Tea House of the August Moon" costume party. Appropriately attired in Chinese dress, the guests were led into the far east by their imaginative hosts where they were served a Chinese dinner, enjoyed the more through the use of chopsticks.

Hi-fi music for dancing, listening and relaxing rounded out the evening, with time out for guests to admire the lovely murals painted with Buddahs, ming trees and other characteristic Chinese themes by Marion Brown.

Assisting the hostess in staging in the not-soon-to-be-forgotten evening were Miss Brown and Mrs. Hans Thuet.

Patio Party at Pike Home

Supper, swimming, ping-pong and dancing were enjoyed by Symphony Juniors and their husbands Saturday evening in the patio of Dr. and Mrs. Burton Pike's home, 5291 El Roble. In charge of arrangements were Mmes. Pike, Lewis B. Keane and Lawrence Stewart.

Attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Ray W. Parker, Carl Brooks, Walter Downing Jr., Sidney Ellery, Orville T. Evans, Walter Gillis Jr., Glen Gilmore, Gordon Hathaway, George S. Hedley, I. J. Heinen, Arthur Hooker, Lewis B. Keane, Robert S. Lamond, Walter Mundy, Walter M. Newland, Arnold Romeyn, Robert H. Shanley, Lawrence Stewart, Clark Wiadmann, George W. Williams, Monroe Yunker, Russell Peterson, Earl Milton, William Nesbitt, Harvey G. Doody, Philip Erdahl, Miss Shirley Madison and James Hurley.

New members of Symphony Juniors are Mmes. Erdahl, Nesbitt, Robert P. Ludlam, Marshall Juliam, Doody, John R. Marsh, Larry W. Bonzer, Harold McKibben, Milton Peterson, John Ruby, John Steinbrugge, P. I. Wilsey Jr., John Dickson Walker Jr. and Fred Wolcott.

Choosing Coed's Date Frocks

By MARY HARTMANN
Staff Fashion Consultant

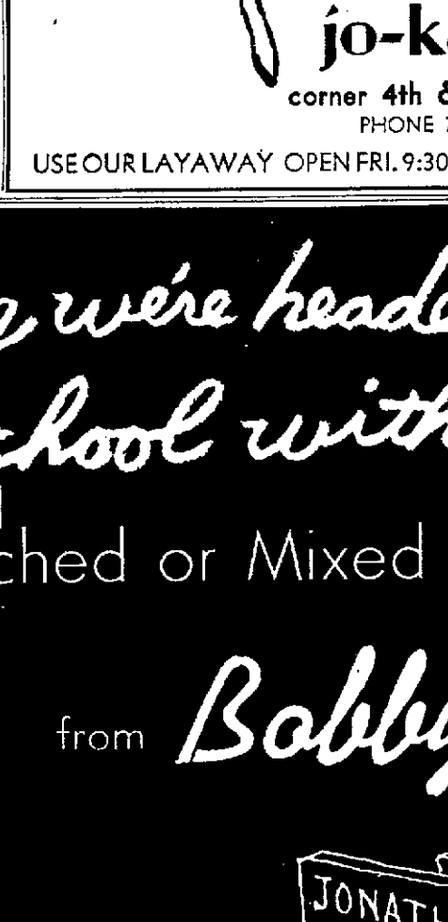

(This is the second of two articles on what the freshman coed can choose for her campus wardrobe.)

Date dress and evening clothes, while not precisely the backbone of a college wardrobe, prove once and for all that the freshman coed has outgrown any tomboy tendencies for formal occasions, which may range from a tea dance to a concert with or without dinner.

Perhaps, the prospective freshman might choose a striped shirt waist dress in gray-blue and white by Brigance (Buffums'). Or Anne Fogarty's beige and cinnamon tweed dress with long sleeves and high neck, complemented by a red velveteen coat, lined with beige fleece. A real investment, this coat (Schick's), with its narrow sleeves and full-cut skirt, easily becomes a standby for daytime and evening occasions.

If she's sure she's going to dance, she might select a black watch plaid gown with back-swept skirt, leg-o'-mutton sleeves and low square-cut back. And for a gala prom, there's Ceil Chapman's red "peau de soie" with softly draped bodice, covered shoulders, and a full-length skirt forming a slight train (Schick's, Parisienne or Rappi's).

Another of the coed's favorites might be a gown of lilac and green net over taffeta, or a white net dress embroidered in flowers (Buffums').

Prize Citizenship Papers

Kadvany has learned to cook only since coming to California. Strange until one realizes that most of her life was spent in Polish and Hungarian hospitals where food was prepared. Her medical knowledge was of more importance than culinary art.

Even the most graphic book can't portray the horror and fear of war, the sordid concentration camps and the wanton shooting of men and women, she says.

She should know. She survived the bombing of Warsaw when the incessant pounding allowed no sleep; when friends and neighbors hung over balcony railings, dead, for days before their bodies were buried.

She tells of being in the frontlines in Budapest during its siege, and of fires raging unchecked. Both she and her future husband were among the weary doctors doing the best they could to treat 500 patients in the basement of the hospital during the bombing.

"Babies were being born, and many didn't live. How could they under such conditions?" she recalls. "We didn't even have water. To get any at all we had to dig holes in the soil and take what water seeped in."

The Kadvanys left everything behind them when they decided to leave Europe. Dr. Kadvany had studied in Berlin, London and Paris and took residence in obstetrics and gynecology in Budapest. He had built a good practice. Among his patients were royal families and diplomats in the embassies. These latter he treated because of his knowledge of several languages.

They decided to take a chance on the new world. Gingi's arrival on American soil gave her father the opportunity to interne in Jersey City, N. J. Later, California, Indiana and Washington, D.C. were the three spots open to his license. California won.

They have found happiness here.

Mrs. Kadvany, who is infatuated with Rome, believes the climate here compares with that of the Italian capitol. The desert completely fascinates her. She had never seen anything like it until their trip across the United States.

Skiing in the Mammoth Lakes region of the High Sierra rates high with her husband who was a skiing champion in Hungary. It isn't too far from their pleasant pink home at 3025 E. First St. to drive to the mountain areas when the winter snows pack down, he finds.

It's a wonderful feeling to cross state borders and not have to present papers or change currency; to speak the same language the whole country over; to walk without fear.

There are still loved ones across the seas, however, and week by week CARE packages and other bundles of necessities go from the Kadvany address to Poland and Hungary.

Of course, the Kadvanys are still learning things from the effervescent Gingi. While Mrs. Kadvany speaks fluent Polish, Hungarian, French, Italian, Russian and German, she did not begin to learn English until she came to Long Beach. In Jersey City all her acquaintances spoke either German or Italian. Gingi's playmates and her home study increased her understanding of English.

Dr. Kadvany had already had considerable knowledge of the language, plus several others.

But neither knew Spanish. Now Gingi is occupied with the task of teaching her parents a few "Si, senoras" and "Quien sabes," but only up to a certain point. The time invariably comes every day when she runs into the living room, followed by her little brother, to ask in typical American style, "When can we watch TV?"

White, Pink Decorations for Shower

A surprise bridal shower honoring Jane Sturgeon, who was married Saturday to Eugene Eldson, was given recently at the home of Barbara Fleener of Compton. Centering the refreshment table was a huge bouquet of white stocks and pink carnations.

Attending were Shirley Leonardt, Jo Ann and Barbara Holstein, Penny Sturgeon, Nancy Herzog, Jennie Erskine, Barbara Fleener; the honoree's mother, Mrs. Margaret Sturgeon; Mrs. Pearl Fleener, mother of the hostess, and Mmes. Marilyn Rose, Donna Babbitt, Janice Carter and Margie Allstot.

Return From Trip East

Touring interesting spots in the States in a new car from Flint, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Josiah S. Mertz are now back in their home at 648 Temple Ave.

After crossing the Straits of Mackinac, the couple toured the upper peninsula of Michigan, then crossed the farm and lake country of Wisconsin to South Dakota, where they visited the Black Hills and Mt. Rushmore.

After viewing the Buffalo Bill territory of Wyoming, they took in Yellowstone, the Grand Tetons, and Salt Lake. Final spots visited before arriving home were Hoover Dam and Las Vegas.

On Tuesday

Long Beach Camp 3822, Royal Neighbors of America, will observe Oracle Night at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Houseguest Ends Visit at Shanks

Ten fun-packed days in the Southland are now behind Miss Winifred Coe who has returned to her home in San Jose after being the houseguest of Margaret Shank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Shank, 134 Quincy Ave.

The two girls were roommates for two years at Stanford U. Both are expert horsewomen and showed recently in Santa Ana, Winifred on Margaret's The Duke and Margaret astride The Duchess.

A farewell luncheon was given Saturday by Margaret and was attended by Joanne Kerr, Jo Ann Parks, Joan Hunter, Coni Chace, Janet Cottrell, Donna Organ, Margaret Davis and Maryce Brightman.

Six couples joined the two girls and their escorts Friday night at the luau staged by the Pacific Coast Club.

Earlier in the week Mrs. Wayne Mullin of Beverly Hills, Mrs. Shank's sister, honored Miss Coe at a tea in her home.

Patsy Gates Honor Guest

A pink and white theme was used in decorating for the miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Patsy Gates, who will wed Clyde Lockwood Sept. 11. Hostess was Mrs. Bob Timboe in the home of Mrs. Clarence Gates.

Attending were Mmes. Willard Welch, Raymond Bennett, John Strawser, Earl Schmaltz, Keith Elvert, Bill Young, James Songer, Jack Randall, Doris Whalen, George Imboden, John Porter, Dean Coleman, Bill Greer, Ruth Mullins, Bob Gunter, Joseph McDurmmitt, Pepper Timboe, Frank Williams, Don Wood, Edna Curtiss, Georgia Tooker, Lyle Timboe, Gilbert Timboe, George McDonell, Floyd Timboe, Barbara Harlocker, Ray Green, and Herbert Hollabaugh.

Others were Misses Helen Puskar, Jo Ann Allen, Gloria Castillo, Beth Zahm, Neva Thurow, Shirley Strickland, Delores Dahlgren, Paula Schultz and Helen Campbell.

Silver Year

Celebrating their silver wedding anniversary at a reception today from noon on are Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McDonald of 1626 Beech St., Torrance. Several members of their church and of Job's Daughters as well as other friends and relatives will be attending. The McDonalds have two children, Marian and Billy.

Emblem Club

Members of Emblem Club No. 106 will meet to sew Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Sam Landsworth, 1247 E. 10th St. Mrs. Lucy Whiting will be assisting hostess.

Future events on the club calendar include a board meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Harold Dorsey, 366 Carroll Park East, Apt. C, with Mrs. Annabelle Hunter as cohostess; and on Friday members, their families and prospective members will gather at Houghton Park Clubhouse for a potluck supper. Mrs. Landworth is in charge of the event.

Soiree in Collins Home

A few intimate friends were invited to cocktails and dinner Wednesday evening as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Collins Sr., who have just returned from a three-week sojourn in Canada.

The attractive centerpiece on the dining table held purple delphiniums amid asters and shaded lavender spider chrysanthemums. Sharing the courtesy were Drs. and Mmes. Burns Chaffee, Orville Cole, Walter Gilkey, Messrs. and Mmes. Lester L. Lawson, Samuel Cameron and Mr. Herman Ridder. Mrs. Ridder is now on the east coast visiting her parents.

The hosts regaled their friends with a report of their recent trip to Victoria, Vancouver, B. C., Lake Louise, Banff, Jasper, Calgary and Glacier National Park. At Banff they joined the Ray Underwoods of Long Beach and traveled with them to Jasper and Glacier. The Underwoods then left for a visit to the Grand Tetons and Yellowstone National Park, while the Collinses returned home by plane.

Last weekend the hosts traveled to their mountain cabin and entertained two of their grandchildren, Timothy and Jennifer Cameron.

L.B. Naval Official Bids Washington Scene Farewell

VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY
(Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

Ever since Capt. Leroy V. Honsinger received his orders to command the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, people have been calling on him to tell him how lucky he is to go to such a booming community of fine people.

Capt. Honsinger (who has been director of the Ship Technical Division of the Bureau of Ships) told me he is delighted to be going to Long Beach and expects to be amazed at the city's growth. He already knows the graciousness of the people, for he and Mrs. Honsinger lived there in 1938 when the captain was on Adm. Greenslade's staff.

On Wednesday Capt. Honsinger and his attractive wife, Norma, will begin their motor safari via the northern route to Long Beach. They have great expectations for the trip and their tour at Long Beach because nearly all their Navy duty has been on the east coast between Norfolk and Bath, Me.

The Honsingers have two children, who will not go with them to California this year. Valerie, 18, graduated in June from Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School and will enter Women's College of North Carolina at Greensboro. Vernon, 20, is a Naval Academy Second Classman.

A native of Syracuse, N. Y., Capt. Honsinger is an electrical duty officer and a graduate of the Naval Academy class of 1927.

Although he enjoys deep sea fishing, his special hobby is trout fishing. He and Mrs. Honsinger both like sailing, swimming and gardening.

Norma Honsinger attended the University of Syracuse and is an accomplished pianist.

They both declare that they love people and social life and are looking forward not only to meeting new friends but a reunion with old "shipmates" now stationed at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

A few days ago, Capt. Honsinger lunched in the House of Representatives dining room as the guest of Rep. Craig Hosmer of Long Beach.

On Sunday, Capt. and Mrs. Honsinger were the guests of honor at a supper party given by Comdr. and Mrs. Wallace H. Lowe.

In the company were Capt. and Mrs. M. J. Lawrence—just arrived from Long Beach. Capt. Lawrence will relieve Capt. Honsinger here in the Bureau of Ships. The former commandant of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, Capt. E. E. Sprung and Mrs. Sprung were also at the party.

Capt. and Mrs. Honsinger shared honors with two other Navy families at a Chevy Chase dinner dance given by the Chief of the Bureau of Ships and Mrs. W. D. Leggett.

The other honored guests were Rear Adm. and Mrs. Albert G. Mumma, who will go to Mare Island where Adm. Mumma will command the shipyard, and Capt. and Mrs. C. G. Grimes, who are leaving soon for Paris.

Among those who toasted, dined and danced at the farewell party were Rear Adm. and Mrs. T. A. Solberg; Rear Adm. and Mrs. George Holderness and Rear Adm. and Mrs. Frederick R. Furth.

The Mummas divided honors with Rear Adm. E. B. (Whitey) Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, here from their station in Guantanamo, Cuba, at the dinner at the Chevy Chase Club given by Rear Adm. and Mrs. W. R. Smedberg, III.

Before they leave for the Golden State, Adm. and Mrs. Mumma will entertain at dinner at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center Officers Club to fete Mr. and Mrs. Stedman C. Gould of Long Beach.

The Goulds' lovely young daughter, Carol, was recently married to Adm. and Mrs. Mumma's son, John, AF Second Lt. Mumma, who is a Stanford graduate.

The Army Chief of Staff General Ridgway and Mrs. Ridgway and their lively, small son, Matt, have gone on a long hoped for, planned for, and frequently deferred two weeks holiday.

Far, far, from the Pentagon, from meetings, conferences, and official parties they will fish, paint, rest and relax at the beautiful and luxurious lodge of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle on the turbulent Marimichi River in New Brunswick.

Also on a short vacation are the Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Carney and Mrs. Carney, who are going in for some intensive deep sea fishing off Atlantic City.

It is always safe to wager that when "Mick" Carney is vacationing that he is fishing or hunting. One of his best stories concerns a moose he bagged in Canada.

Wives of Oil Men Form Community Chest Group

Women will assist the men's division of the Oil Sponsoring Committee for the first time this September on behalf of the Community Chest's United Neighbors Campaign, as the wives of oil men aid their husbands in going after a $80,000 goal.

Initial plans for setting up the woman's division were made Thursday at a meeting and buffet luncheon in the home of Herman H. Ridder.

Led by Mrs. Oliver P. Roemer, chairman, the women's group will be composed of a general, Mrs. W. E. Albers; four lieutenant generals, Mmes. Grover C. Pilkington, Arthur Macrate, G. L. Evans and Jack Hurley.

These women will select 15 captains, each of whom will choose at least five more workers to assist her.

F. E. Fairfield, chairman of the oil men's sponsoring committee, led the meeting and in explaining the committee's action in asking help from their wives said, "I believe that women feel even more deeply than men the responsibility and duty of each citizen to the community in which she lives—if you've a job to be done, get a woman to do it."

While the men's group will canvass management of oil firms for their donations, the women will give oil employes the opportunity to contribute their share toward the community services offered by Chest agencies.

Crail Brothers at 3381 Myrtle Ave., have donated office space and equipment in order that the women may have a central headquarters and Mrs. Don O'Donnell and Mrs. W. E. Nicolai will act as staff for it.

Wives of oil men are invited by the committee to volunteer their aid in the industry-wide drive and may call 4-2032 for information about organizational plans.

Attending the group's initial meeting were Mmes. Roemer, Albers, Pilkington, Macrate, O'Donnell, Nicolai, G. L. Evans, F. E. Fairfield, Miss Edna Sellers, Wayne Stewart, general manager of the Chest, Mr. Fairfield and the host, Mr. Ridder.

Mrs. Hanson Heads WLB Lady Lions

West Long Beach Lady Lions elected officers at a dinner meeting at Miller's Restaurant. Mrs. Jim Hanson, vice president, was in charge.

Elected to offices were Mrs. Hanson, president; Mrs. Horace Miller, vice president; Mrs. John Sulzbach, recording secretary; Mrs. Allen Clinkscales, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. William Slater, treasurer.

Installation of the new staff will take place at a dinner dance for members and their husbands Sept. 18 on the roof garden of the Lafayette Hotel.

At the election meeting greetings were extended to members with August birthdays, Mmes. George Zimmerman, Richard Dilley, John Sulzbach and Jim Hanson.

A special guest was Mrs. Mark Minor. During the program Mrs. Carl Opsahl told of her recent nationwide trip.

To Be Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fleener of Compton announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ellen, to Thomas M. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Lewis of Arcadia. The engagement was announced by the traditional passing of the candle at the Zeta Alpha Sigma meeting. The bride-elect was graduated from the lower division of Compton Junior College in June, 1953. The future bridegroom is a senior at Whittier College, where he is majoring in elementary education. A June, 1955, wedding has been planned.

Reveals Troth

The engagement of Miss Angeline Agnello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dominico of Jamestown, N. Y., to Lucian Mistretta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mistretta of Compton, was revealed at a patio luncheon given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Agnello, Compton. The wedding date is Nov. 6.

Writers Club to Gather at Art Center

Long Beach Writers Club will have a general meeting at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Mrs. James A. Worsham will preside.

Mrs. Gustave Fleissig will open the meeting with the reading of articles written by members and will give instructions about the club's article contest closing Aug. 31. Mrs. Theodore Moldenhauer of 2652 Ladoga St. is contest editor. All manuscripts should be sent to her or Mrs. Fleissig.

Miss Helen Johnson, director of the short story department, will read stories by members. Elizabeth Moore Tracy, leader of the poetry division, will read poems by the advanced class. Jean Cross Hansen, leader of the beginners' poetry class, will read a few of their poems and Miss Viola Muse of Los Angeles will speak on "Poetry for Children."

At noon there will be a snack luncheon with coffee served by the club, followed by a social hour. Lucretia Hayden Burwell, program chairman, will then present Velta Myrle Allen, who will continue her talk from last month on her "Flight to London." Mary Purdy will tell briefly about her 6,000-mile trip.

Miss Helen Johnson will also be presented by Mrs. Burwell, and will give two musical readings, "Dreaming in the Twilight" and "Little Boy Blue." She will be accompanied on the piano by her sister, Mrs. Emily Stamper. There will be a short business meeting.

All persons interested in writing are welcome to attend.

Out-of-Door Party Slated for Tuesday

Winding up the summer recreation program at Carver School, the PTA has organized a wiener roast for Carver pupils and their families Tuesday from 5:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

High point of the wiener roast will be a cake contest. Contestants register at school, and cash awards will be given for the best cake entered by both a boy and a girl. Each family will bring its own wieners, buns and cups. Coffee, punch, relishes and contest cake will be served free.

The children have planned a program to follow the wiener roast, and games and songs will be provided for all.

Reception for Bridal Pair

Friends will gather this afternoon around the patio and swimming pool at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Herman, 3860 Clark Ave., at a reception honoring the hosts' daughter, the former Lenora Faith Herman and her husband, Chaim Lustig. The couple was married Aug. 7 in Las Vegas, Nev.

The bride is a graduate of Wilson High School and Lawton School for Dental Assistants. Her husband, a graduate of UCLA, is studying for his master's degree at that university. The couple then will return to his home in Tel Aviv, Israel, where he was a member of the underground and later served with the Israeli Army.

Mrs. Paul T. Southgate Jr.

Jacquelyn Clayton August Bride of Paul Southgate Jr.

A double ring ceremony at East Long Beach Methodist Church united in marriage Miss Jacquelyn Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Clayton, 1461 Redondo Ave., and Paul T. Southgate Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul T. Southgate of 656 Havana Ave.

Miss Clayton's gown was a Cahill original of white lace over ice blue nylon net. Lilies of the valley and stephanotis formed the bridal bouquet.

Gowned in yellow ballerina-length crystallene were Mrs. Roger W. Tapley, matron of honor; Mrs. Edwin Leach; Misses Myrna Schiffman and Jo Southgate, bridesmaids; Marilyn Clayton, the bride's sister, flower girl. Their flowers were aratum lilies and in their hair were head bands of aratum lily petals.

Serving as best man was James Tetley, and ushers were Lou Moreno, Larry Lee and Tom Stewart. Rev. Francis Baldwin performed the nuptial ceremony.

After the church reception the couple left for a honeymoon at Carmel and Monterey. They will reside at 29 Ximeno Ave.

The former Miss Clayton attended Wilson High School, Long Beach City College and Long Beach State College. She was affiliated with Entre Nous at City College and Kappa Phi Gamma and State College.

The bridegroom attended Wilson High and was graduated in June from Occidental College where he was in the Air Force ROTC and a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

Mrs. Lester Hall Wittenberg

St. Bartholomew's Scene of Miss Harrington's Vows

In an empire gown of candlelight satin and imported tulle, appliqued with satin flowers, Miss Marian Elizabeth Harrington became the bride of Lester Hall Wittenberg at 9 a.m. Saturday in St. Bartholomew's Catholic Church.

The bride's fingertip-length veil of silk illusion fell from a crown headdress. Her gown was made by her grandmother, Mrs. August Thorbecke.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Harrington of 650 Santiago Ave., was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Laurence A. O'Leary and Mrs. Francis J. Vohsing, and by Ann Vohsing, flower girl. They wore flowered white silk organza over taffeta.

Best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wittenberg of Akron, Ohio, was Francis J. Vohsing. Lt. Lawrence O'Leary and Lt. (j.g.) Gene Donaway ushered. Solemnizing the nuptial service was Rev. Thomas F. Kennedy.

A reception for 350 guests was staged at Virginia Country Club with Miss Rita Ryan presiding at the bride's book.

After honeymooning at Lake Louise and Niagara Falls, the newlywedded couple will reside in Cambridge, Mass., where the bridegroom will attend Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He has a degree in engineering from Northwestern University where he was president of his fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He served as a lieutenant j.g. for three years aboard the USS Coliett.

The former Miss Harrington is a graduate of St. Anthony's High School and Immaculate Heart College where she was a member of Theta Iota and Delta Epsilon Sigma, honorary sorority. She was an elementary teacher in Palos Verdes.

Mrs. Robert Seymour

Summer Wedding Bells for Joan Reece, Robert Seymour

Belmont Heights Methodist Church was the setting for the nuptial ceremony last Sunday uniting Miss Joan Reece, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clement Reece, 3815 Walnut Ave., and Robert Seymour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Seymour of 3840 Jotham Pl.

Dr. William Kinsey of Whittier, longtime friend of both families, solemnized the double ring service in the presence of 350 guests.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a Cahill original of net over taffeta with a fitted bodice, long sleeves, a yoke of Chantilly lace and a chapel-length train. Her veil cascaded from a Juliet cap trimmed with pearls, and she wore a strand of pearls her mother wore at her wedding. White daisies formed the bridal bouquet.

In ankle-length white organdy gowns and yellow velvet crowns edged with daisies were Mrs. Joan Dreyer Jessup of Indianapolis, Ind., matron of honor; Miss Lorraine Reed of Monrovia, Mrs. Myrtle Seymour Watilo, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Virginia Weaver of San Marino and Miss Luella Downing, bridesmaids. They, too, carried daisy bouquets.

William Watilo was best man and Michael Marshburn, cousin of the bride, ring bearer. Guests were shown to their places by Marvin Sippel, Eugene Knott, Don Wells, and Robert Wells.

Hostesses at the reception in the church social hall were Mrs. Anthony Pierno of Whittier, Mmes. C. K. Wells, Phillip Reece, Curney Reece, A. J. Fracier, Stanley Curtis, Neil Ziegler, Jack Henderson, Lee Shuff, William Pope, Misses Lynda Taves, Donna Reece, Beverly Butler, Frances Ishii, Beverly Tester and Lee Combs.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Poly High School. She is a June graduate of Whittier College where she was affiliated with Metaphonian Society. The bridegroom attends Long Beach State College. After honeymooning at San Moritz and Lake Tahoe, they will reside at 534 Redondo Ave. after Sept. 1.

Homelife With Alyce

By MARYALYCE RIVARD

Since the little cherub spilled the bottle of $45 perfume on the family pet, a gal we know is constantly walking the dog around in the front room in front of her company . . . but $45 or not, he still smells like flea powder and mange cure to me. . . .

MEMO-TO-A-MAN-IN-A-DOG-HOUSE . . . You know, getting along with a woman is not so much having to change your mind . . . as much as it is knowing when to change the subject. . . . Nuff said.

Ever have trouble making your croquettes look like anything but the leaning tower of Pisa? Try shaping them by firmly packing the mixture into a funnel or a paper cone. Then turn out with a knife.

Finally figured out the term "little helper." It has nothing to do with the size of the assistant, evidently . . . but with the amount of help given . . . which is usually as little as possible.

For a really tasty sandwich, add a small can of deviled ham to a cheese cream sauce. Serve it over broiled tomatoes and mushrooms on toast. Mighty fine . . .

Next time you get to thinking that clothes don't make the man . . . think back to some of the things you saw on the beach last summer in trunks. . . .

REMEMBER: "DON'T PART WITH YOUR ILLUSIONS. WHEN THEY ARE GONE YOU MAY STILL EXIST, BUT YOU HAVE CEASED TO LIVE."—MARK TWAIN.

Furs Feature Young Colors

Young colors that can be depended on give a real uplift to this fall's fur fashions. Never before has such an array of beiges, browns, grays, blacks and whites been produced in so many fur varieties. From a practical standpoint many of these arresting tones are in furs that come right within the reach of the alert young college and career girls who budget their wardrobe purchases.

New and perfected tones in the gray, beige and black families give the furs significance because they are in step with the upswing of grays, beiges and blacks in all phases of fall ready to wear.

Beige variations in the new clear tones are offered in every type of fur. Shades of eggshell, silver beige, soft clear tans and rich caramel supplant the rose beige and blond tones of last season. Beige furs gain vitality because they are so right for travel, town and country this year when casual elegance is the keynote of all fall fashions. Sheared muskrat, squirrel, mouton, rabbit coats in the new beige tints look especially right with the new texture and colorings of the new fall tweeds in costumes.

Caramel, a flattering warmed-up beige hue shows to advantage in coats of beaver, sheared raccoon and opossum, as a good choice for both blond and brunette complexions.

Gunmetal gray is the newest entry in a gamut of gray furs that includes beaver, squirrel and mouton. The selection of gray tonalities ranges from the clear light pearly hues on to sapphire, a clear soft shade with slight blue understones. Gray sheared muskrat, beaver, raccoon and opossum coats favor the light gray colors. Squirrel looks new in a gray shade with taupe cast.

White and eggshell have a very youthful and rich look in beaver, sheared muskrat, raccoon and opossum. Lustrous blacks, confined in previous years mainly to high priced furs such as broadtail and fine persian lamb now make their debut in mouton, rabbit and sheared raccoon. Their high style newness continues with the introduction of black mink and black beaver.

Next best to the all-fur fashion news is the use of furs in trimmings and linings of fall cloth coats. Designers favor these fur-trimmed styles in tone-on-tone effects. Taupe fox, platinum beaver and pastel mink trim coats of taupe-toned velours. White furs are used with white fleece fabrics. Beige beaver, muskrat and nutria appear on blond-color coatings.

Women of Moose

There will be an alumnae meeting of Women of the Moose at the home of Mrs. Signe Hagen, 2572 Washington, Dominguez, from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Wednesday. Escorts and ritual practice and a board meeting will take place at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at Moose Hall.

Mrs. Emily Wells is chapter representative this week at a Women of the Moose meeting in Chicago, Ill., where she will receive her star recorder. She is being accompanied by Mrs. Bessie Lovitt, chapter mother and graduate grand regent.

Swim Party

Five Plus Five Donor Group of Jewish War Veterans Auxiliary 593 is staging a swimming party from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday at the Swim-Art, 3970 Cherry Ave. Proceeds will go to veteran rehabilitation. Tickets may be purchased by calling Mrs. David Rossman, Mrs. Mac Tepper or at the door.

White Shrine

Nazareth Shrine No. 8, White Shrine of Jerusalem, will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Town Hall. A birthday party will honor Ruth Wright, worthy high priestess, and William Jordan, watchman of shepherds. Ada M. Lavander is chairman of the event.

new safe All-in-One capsule discovery for easy reducing

science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose
Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but NOW, right NOW, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .
counteracts hunger
Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.
fat goes fast
You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

Planning a Train Trip? These Tips May Be a Help

Traveling by train is exciting to most people. But in this complex life of ours, a little "know-how" helps make train travel pleasanter, more efficient, more enjoyable. Here are a few tips for women from a new booklet, "How to Travel by Train."

First, clothes: most women travelers prefer a simple, wrinkle-resistant suit and a hat without too wide a brim. When occupying a coach seat, you will rest better in loose clothing. For a long trip, take along clothes of easily washable fabrics — such as nylon, orlon and dacron. They can be quickly laundered in any hotel and their use reduces the amount of luggage required.

Regarding luggage: take only the minimum needed and use pieces that can be easily handled in boarding trains and in narrow aisles. Some new types of folding suit and dress carriers—that can be hung against a compartment wall—are very practical if you travel in a Pullman. Also valuable to women travelers is a light vanity case, large enough for personal and cosmetic necessities.

At the station, let the redcaps handle heavy luggage and carry small bags yourself. They charge 15c to 25c per piece of luggage, but most travelers add a 10c to 15c tip.

On tipping a train porter, there's no rule—but generally, a minimum tip for overnight travel is 50c. However, if you occupy a private Pullman room, 75c to a dollar. Passengers usually tip the porter as they leave the train. In the diner, tip as in good restaurants: 10% to 15% of the check. For a small extra charge, you can have the meal served in your Pullman space. A luxurious version of private dining on trains is breakfast in bed—a favorite with many women travelers.

Properly planned, train travel is simple, comfortable, safe—with the added advantage of getting you to your destination as fresh and rested as when you began your trip. For your free copy of "How to Travel by Train," write to Charles J. Hardy, Jr., President, American Car and Foundry Co., New York 8, N. Y.

Soup de Luxe

A cream of chicken soup is good and hearty — delicious when made right. But have you ever gone slightly different, and garnished each cup liberally with chopped toasted nuts? Use almonds or walnuts for this. Make your soup in the double boiler and keep it hot on the back burner of your gas range until ready to serve.

Carver-Hunt Nuptials Read

The Long Beach Naval Station Chapel was the setting Saturday at 11 a.m. for the marriage of Miss Katharine Ransom Hunt, daughter of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Charles B. Hunt of Pasadena, formerly of Long Beach, and Joseph Anthony Carver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Carver of Altadena. Officiating was the bride's uncle, Rev. Edward P. O'Hern, C.S.P.

A Cahill gown, ballerina length, of white embroidered organdy was chosen by the bride. Her brief veil was held in place by a braided tulle headdress. Stephanotis, interspersed with baby ivy, formed her bouquet.

As her sister's maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Hunt wore white dotted swiss over aqua. Mrs. Gordon Stewart and Miss Peggy Havekorst, bridesmaids, were in white dotted swiss over yellow. All carried gold chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's best man was his father, and ushering were Gordon Stewart and Philip Keeler. A reception followed the ceremony at Officers Club, Allen Center.

The newlyweds will reside in Pasadena.

Next Day

For the morning-after-roast-chicken day, saute the chicken liver in butter, cut into pieces, add to your scrambled egg mixture, and serve for breakfast.

Mary Beth Dellinger Wears Embroidered Organdy Gown

Wearing a ballerina-length embroidered Swiss organdy gown, Miss Mary Beth Dellinger became the bride of Stephen Udvari in the presence of close family friends gathered at California Heights Methodist Church, Rev. John Worthington performed the nuptial ceremony.

The bride's veil, designed and made by her aunt, Mrs. Benjamin Carlson of Lorain, Ohio, was of imported nylon illusion net, attached to a Juliet cap outlined in pearls. Completing the bridal array were an heirloom cameo and a colonial bouquet of a single white begonia surrounded by a cluster of stephanotis and lilies of the valley.

Miss Marilyn Wolf of Santa Barbara, classmate of the bride at Pomona College, attended as maid of honor; she wore a silk dress in a champagne shade and carried Talisman roses in orange and gold tones, interspersed with ti leaves.

Best man was Charles D. Reed of Upland, who was the bridegroom's co-pilot on a B-25 bomber when both served in the Air Force during World War II. Ushers were Edward Kirven Jr. of Beverly Hills and Jack Browning Kirven of West Covina.

The wedding reception was at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ilo S. Dellinger, 1512 E. Roosevelt Rd. Hostesses were Mrs. Edward Kirven Sr. of Alhambra, Mrs. Naomi Selway and Miss Geneva Cropper.

The bridal pair met at International House in New York City where they were graduate students at Columbia University. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Udvari of Cairnbrook, Pa., has a master's degree in fine arts from Columbia and will return to complete work for his doctor's degree in communications and communications arts.

The bride, a graduate of Poly High School, was graduated from Pomona College and completed her training as a registered occupational therapist at Columbia.

The newlyweds are honeymooning at Carmel.

Miss Byers Wed in LDS Ceremony

Speaking their marriage vows in an evening ceremony at Latter-day Saints Church were Miss Virginia Anne Byers, daughter of Mrs. Geneva Johnson Byers, 502 Orizaba Ave., and Douglas Hugh Thompson, son of Mrs. Helene Hayes Thompson of 778 Molino Ave. Bishop William Appleberry solemnized the nuptial service.

Miss Byers' gown, decked in front with iridescent decor, feature a white Chantilly lace bodice and a hooped skirt with a white tulle ruffled chapel-length train. A jeweled coronet held her illusion veil, and she carried a white orchid, carnations and bouvardia in a cascade arrangement.

In the wedding party were Mrs. Dorothy Combs, matron of honor; Carolyn Furbay and Beverly Vogel, bridesmaids; Diane Combs, flower girl; James D. Thrasher, best man; Merle Combs and James Vogel, ushers; Steven Vogel, ring bearer. The reception was at the church.

The former Miss Byers is a graduate of Poly High School and Long Beach City College where she was vice president of Alpha Mu Gamma. The bridegroom was graduated from Wilson High School and USC.

They will reside at 810 Cherry Ave.

Easier Ironing

Here's a better way to starch clothes. Dissolve one cake of wax ironing aid in each quart of basic starch. This is what happens: Ironing is an easier, smoother process for one thing; but, in addition, the fabric acquires a smoother, glossier, more soil-resistant finish than when starch alone is used. The result is that clothes resist getting dirty!

Laundering

Folded items like handkerchiefs and table linens sometimes stay folded during use. They're bound to collect soil particularly at these folds. Insurance for complete cleanliness is taken care of by a pre-laundering treatment — a brisk and sudsy rubbing with a soft brush or sponge. Follow up with a washing in hot water. Then toss in your clothes dryer, using them as buffers for more fragile items, like nylons.

Novel Ideas

Are you planning a party, particularly for brides? Then you should consult a new book just published by T. S. Denison & Co. called "Showers for All Occasions" by Germaine Haney. The author is well known for her articles on family life and hospitality.

The book contains many original ideas which have been tested by members of her classes in conversation and personality development, as well as the readers of her column. Many of her friends have helped to formulate this book.

Although the text contains complete instructions for making invitations and decorations, as well as planning entertainment and menus, the author hopes the hostess will inject a little of her own personality into ideas for a party. Most of all, the author is eager to make the hostess feel that entertaining is not a task, but fun.

The Sewing Club of Emily R. Jewell Tent 15, DUV, will sponsor a card party at Patriotic Hall at noon Thursday. Dessert will be served and awards made. Florence Tallman is chairman of the event.

LADIES' DAY FASHION SHOW

Over the coffee cups Mrs. Otto Boll, left; Mrs. William T. J. Harris, Mr. Harris and Dr. Boll, discuss the forthcoming fall fashion revue to be a feature of Ladies' Day Tuesday at the Kiwanis luncheon in Lafayette Supper Room. Kiwanis president Harris and Dr. Boll, program chairman, have arranged the show for their wives with women's apparel from Chrysteen's, furs from Lockwood's and men's wear from Walt Jordan's. Wilma Hastings will be commentator. Incidental music will be by the Phil Horton Trio.—(Staff photo.)

Poultry Theme Set for Patio Gathering

By JANET REYNOLDS

There WILL NOT be setting hens on nests and crowing roosters when the Poultrymen's Co-operative Association entertains the Orange County Chapter of Executive's Secretaries and their guests Wednesday at a "firm night" in their Garden Grove plant, but decorations in the patio, where dinner will be served, will carry out the poultry theme!

This is the word noised abroad by Willabelle Foley, chapter member, who with other local PCA personnel is arranging the event. Cohostess with her is Lucille Starkey, associate member from the firm, and official host is Caleb Lewis, manager of the Grove PCA branch.

Approximately 150 secretaries, their bosses, and guests will attend the firm night, according to Mrs. Foley. PCA official H. C. Heard will address the group following dinner. A plant tour is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. and dinner at 7:30 with Mrs. Verona Weeks, chapter president, in charge.

Ricardo's strolling troubadors will entertain during the hospitality and dinner hours.

Over Westminster way they're talking about — the Shearn children who helped the Westminster Garden Club win second place for organization displays in the horticulture section of the Orange County Fair.

Chris, Mike, and Tony — whose dad, Jim Shearn, was chairman of the committee which arranged the display, a charming "Mexican Cafe" interpretation — gathered rocks for the desert landscaping. And they were that proud, you'd thought they won the award.

Other garden club members assisting with the booth were Tom Richards, Mrs. Helen McGrew, Doyle Vaughn and Mrs. M. E. Wright.

Waterproof

No matter where you locate your laundry, remember that the counter tops should be waterproof. Adjoining the kithen, off in an ell, or situated below-stairs, the washday center should have easily wiped walls and sorting counters, so that the job of keeping the laundry clean takes only a matter of minutes.

Newlyweds Take Tahoe Wedding Trip

A honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe followed the marriage of Miss Lillian Irene Leedom, daughter of the Harold W. Leedoms, 2546 Cota Ave., to Danzil Charles Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Hall of Burbank. The wedding took place at the Church of the Recessional at Forest Lawn with Bishop Paul Wadel officiating.

Members of the wedding party were Miss Beverly Ballew, maid of honor; Edward Dickey, best man; Miss Dara Rittenhouse, bridesmaid; Ted Roman, Earl Jones and Robert Paysinger, ushers.

Ivory satin and Florentine lace were combined for the bridal gown, which was styled with a lace molded bodice and a back lace panel extending from the waist to the train. A half cap of lace, decked with sequins and pearls completed her ensemble and she carried a white Testament with a white orchid, lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

The wedding reception was at the Los Feliz Brown Derby.

The former Miss Leedom was graduated from Poly High School and is a nursing student at UCLA. The bridegroom, an alumnus of Burbank High School, served two years in the Army.

The couple will reside in North Hollywood.

Glentex Presents Jaunty Collection of 'Little Wraps' for Fall Wardrobe

In a season of fashions where necklines are news and color, line and fabric take on new importance and new elegance — Glentex presents a collection of scarfs, wraps, collars, ties and stoles destined to make fashion headlines and designed to bring exciting and almost unlimited costume changes to your fall wardrobe.

The "little wrap" so important in this season's fashion picture is a highlight of the collection, developed in many versions and fabrics. Keyed to the look of elegance prevailing throughout the 1954 fashion story, are the fake furs, the "almost real" jackets of broadtail, persian and chinchilla—and the classic leopard.

The richness of velvet and satin are combined by Glentex in a group of carefree little accessory wraps—capes, capelets and jackets — which are predestined for popularity as an evening cover-up fashion. Also in this group is the fichu — an over-size velvet triangle faced with gleaming white satin—an adaptable little wrap sure to become a headliner for gala wear.

Sharing cover-up honors with the ever practical, ever popular, versatile stole are the shrugs, cardigans, bolero and eton jackets—and the new casual shapes such as the blouson —in woven fabrics and bulky knits.

Vivid hues such as turquoise, shocking, capri, scarlet and gold make colorful neckwear news in the scarf collection. And scarf prints reflect both the Eastern influence in colorful paisley prints that appear throughout the entire collection in both silks and wool challis, as well as the clear, crisp stand-bys of geometrics, diminutive abstracts and borderline prints.

Tweed-printed scarfs are a ned and colorful accessory accent to team with monotone sweaters and wools. The tone-on-tone theme is represented by beautiful small patterned Italian prints of heavenly hues. These are shown in 18 and 36-inch companion squares. Florals blossom with colorful abundance in bright and warm-hued tones, and novelty prints in the Currier and Ives manner are conversation-making scarfs with a high gift-giving potential.

Designed by Glentex with the college girl in mind are all manner of campus fashions to catch the eye of the bright co-ed. Cuddly little collars of frosty white angora, and colorful rib-knit fill-ins in the favored turtle-neck—are neckline transformers designed by Glentex as wardrobe extenders for the college girl on a clothes allowance. For the new shirt fashion and high-necked sweaters Glentex has an array of "old-school" ties in solid and color combinations decorated with rhinestone and sequin sparklers. These all snap in back so that the carefully tied knot always remains undisturbed.

For those who like to flaunt their college loyalty with an added dash of fashion, there's a long, versatile, striped scarf, knitted in leading college colors. Also knitted in college colors and bright solid shades is the Bo-Bo—a snug stocking cap long enough to wrap around the neck several times, and finished with a huge wool tassel.

Laban H. Brewer

Chef of the Week

'Green Thumb' Banker Is Expert in Kitchen

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
(Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor.)

He has a green thumb! It produces both at the bank and in his garden. Everything that he touches grows—even after he's chopped it down. Known for his careful grooming, there's nothing he enjoys more than donning old clothes for a working trek to the garden. Chef of the Week Laban H. Brewer, a native Californian, came from Lakeport, to our Southland in 1907, where his Dad, an attorney and gentleman farmer pioneered the Imperial Valley.

El Centro at that time consisted of just one short block and an opera house, the first building. While Brewer first visited Long Beach in 1914 it was 29 years later that he decided to take the position of president of the People's Bank of Lakewood and make Long Beach his home.

With the exception of two years in World War I, the banking business has been his vocation. Starting as bookkeeper in the old Southern Trust & Commerce Bank of El Centro, he remained there until Gianinni of the Bank of America took it over. He next became auditor for the Whittier First National Bank until Gianinni decided he wanted that bank, too.

It was then that our "chef" joined forces with that gentleman and became manager of the Bank of America, La-Habra. He opened the first bank for them at Covina, later becoming manager of that bank at Santa Paula. There he remained until he was appointed to his present position.

A graduate of the Long Beach chapter of American Inst. of Banking, he has a potent past president's record of many organizations. For three years he was a member of the school board of La-Habra: and his excellent record there, no doubt, prompted the recent unanimous vote for him by the Long Beach School Board to fill the vacancy left by Mayor Vermillion. Zone chairman of Lions International, he has also been Deputy Dist. Governor of Lions—is immediate past president of the Community Chest, and at present serves on that board of directors and on the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, as well.

As a trout fisherman he's tops—but as a golfer he considers himself a complete fizzle. He is in no way a fix-it man about the house, but his cooking propensities are really something. His specialty is original with him; and for years he permitted no one in the kitchen to learn his various secrets. It's that good, however, that it has become the family's Christmas Eve supper fare. Here's the recipe:

CLAM CHOWDER BY BREWER

4 lg. russet potatoes
3 lg. onions
2 cans minced clams
1 can clam juice
1 lb. bacon
Milk, salt to taste—pepper

Peel and dice potatoes. Boil in salted water till they fall to pieces, stirring often to keep from sticking to the pot. This makes the thickening for the chowder and should be like mush. Cut sliced bacon in strips and fry until crisp. Remove from grease. Slice onions into bacon grease and fry until well done. Pour off excess grease. Add onions, bacon, clams and juice to the cooked potatoes. Add enough milk to make it the desired consistency. Serve as main dish with French sour dough bread.

National Honor for Miss Flanary

Miss Mildred Flanary, Independent, Press-Telegram Food Editor, was notified this past week of a national honor awarded by the National Federation of Press Women. She won a second place award for a feature story in a daily newspaper. The story was her "Chef of the Week" column on Vice President Richard Nixon which appeared in the Women's Section of the Independent, Press-Telegram last spring. Miss Flanary is a member of California Press Women.

Why Grow Old?

You Can Change Hairline

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It is a comparatively new idea that electrolysis can be used, with wonderful results, to correct an unattractive hairline. For a long time we thought of it only as a means to get rid of unwanted hair on the face or arms or legs.

I do not mean to suggest that we all dash out and have our hairline changed. This would be silly unless we have a real handicap in the way our hair grows about our forehead and at the temples. However, there are many who are really handicapped in best looks because of this.

For instance, let us consider the woman whose hair grows far down on her forehead. She may have an adequate forehead and a well shaped face but the low hairline spoils her appearance. Then some women may have hair which grows much further down on one side of the forehead than on the other, to such an extreme degree, that this gives them a one-sided look.

In older women the hair sometimes grows down at the temples and these stringy hairs, falling down the sides of the face, are not attractive. All of these conditions and any other similar ones can be permanently corrected by electrolysis.

Electrolycists do this so gradually that even husbands do not realize what is happening to their wives until they suddenly notice that the wife is much better looking than she was, that she looks prettier than usual. When lifting a too-low hairline on the forehead, the operator works on both sides each time so that there is no lack of symmetry.

The way your hair grows about your face and the manner in which you arrange your tresses makes an unbelievable difference in the way you look. Often I have seen friends and members of my family look much prettier at night when their hair was not arranged in the usual coiffure than they do in the daytime. If you notice this about yourself, learn from it. Perhaps your hair is pressed closer to your face or is higher or lower after a night of sleeping. Learn from it!

If you would like to have my leaflet which gives you some simple rules to follow, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the leaflet "Framing Your Face Attractively," No. 51. Address Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

(Josephine Lowman appears daily in the Press-Telegram.)

HIGH FASHION for the well dressed Southland woman come fall is this striking two-piece suit in heavy jersey suiting. The trim skirt is in the newest shade of charcoal grey and the pin-striped jacket is in antique gold and grey, lined with antique gold crepe. Flattering features are the cardigan neckline and self button trim. Completing the picture is a velour hat with lacquered quill trim. The suit comes in sizes 10 to 16 and is priced around $60, and the hat is priced around $25.

(For the name of the store showing this style, phone Susan at 70-5951, Ext. 249, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday, or write Susan, Dept. A, Independent, Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Vivid Colors Featured in Sportswear

Coordination, washability and costume separates will be the three main features in young sportswear this fall. Tweeds, very important in skirts, have a new appearance. Colorful nubs on donegal, diagonals and on a few herringbones add bright accent to the fabrics. Predominantly in grays, browns, greens and navy, these nubs shine forth in bright colors, newest of which is burnt orange used glowingly on brown.

Washable wool and cotton lisle knit blouses are dyed to pick up one of the colors of the skirt nubs, slubs, clips or plaids. Often a touch of the skirt fabric itself is brought to the collar or cuffs of the blouse.

Skirt silhouettes vary with size ranges. Straightline separate skirts are favored for the sub-teen and teen-agers. Inverted back pleats, adaptations of the English walker and skirts with released pleats near the hemline are strongest in straight styles. In the 7-14 range, skirts with modified flares, circular and tiered lines are important.

Box jackets and classic blazers vie with modified Eisenhower types for attention. Knitted cuffs, and sometimes knitted necklines are common to boxy and Eisenhower styles.

The color picture for fall has changed most noticeably as compared with last year. This year there is a new return to dark, traditional autumn colors, with a swing back to such tones as dark red, dark green, navy and brown.

Child Care

Her Reason for Adopting Inadequate

By BEULAH FRANCE, R. N.

(Q) "An unavoidable operation before marriage made motherhood impossible for me. Of course my husband knew this. But now he so strongly wants a child that I wonder if we should adopt one. Frankly, I'm not eager to, but I do want to hold my husband's love. What do you think about it?"
—Mrs. U. C.

(A) I feel there should be an overwhelming desire on the part of both husband and wife before a baby is adopted. If you lack the longing for motherhood which most women feel, I rather doubt that any agency would want to let you have a child.

Adopting a baby to hold a marriage together would be even more risky than bearing one's own child for this express purpose. Neither plan works well. In fact marriage counselors discourage such experiments.

I have just read a most delightful book written by an adopting father, Harry Bell. It's seldom that I find an informative work which fascinates me with its story as this one did. I suggest that you read it before you decide what to do. The title is: "We Adopted a Daughter." Its subtitle reads: "An intimate account of learning to be a father." Have your husband read it too, or, better still, read it aloud to each other.

The Bells were astonished to find, when they decided to "investigate" the pros and cons of adoption, that they themselves were investigated to the "nth" degree. They had not realized how adoption laws had been tightened during their married childlessness.

"What makes you think we should give you a child?" is a question which would be put to both of you. If you glibly answered, "Because I believe it would make our marriage more secure," it is not hard to predict what would happen.

Molly Mayfield

Complains Hubby's Anti-Social

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
My husband is a devoted husband and father, doesn't flirt with other women, doesn't drink or go out with the boys. We get along fine except for one thing — he is definitely anti-social.

We live in a small town where there are many functions to be attended by families as a group, or by husbands and wives. But he won't go to any of these.

I realize all his virtues, but I, too, have virtues—am a good wife and mother—as he would assure you in glowing terms. But he won't go out in public at all, claims he sees other people all day and that's enough for him.

I feel like a widow, always having to go alone to functions where we should be together. And believe me, it is beginning to get under my skin. If he adores me so much (as he says he does), why doesn't he show it once in a while by doing something for me, like going out with me?

As I see it, he is just selfish and thinks only of himself, or stubborn and won't give in. What do you think, Molly? We both read your column and I think you could influence him. I can't.—B.P.

DEAR B. P.:

I guess you have a common problem, all right, though that's small comfort. You'd be surprised at the number of letters I get saying much the same thing: "My old man is anti-social. All he wants to do is stay at home."

It's terribly hard to know what to advise. One reader wrote that she had gradually eased her husband into going out by occasionally having a small group of people in and making doubly sure that he had a good time. (How she could guarantee this, she didn't say). She said that when he found he could enjoy himself in such social gatherings, he wasn't at all difficult to talk into going to a variety of places.

Maybe another scheme would work. You might get your husband to agree to going out, say, three or four times a month with the proviso that you wouldn't try to cajole him into going oftener.

Frankly, I think it is very selfish of any man flatly to refuse to accompany his wife on at least a few occasions—just as it would be unreasonable of her to expect him to go out night after night after night. It does look as though you might wheedle him into a compromise that would satisfy both of you.—M. M.

P. S. If you could put it across that people enjoyed him and missed him, might that help?

Most Parents Try to Rear Their Children Properly

By ANGELO PATRI

There are, in my experience, three sorts of parents. There are those who won't let the children think and act on their own power under any circumstances. They are conscientious fathers and mothers who are so eager to rear their children to perfection in every field that they hover over them, bind them with chains of steel to their will so that the children either rebel or surrender all initiative.

There are parents, who wanting their children to grow into courageous self-sustaining people, give them full freedom in everything, in every way. This results in bad manners, poor behavior, and friendlessness. These children blunder into situations that can be embarrassing to them and to others, into mistakes that will prove costly to all concerned. It takes years of trial to free these children from the bonds resulting from their freedom.

Then we have the old-fashioned parent who believes that children are in need of restraint, of discipline, of instruction in the ways of right living. He is old-fashioned in the sense that he has fixed his standards on the truth proven by ages of living to be truths. To him the Ten Commandments are about the best code of manners and morals yet discovered. His children grow up to wholesome useful maturity. They are happy to live within the law.

During my years of service to children I have met many parents. I have yet to meet one who was not trying to do his best for his children in accordance with his ability. At times his lack of knowledge, experience and training that might have given him the ability, were lacking so he made grievous mistakes. In the main parents are idealists where their children are concerned. The world their children live in is their hearts, and these they offer up in their service daily. They do what they can. When they fail it is because they could do no better.

Even the best of parents, those experienced, trained and devoted, fail to realize their ideals. Remember Adam had his Cain, David his Amnon. You need not go far to name someone who has his failure. The outcome is not always in the parents' hands.

To those who know, who try, who sacrifice and pray, and still fail, must go the understanding and sympathy of all who watch apart. To those who do not know, who do not have the understanding and knowledge that might enable them to help their children do well, must go the helpful advice and friendly consideration that may enable them to see the better way.

To all fathers and mothers of this nation's children should go the thanks and prayers of all hopeful, helpful understanding people.

Nutmeg Topper

Now that you can keep a sizeable quantity of ice cream in the freezing unit of your refrigerator, experiments with this favorite dessert are in order. Serve scoops of ice cream covered with grated fresh nutmeg—tastes good, and looks good too.

Baby Clothes

Like to have the pleats and ruffles on your baby's best clothes really perky? To each quart of thin starch, add a cake of ironing aid. You'll be rewarded with much easier, quicker ironing as well as a fresher looking finish for a longer time.

Pumpkin Pie

For a pumpkin pie: Add a little shredded coconut just before the pie has finished baking in the oven of your gas range. It will toast to a golden brown while the pie finishes baking—adding eye-appeal as well as taste-appeal.

Defense Is Troublesome

North was very disappointed when South ran out of the double of three clubs. Actually, West would have lost only one heart, one diamond, and two clubs.

South didn't think he was particularly safe at spades, but he was correct about feeling dissatisfaction with the double of three clubs. As things turned out, South had the pleasure of making his contract when the defense slipped.

West opened the ace of hearts and then switched to his singleton diamond. Declarer took the ace and promptly cashed the king of diamonds, hoping that West had led from a doubleton.

West was able to ruff the second round of diamonds and should have cashed the ace of clubs at once to make sure of defeating the contract. Instead, West foolishly led his remaining heart.

South won with the king of hearts and led a low heart right back. West could still defeat the contract by ruffing high and cashing the ace of clubs, but West couldn't see the danger.

When West actually discarded a club, declarer ruffed the low heart in dummy and led another high diamond in order to discard his singleton club. Now the contract could not be defeated. The defenders could get three trump tricks and the ace of hearts, but there they would stop.

Macaroni Dish

Cook as much macaroni or spaghetti as you need for supper. Drain it well. Then make a good sauce from your favorite recipe. Season with salt and pepper, and add about a cup of finely chopped left-over meat—ham, beef or tongue. Heat to almost boiling over the direct flame of the top burner, and pour it over the macaroni. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, and serve.

Unwise Dating Usually Results in Unhappiness

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case L-390: Sarah M., aged 28, is an office secretary.

"Dr. Crane, I am at my wits end," she said and began to cry. "A fellow in our firm began to date me regularly. After the first few times we had been out together, he told me he was married.

"So I told him I couldn't go out with him. But he coaxed and said his wife was away part of the time at her folks, so he was lonely.

Well, I was lonely, too, so finally I started going with him again. Besides, he said he loved me, and his wife didn't understand him. He said we'd get married some day and insisted on staying at my apartment several times.

"But, oh, Dr. Crane, now I find I am going to have a baby and he has deserted me and gone back to his wife."

Yesterday I told you that parents must look ahead to avoid leaving dangerous temptations in plain sight of their toddlers. I told you mothers to use the back burners on your stoves, for the front burners are no more efficient and they predispose to scaldings.

Well, the same need for foresight holds of you adult girls, as well as men. The Bible says: "Look not on the wine while it is red!" That means, don't play with fire and tantalize yourself toying with forbidden things.

Learn to ride herd on your emotions! If you know a thing is wrong, it is simpler and much safer to avoid even the first contacts therewith.

Girls, if a man is married, don't go out with him, despite his pleading about a wife who doesn't understand him.

And quit falling a victim to the fallacy that you must be married to be happy. You can be happy unmarried, as many wonderful people have demonstrated.

Many of you readers have unmarried uncles or aunts who remained that way all their lives, but they were happy. For happiness is never a matter of 100 per cent vs. 0. Many foolish girls, however, think "If I marry I'll be 100 per cent happy but if I don't get a man, then my happiness will be zero!"

That's a stupid viewpoint. If you aren't 100 per cent happy (and who is?) then try for 95 per cent or 87 per cent or 75 per cent, etc. Indeed, many married women are miserable, while lots of gracious unmarried folks are popular and happy.

So look ahead, and cut off any dangerous personal ties that will grow and grow with repetition.

"Cobwebs become cables by repetition" runs an old proverb. Break the initial cobweb when it is wrong, instead of toying and playing along with it till it becomes of cable size.

If you girls go around with single men of good character, and of eligible qualifications, then your many happy experiences together will turn your "cobweb" of casual attraction into a real "cable" of true love.

But at the start, while you can view things soberly and impartially, be sure you pick wisely. Don't run around with married men or even single fellows who are obviously unfit for husbands.

Hot Water White

The most important feature of your children's clothes is washability. With the aid of hot water and your clothes dryer, there is no longer a problem of keeping your children's clothes looking just like new.

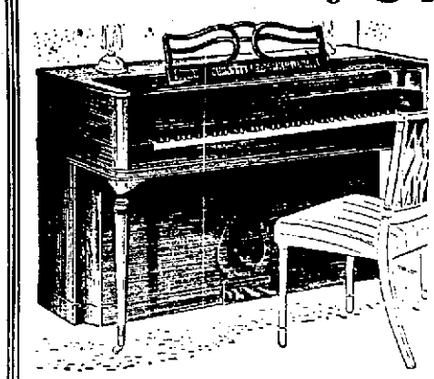

Cleaning Hint

While your curtains are being laundered, wash the enameled rod in hot soapsuds, wipe dry and apply a thin coating of wax. After the wax dries, polish the rods, and you'll find that the curtains slip on easily.

Why Baseball Is a Boy's Best Game

by George (Specs) Toporcer

A former St. Louis Cardinals star, George (Specs) Toporcer has been lecturing and writing on baseball since he went blind three years ago. He is one of the game's top "salesmen."

PERHAPS IT was because I soiled and ripped my clothes while playing baseball as a youngster, or perhaps it was because I spent practically all of my time playing, thinking or reading baseball, thereby neglecting things considered more important by my parents. At any rate, they frowned on the game which had such a terrific appeal to me, with the result that dad gave me more than one paddling for failing to be on time for meals, or for returning home with my clothes torn from sliding on ball fields.

Who could blame him? Neither he, nor my mother, had any knowledge whatsoever of baseball. It has always been a source of regret to me that my mother and dad failed to live to see their son realize his ambition. I am sure they would have been proud to see me as a major leaguer.

There were many other youngsters who went ahead despite the discouragements with which they were faced. A striking example was Lou Gehrig, whose mother felt much the same as my dad. Fortunately, he persisted and became one of the great figures in baseball history.

Like Lou and myself, most of the old-timers loved the game with an intensity rarely found among boys of today. To us, and to many of my playmates of 40 years ago, the crack of a bat, or the smack of a ball against a leather glove always provided a genuine thrill. If it hadn't, it is more than likely that many of us would have turned our backs on baseball, for certainly there were none of today's opportunities and incentives.

You probably do not realize how much easier the road to the majors has been made for you in recent years. We old-timers had no Little Leagues, no Little Big Leagues, no American Legion sponsored teams. A good percentage of youngsters failed to enter high school because of the necessity of helping in the business of swelling the family income.

So much for opportunity. But what about rewards? Of course you probably know that, once established in the big leagues your salary will average from $10,000 to $12,000 per season, but if you become a real star you might be able to command almost any figure. There are about 50 major league stars earning from $20,000 on up each season. Of itself, the salary expectancy should be sufficient to tempt you to try a baseball career.

If you are in a position to do so, by all means go through college before entering pro baseball. Not only will you have your college education to fall back on in the event you fail to reach the top in baseball, but you will not be forced to spend as much time in the minors as a result of your added experience on the college diamonds. But regardless of when you enter the game, if after two seasons you are certain there is no chance for you to advance, make up your mind to quit.

Golden Opportunity

IF YOU MAKE the grade, there is a golden opportunity for you to continue on in baseball after your playing days are over. Every one of the 16 major league managers sprang from the player ranks. So did their coaches, scouts, farm team managers and business personnel.

Baseball can, and often does, pave the way for other sources of income. You will have the privilege of meeting many high executives. These contacts may lead to business opportunities.

One final word. If you succeed in climbing to the majors, you will be well paid for doing something which will be enjoyable to you. In return, you can, and should try to, be an inspiration to millions of kids who may pattern their lives on standards of your making. That will be a real responsibility, but one which should cause you to make up your mind never to betray that trust in you. ■

ON THE COVER:

● The pair of two-month-old jaguar cubs are Señor Lopez and Lolita, among the newest attractions at New York's Bronx Zoo.

How did they fool their father? Mostly by showing up alive and healthy, says Keeper Helen Martini.

"Father jaguars," she points out, "have a nasty way of trying to kill their young right after birth. So, two hours after Señor Lopez and Lolita were born this Spring, we waited until Father Juan was busy trying to swat Mother Juanita and we 'kidnapped' them and took them to safety."

With another cub, not shown here, they were the only animals to receive an imperial pat and grin from Emperor Haile Selassie on his recent visit to the Zoo.

Soon, they will be able to swat Father Juan right back if he gets nasty again. Señor Lopez, weighing only 11 lbs. 9 oz., and Lolita, weighing 10 lbs. 2 oz., will grow up to weigh in the neighborhood of 300 lbs. on a heavy diet of horsemeat. ■

Teetering on piano stool, Leon Carl fiddles away, with bow held between his toes.

He Plays Footsie with a Fiddle

Playing by toe, says this Vermont virtuoso, brings the crowds — and it's a sure cure for bashfulness

ST. ALBANS, VT.

● Do people laugh when you tuck your violin under your chin and launch into a concerto? Do you feel foolish when you're asked to play The Flight of the Bumblebee at a party?

Take note of Mr. Leon G. Carl, the Vermont virtuoso. He, too, used to worry about what people thought of his fiddling—until he got to playing the violin with his toes.

Mr. Carl also is an accomplished violinist standing up. He plays in the Burlington (Vt.) Symphony Orchestra and in a chamber music group, and teaches as well. A student of the violin since he was 12, he has spent years mastering the works of great classic composers.

But, as he explains: "If I were to play the best Beethoven, without bobbling a note, in the regular bow-in-hand manner, chances are people wouldn't walk across the street to hear me. When they hear I'm going to do some toe playing, they come trooping in from miles around. It's only human for a violinist to want an audience."

There's still another reason Mr. Carl—who makes his living farming—is glad he took up toe technique. "I used to have an inferiority complex about my playing," he says. "But when you play toe fashion, it seems to bring you down to earth, and people treat you real socially and folksy. I recommend violin toe playing for all people who are bashful." ■

How You Can Get A Private Playland For $2 An Acre

There are 100 million acres of cheap Government-owned vacation land you can buy. But you have to track it down yourself. The map at right will show you where to look

MAP BY GEORGE PETER

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL
PARADE WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE to own one of the Florida keys, a semi-tropical vacation paradise all your own? Or spend week ends on your own camp site along one of the fabled fishing streams in the Ozarks? Or loll on your own sand beach along the Gulf of Mexico? Or perhaps you'd prefer the more rugged shoreline of a wooded island in northern Lake Michigan.

You can buy any of these choice vacation sites at a "bargain basement" price—possibly as little as $2 an acre. And all of them will be up for sale within the next few months.

But these aren't the only bargains offered by the nation's largest real estate agency, Uncle Sam's Bureau of Land Management. There are many more—100,000,000 acres more, in fact. The only hitch is that the agency has no sales promotion staff, no glowing literature, not even a master list. In most cases, there's not even a "contact" you can question about where the properties are. In fact, the Bureau isn't too sure what land—or how much—it owns. But with a dash of pioneering spirit and a little hard work, you can track down a year-round retreat for yourself.

For instance: Uncle Sam had completely overlooked his land in Lake Michigan until a group from Zeeland, Mich., "discovered" High Island, an uninhabited dot covered with birch, aspen, maple and cedar, by flying over it and taking aerial photographs. Under the name of High Island Corp., they filed public notice they were bidding for a 40-acre plot. The notice appeared in a local newspaper once a week for five weeks, and there were no competitive bids. The island plot cost the group $400.

How does Uncle Sam happen to be in the vacation real estate business? These lands are the leftovers from the old homesteading days. They consist of a patch here and a patch there that the pioneers decided weren't suitable for homesteading. But many of them are fine for hunting, fishing, camping, swimming or surfcasting.

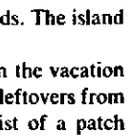

Because these public lands have belonged to the Government since then, Uncle Sam would like to get rid of as much of his acreage as possible. Management of 100,000,000 scattered acres isn't economic, and the U.S. thinks they should be put back on the local tax rolls. In the next two years, the Government hopes to sell a good part of this land.

Suppose you decide you'd like one of these bargain retreats. How do you go about it? Unfortunately, many states have no public land at all. This applies to the 13 original colonies, plus Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio.

Most of the available acreage, in fact, is packed into 11 western states—Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, California and Nevada. Nevada alone has 46,000,000 acres, Oregon 13,000,000. But, as mentioned above, there are still a few spots in the Florida Keys, the Ozarks, Lake Michigan, the Gulf Coast and Wisconsin.

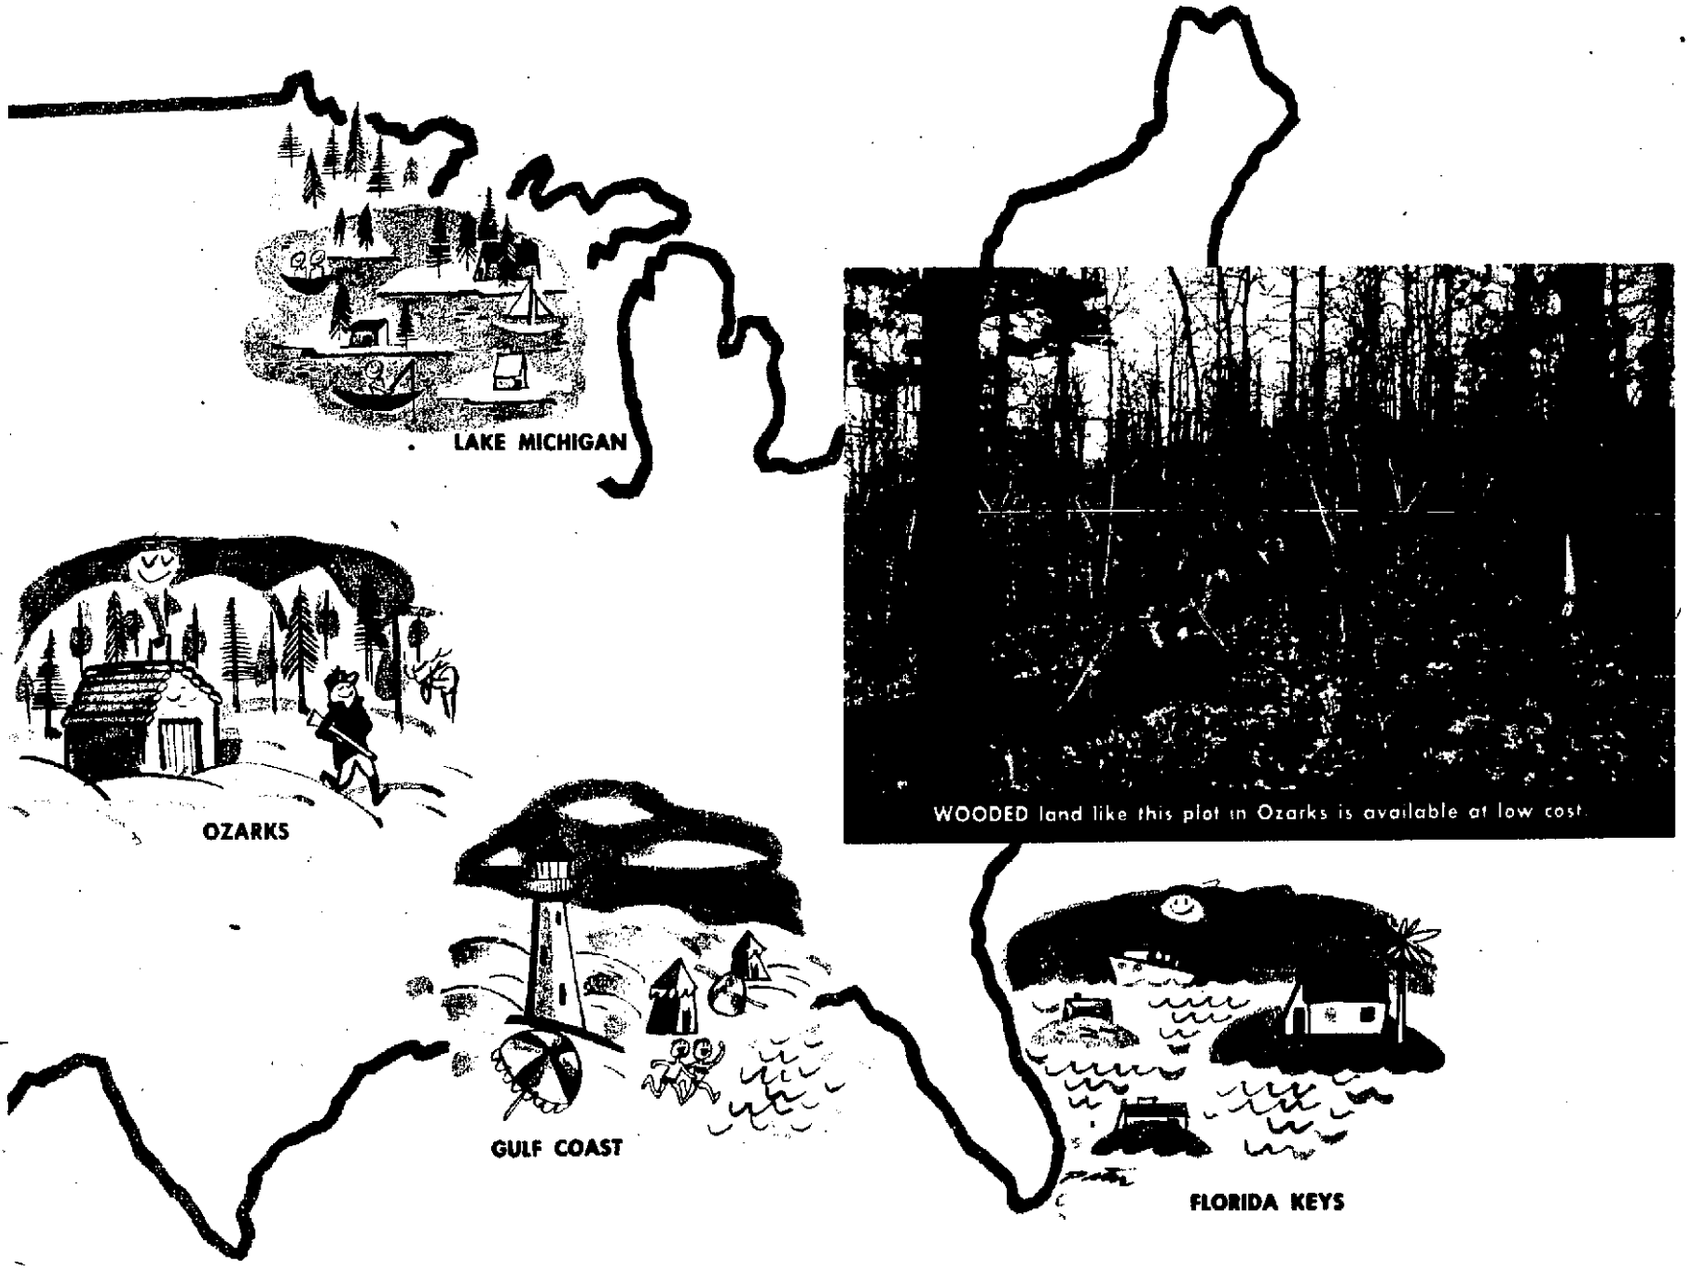

After you've decided on a state, you go "prospecting" for a likely site. The Bureau of Land Management has no list or map to guide you. You have to strike out on your own until you find an uninhabited

INTERIOR SECRETARY McKAY ENCOURAGES 'PIONEERING'

Here's what Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay told PARADE about the sale of Federal land:

"The sale of small tracts of Federal land is in the best American tradition of private land ownership. The Federal Government is offering scattered tracts which are not on the tax rolls and are difficult to administer. The lands cannot be utilized for any public development. They do, however, offer opportunities for individuals to secure a piece of land on which to build a home, a summer camp, or to establish a small business. Land, wherever located, is valuable to someone. We hope these scattered tracts can be put to use by persons willing to make the necessary investigations to acquire them."

WOODED land like this plot in Ozarks is available at low cost.

area. Then check the county records to see if the land is Government-owned and for sale under the Small Tracts Act. If it is, a classification order is issued. As "discoverer" you get first crack at the property. After that, veterans get priority.

Here's what it will cost you: You pay a $10 filing fee. Then you pay $5 a year to keep it on ice until you make "improvements"—which need be no more than an outdoor grill. A Government appraiser will inspect the land and set a value—probably not more than $50 for a five-acre tract. (Recently, however, the Government charged $18,000 for a valuable business site on a main highway four miles from Las Vegas, Nev.)

And this procedure is about to be simplified, probably within six months. The lease period will be abolished and the land will be sold outright.

Then there's another method: the public auction. Often the Government doesn't know it owns valuable vacation land until some "prospector" discovers it and persuades the land bureau to hold a public sale. Such a sale is held by advertising in local newspapers once a week for five weeks (as the High Island Corp. did). The ads seldom attract more than one or two bidders. The highest bid above the Government's minimum price, set by an appraiser, takes the property.

Not long ago, Alfred F. Hunter, of Shawnee, Okla., bought 11 wooded tracts in the Ozarks at a public sale. He paid $3 to $4 an acre. And E. K. Snyder, of Lubbock, Tex., bought two tracts near Bull Shoals Reservoir, in the Ozarks, for $295. His new hunting camp totals 80 acres. And I. B. Honeycutt of Eldorado, Ark., bought 40 acres, sight unseen, for $90. He submitted his bid by mail.

The Ozark area is one place where pioneering is made easy for you. The District Forester, Bureau of Land Management, Box 189, Russellville, Ark., will send you maps of the area and minimum prices of tracts. About to be advertised for sale are 115,000 acres, much of it near the White River, a noted fishing stream. The country abounds with deer, quail and ducks—and rugged scenery. You can probably corner a 40-acre tract by bidding $2 to $4 an acre.

The Florida Keys

ALSO SCHEDULED FOR SALE SOON are a couple of dozen tiny islands, splashed like a broken strand of beads along the Florida coast. Some are as close as 30 miles to Miami; others are mere clumps of undergrowth, washed by heavy seas but suitable as bases for deep-sea fishing. You can get some information about them by writing the Bureau of Land Management.

Because of the pioneering work done by the High Island Corp., two more islands have been "discovered" in Lake Michigan and will be sold soon. They're South Fox and Beaver Islands, and they combine wooded land, fishing waters and bathing beaches. They ought to be within the price range of the average working man.

The rolling surf of the Gulf of Mexico and a sand beach are the attractions at Horn Island, 12 miles off Pascagoula, Miss. The island even has a Coast Guard lighthouse, handy for sailors to steer by. There is a catch, however. The Government wants to sell the land in 700-acre tracts. But a club or community might form a corporation to buy a slice of the island, like the High Island Corp. did.

Much small-tract buying lately has centered around the Las Vegas area and in nearby areas of Southern California and Arizona. California residents, particularly, seem anxious to find vacation spots dirt cheap, even if they have to carry their own drinking water. Also, "pioneers" lately have been scouting the Wisconsin lakes. Dr. H. M. Richter of Chicago recently bought a ⅓ acre island in Pine Lake there for $50.

These are just a few of the "steals" offered in Uncle Sam's real estate "bargain basement." Any American with a dash of pioneering spirit can be the lucky purchaser—except Bureau of Land Management employes. "That's the trouble with this job," Harold Hochmutt, chief of land classification, says. "You find out about these terrific pieces of property, like High Island, and there's nothing you can do about it." ■

THIS SULTRY SHOT of Janet Leigh singing Never Trust a Man is taken from her newest film, Rogue Cop.

Originally, the idea was to let you watch three minutes of Janet performing in form-fitting lace.

But the MGM experts did some second guessing. Nicholas Nayfac, the producer, and Roy Rowland, the director, cut this sequence down to a mere flash.

The reason (so they say): it slowed down the action of the film!

Here's cool summer cooking—thanks to an outdoor electric outlet, an infrared broiler and an electric coffee-maker.

Porch Supper

by Beth Merriman, PARADE'S FOOD EDITOR

Here's a wonderful supper for a warm August evening, hearty enough to please the men, yet easy and cool to prepare. The menu at right tells the food story; its feature is Ring-o-Gold Lamburgers—a brand-new and delicious recipe. If you're not lucky enough to own an infrared broiler, you still can broil indoors and serve supper outside.

Kitchen Hint: Never cook tender corn more than 7 minutes—counting from the moment the water re-boils after the corn is added. It will keep hot in a covered jumbo plastic canister (see photo).

PORCH SUPPER MENU

Ring-o-Gold Lamburgers
Toasted Buns Corn-on-the-Cob
Tomato and Cucumber Salad
Radishes Mixed Pickles Spring Onions
Watermelon Chunks Coffee or Tea

RING-O-GOLD LAMBURGERS

1 lb. lean lamb, ground
½ cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten
6 pineapple slices

Sauce:

¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons pineapple juice

For the burgers, mix together all ingredients except pineapple slices. Form mixture into flat patties. Press a pineapple slice into each patty. Broil slowly until brown on both sides. Turn burgers pineapple side up in pan. Baste with sauce and continue broiling until burgers are glazed. Serve hot with additional sauce.

For the sauce, combine all ingredients. Cook over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Use to glaze burgers.

COLUMNIST'S NOTE: Paul Hahn, America's trickiest golfer, stepped out of tournament play when he found he could make at least $100,000 a year giving an average of five trick-shot exhibitions a week. By now he's met and observed just about every golfing celebrity in the land, from Hollywood to Washington to Broadway. Recently I met Paul on the course at Grossinger, N. Y. Below you see the conversation we had.—Hy Gardner.

"THERE'S ONLY one thing wrong with your golf game," Paul Hahn said after watching me goof a few holes. "You stand too close to the ball—after you hit it."

"That's a trouble I've had," I admitted, "as far back as I can remember that joke. But since we're diagnosing the game, you've seen the best of 'em and some of the worst. How about rating some of the celebrities for PARADE?"

Paul considered. "All right," he said finally. "Anything's better than playing another hole with you. . . .

"I guess," he went on, "we ought to start with the man who's done more to popularize the game than Ben Hogan. Bing Crosby and Bob Hope combined—President Eisenhower. Ike is a good businessman's golfer who plays under the national average of 90. But he'll never improve his score because of a physical fault caused by a bad left knee that won't permit him to make the proper movements.

"Vice-President Dick Nixon tries hard. But he thinks too much and is too intense.

"So does Milton Berle. Milton listens to everybody, hoping to find the straw that will make him a golfer. The last time we played, Berle was terrific for four holes. Then he saw two pretty gals watching him, and he stepped up to the tee as though it was center stage and he was doing a

"Crosby has the insouciant attitude; shoots with pipe in mouth; nothing distracts him. I can never understand how he connects with the ball, because he keeps the club head three inches away when he addresses it."

"Who would you say is the best golfer in show business?"

"In my opinion, Dean Martin is the smartest contemporary golfer in the entertainment field. He practices assiduously.

"Don Cherry, of course, who makes a living singing, is unquestionably the outstanding amateur among actors.

"Gordon MacRae is a 70 shooter who's anything but a Sunday player. He reserves Sundays for his family.

"My favorite nice-guy golfer is Hoagy Carmichael. He has warmth and rhythm in his game and is a consistent low 70s shooter.

"Pev Marley, who once was married to Linda Darnell, has the greatest photographic eye of any golf observer I've ever seen. I guess his experience as a cameraman is responsible. He can detect the slightest thing wrong with your game and correct it in a flash."

Hahn suddenly chuckled. "Maybe I'll start a real feud with this comment, but I wish you'd quote me as saying that of all the cantankerous characters I've ever known from Shanghai to South America, Mickey Rooney takes the cake. He's not a bad golfer, just an obstreperous one. I hear they even have a Mickey Rooney club in Hollywood: you pay a nickel to join, but if you get caught playing with Rooney you're fined $5."

"If you were to name a Composite Celebrity Golfer, which human ingredients would you use?" I asked.

"The ideal composite golfer? Well, he'd have Ben Hogan's temperament, Sam Snead's swing, Jimmy Demaret's attitude, Dean Martin's perseverance, Perry Como's nonchalance, Don Cherry's ability, Phil Harris' philosophy – and Bing Crosby's money!" ■

BIG-NAME CLOWNING: Comedian Joe E. Brown makes "ear trumpet" of rubber club with which Hahn can drive 250 yards.

A test pilot tells how it feels to 'ride a slingshot' . . .

I FLY THE VERTICAL RISER

• by HERMAN R. (FISH) SALMON

BURBANK, CALIF.

ONE DAY SOON my phone is going to ring. It may be in the test pilots' room at the Lockheed Aircraft plant here; it may be in my bedroom at home. Either way, I'll hear an engineer's voice: "Okay, Fish. Tomorrow the vertical riser will be ready for your first straight-up takeoff."

Brother, that'll be it.

Probably you've read about this VTO (for Vertical Takeoff), the new experimental fighter plane that Lockheed and one other company have produced for the U.S. Navy.

It is a plane that will spring vertically from the deck of a carrier, a warship or even a merchantman; swing over to the horizontal and fly as a modern fighter-interceptor; then shift back and sit down on the deck in its original position. If that sounds fantastic to you, I'm not surprised. It did to me, too.

I've been flying for 25 of my 41 years, the last 14 as a Lockheed test pilot. By now I've taken up just about everything with wings, from ancient biplanes to tomorrow's jets, from a 500-pound racer to a 184,000-pound transport. I've flown through the sound barrier. I don't amaze easy any more. But I admit I never heard of anything like the XFV-1.

But, after talking with engineers, I began to get the idea. Vertical rising, they told me, would be based on the use of the most powerful power plant ever designed for a ship of this weight. With it, the XFV-1 was expected to be able to hang by its propellers—literally.

In the XFV-1, the thrust comes from a special Allison turboprop engine. It features two side-by-side turbines harnessed to contra-rotating propellers. If one turbine conks out, the other will keep the plane airborne.

Although I haven't tried the vertical takeoff yet, I've taken the XFV-1 aloft many times. Up around 10,000-feet, I've pointed her nose toward space and her tail toward the desert floor—and let her go. By now I know pretty well what she'll do, and why.

But to go back a bit. The Navy okayed Lockheed's designs for the XFV-1 in 1951. Promptly doors closed and "Keep Out" signs went up on a section of one of our engineering test hangars.

I was allowed to see some of this because, as a test pilot, I might contribute a few ideas. So I got in there from time to time and gave my two cents' worth. One day my boss said, "Fish, how'd you like to be the regular test pilot on this baby?" "I'd like that fine," I said.

Aren't you glad you use DIAL Soap?

(...don't you wish everybody did!)

No matter how hot it is, you never have to worry about perspiration odor when you use Dial. It's the wonderful soap that contains AT-7 (Hexachlorophene). Dial is the only leading soap that has it, and there's nothing else as good at removing skin bacteria that cause odor.

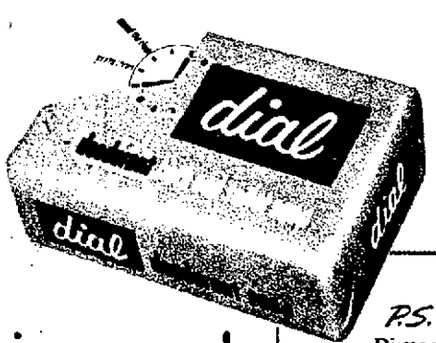

The photomicros below prove what a difference Dial makes.

No. 1 shows thousands of bacteria left by ordinary soaps. They cause odor.

No. 2 shows how washing daily with Dial removes up to 95% of these trouble-makers. And Dial's invisible AT-7 clings to your skin for days, so its protection increases the more you use this mild, fragrant soap.

Depend on it—Dial stops odor before it starts, and keeps it stopped all over, in a way no other leading soap, no deodorant can. When you use Dial Soap in the morning, you know you'll still be fresh at night.

Better get another hot weather supply of Dial today.

Thereafter I was called in often, between other flying chores, to second-guess the XFV-1's growth. Even when the plane was considered as good as finished, I spent hours playing with the controls, studying the instruments, adjusting my body to the seat. (I'm 5' 10½" and 165 lbs. If I fit a cockpit, most pilots will.) I felt two things still needed fixing: the throttle handle was too close to the fuselage and the brake pedal was at a bad angle. So the boys fixed them.

Let me say right here that more engineering goes into today's airplanes than you'd ever dream of. Every engineering test pilot (there are 10 of us at Lockheed) knows that, and relies on it to protect his own skin as well as the plane's. Mostly the planning and testing starts with your own company. Sometimes it has a different source.

For example, suppose both the XFV-1's engines conk out the day I try my first vertical takeoff—have I a chance to get out alive? The answer is that this ship carries a terrific safety unit developed by Navy researchers at a base down in Imperial Valley. This gadget tosses the pilot free and simultaneously opens his 'chute at any height above 200 feet.

Below 200 feet, of course, I'm on my own—but then, the Navy, Lockheed and I are all betting that nothing will go wrong at that altitude.

Anyway, I'm not a nervous guy. I couldn't be and do this kind of work. My wife knows the score, too; she used to be an airline stewardess. My three kids seem to take flight-testing as a matter of course. In fact, the boy (he's 14) already is talking about being a pilot.

How do I actually fly the thing? I'll try to tell you how it's been so far.

Say I've taken off horizontally, zoomed up and leveled off at 10,000 feet plus. Now I want to assume the vertical attitude. All right, I cut my air speed to about 150 knots, then gradually pull the nose up until the ship is hanging on its propellers. The seat back has tipped forward slightly, so I'm almost but not quite lying on my back. But I'm in full control; I can see; I can shoot up vertically at top speed or idle down to where I'm just hanging there, motionless.

How I'll Fly

THIS, as I anticipate it, is how it will be on an actual vertical takeoff. Once off the ground, I need go only a few hundred feet up before nosing over into the horizontal.

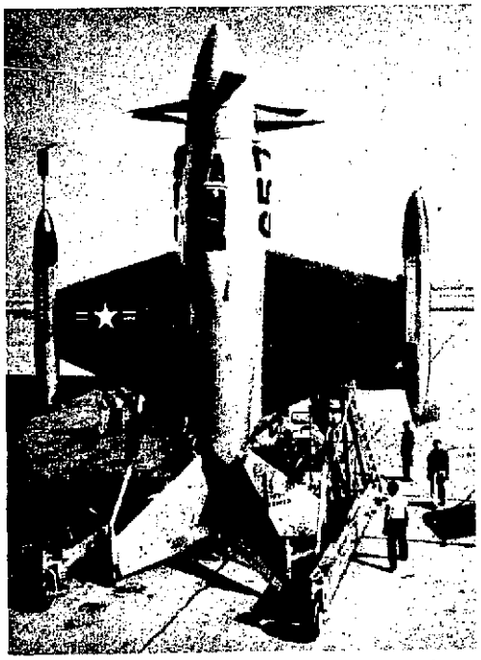

As for landing, I expect to follow the same technique I've been practicing in midair. Once vertical, nose up, I tilt the left wing-tip a little downward into the wind. Then I cut the throttle until the plane's weight begins to pull it down. Sighting past that wing-tip toward a fixed spot, I keep dropping on a gradual "skid" into the wind.

On my first actual landing, this will bring me to the ground in just the right spot—I hope. When the little wheels on my two left-hand tail fins touch something solid, followed by a slight rightward shift as the other two wheels make contact—then I'll know.

I'll also know what the Navy already believes: that the vertical-rising principle can mean a revolution in our aircraft. Regardless of what happens to the two prototype models, think what this principle promises for the future:

A plane that can get off the deck literally in seconds. (You don't have to warm up a turboprop; you start and go.) A plane that can carry the most advanced weapons and armor, at speeds in the 500-mph bracket and with a range of hundreds of miles. A plane lighter than comparable fighters, because it lacks conventional landing gear with its heavy controls.

On top of all that, the VTO offers dispersal. Today, planes must be parked close together like sitting ducks; bomb the nearest airfield, even, and they're grounded until runways are repaired. But the XFV-1 can take off and land without an airfield, or even a flight deck. Park it where you like and take off and land right there.

BEFORE TAKEOFF, the XFV-1 rests on its four-vaned tail. This also is position in which it lands.

I think about these things when I'm up on my jet-propelled pogo stick. And, when I get that phone call and go up to Edwards, check the mechanics' preparations, weigh the weather, get into my pressurized suit, climb the ladder, ease into the cockpit and settle back to wait for the green light, I'll also be thinking:

Up to here the XFV-1 represents an investment of more than $7,000,000 of the taxpayers' money; more than a million man-hours of labor; the concentrated brainwork and skill of more than 200 people. Now all this is riding on one man: me.

I've got to prove worthy of that confidence. I believe I can. ■

HIGH IN THE SASKATCHEWAN BUSH:

Land of Fantastic Fishing

By Donnell Culpepper

Press-Telegram "Fis hin' Around" Editor

FISHING is where you find it, but I found the greatest angling experiences of my life in the bush country of northern Saskatchewan this summer on an aerial trip from Lac La Ronge to several lakes in that vast unmapped area of half-water, half-land.

Norm Ferrier, University of Saskatchewan biologist and my guide, told me when I arrived at Careen Lake:

"Don, you'll get so excited when you see this pool on Black Birch Creek, you won't be able to cast."

I laughed it off as we trudged along a muskeg trail leading from the end of Careen to an accessible part of the stream he mentioned.

Then, suddenly, we came upon it—a pool 200 yards long and of about the same width. Water plunged down over white rapids at the upper end, with birch, young jack pines and low brush on either side. A setting to delight the whimsy of any outdoorsman! I took that in at a glance, then looked toward the center of the pool where the water subsided into a slowly flowing mass.

Everywhere I looked dorsal fins of arctic grayling and the slightly humped backs of whitefish were splitting the water in slow movements. Occasionally an open mouth would suck at the surface, drawing an insect. A hatch of black flies was on.

Norm was right. I almost bent the ferrules on my five-ounce fly rod in my haste to get the outfit together.

I ATTACHED a leader with two-pound-test tippet and a No. 10 dry fly of a black variety—Norm said it didn't matter about the pattern as long as the fly resembled the insects on which the fish were feeding. Then I made a perfect fool of myself on the first cast. I flubbed it, coiling the leader like a rope 30 feet away. It didn't matter. There was a sudden swoosh as a grayling split the water and snapped at the fly. I set the hook, tightened my grip on the line in my left hand.

That grayling didn't play like one of Southern California's planted trout. He took off like a 10-horsepower motor directly across the pool, ripping out all the slack line in my hand and running it down to the reel. Then the reel hummed.

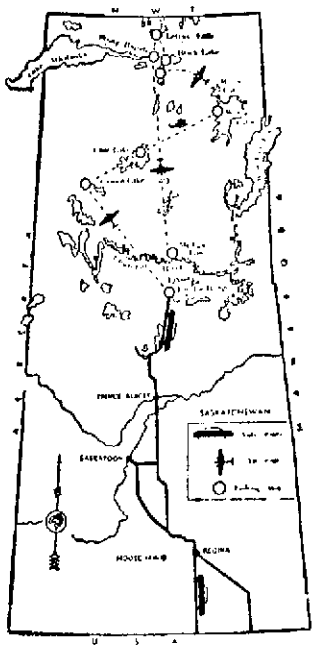

Several minutes later, I brought the grayling, dorsal fin still high and splitting the water, to the net. It was a beauty, just under two pounds.

When I took the grayling off the hook, I was amazed at the solidity of the fish. It was as hard as a rock. We weighed the fish and eased it back into the water. He swished his powerful tail and away he went barely showing any signs of the battle.

Grayling followed grayling until my arm ached.

"Now that I've been initiated thoroughly into grayling fishing, what about those whitefish?" I asked Norm, as I watched them, breaking and boiling just beyond the reach of my average cast.

"You'll have to use a different technique," Norm said. "Let's get into the canoe and paddle to that point near the waterfall. We can fish from there, but you're going to have to use care.

Map shows route taken, about 1,400 miles by air.

The whitefish of this country has an extremely soft mouth and is difficult to take on hooks, particularly on flies. Grayling are tough and you can whip 'em without too much effort, but a whitefish that gives a sudden jerk on a taut line will tear the hook out of his mouth."

WE REACHED the point and I started casting before Norm could secure the canoe. I made several false casts to dry the fly, then flipped it right on top of a boil. Another boil followed as a fish took the fly. I jerked the rod and then exclaimed: "Missed him."

"You didn't miss him," said Norm, "You tore the hook out of his mouth. Take it easier."

I tried again. When the boil appeared I barely flicked the rod tip and was rewarded. A whitefish was on and Norm softly whispered advice: "Easy does it, now. If he runs, let him go. Try to keep out the slack, but don't work him until he gets through with his runs."

I followed instructions and began to get the feel of the fish. Five minutes later I had a three-pounder in the net.

"Not big enough," said Norm. "I won't let you keep one unless you get a record fish. Toss him back."

"But I want to taste whitefish," I remonstrated.

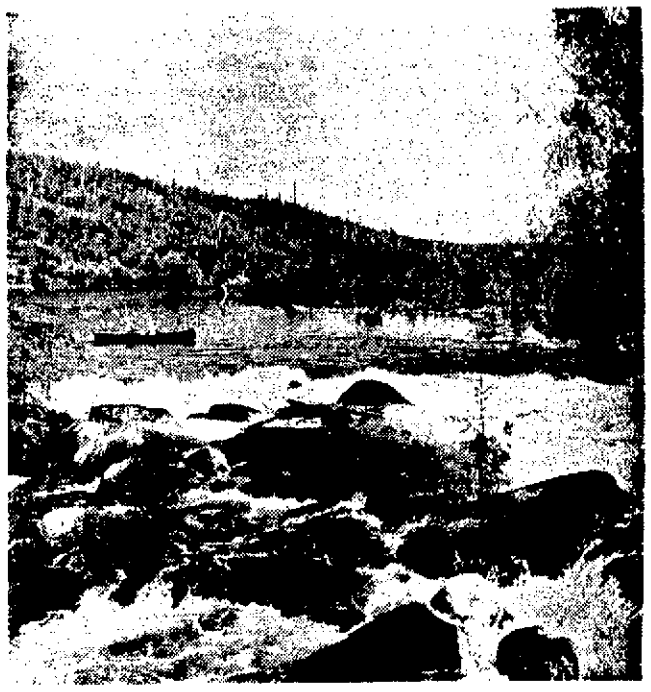

"Then catch a big one," Norm said, laughing. "I'm going to take a walk above the falls and look at a few pools up that way."

I KEPT FISHING. I caught four more whitefish, but none was as large as the first. I could see larger fish snapping at insects, but they seemed out of reach. Finally I cast a fly far out of the moving current and let it drift, hoping that it might reach the bigger fish. It did. I knew the minute I saw the boil and set the hook lightly that it was no small fish. I got so excited that I slipped from a rock into ankle-deep water. The battle was on. I let that fish have everything he wanted which was all of the 30 yards of HCH flyline, plus a portion of the backing. He boiled, swished,

REVOLT IN CENTRAL AMERICA:

'I Saw Communism Take Over Guatemala'

"Voluntarios," actually natives serving 3-year compulsory terms in Guatemalan army, parade in Guatemala City. They are type involved in revolts.

By Gladys Everets Brown

A TEACHER CAN get just as frightened as anyone else. I found that out during the revolutions of 1944 that ushered in the pro-Communist regime. When they erupted, I was teaching kindergarten in the English-American School in Guatemala City. Though on Oct. 29 there were said to be 2,000 killed and no count taken of the wounded, I wasn't nearly as much afraid of a stray bullet as I was of being hacked to death by Indians with machetes. It happened in Patzicia and the threat lasted for months.

Compared to the October fracas, the revolt in June was a picnic. That came to a head on Education Day, when teachers and students went on a stay-home strike instead of marching in a uniformed parade according to custom.

I could not parade alone. I stayed home like the others. But in the morning, as everything seemed normal, I decided to go to church. In answer to a lonely voice on the phone, I stopped by the school to pick up Yvonne, an 8-year-old boarder from the banana town of Tiquisate.

"Why are you wearing black?" the resident teacher asked me in horrified tones, then told me that there was to be a demonstration in the street and that the secret sign of an upriser was a black dress. I decided to skip church, but not Sunday dinner. During both troubles, a daily trial was the walk of several blocks from my hotel apartment to a resturant serving American-style food.

Two blocks from the school, Yvonne grabbed my arm. A file of soldiers was coming along the curb, rifles and bayonets at the ready, dark Indian faces enigmatic. These were "voluntarios" serving a compulsory term in the army, a compulsion that added another score to their accumulated 400-year hatred of the whites. On 6th Ave., which the apartment building faced, there was a double file.

By the time we had climbed the 51 marble steps to my third-floor lookout the street had filled. Everyone was dressed and gay as if for the daily round-about when all came to see and be seen. Candy vendors went wild trying to be everywhere at once. Suddenly a shot barked.

GIGGLING GIRLS fled in terror as mounted officers cleared the street, encouraging stragglers with the flat of their swords. A woman was carried away. Tear gas rose chokingly. The radio declared 6th Ave. closed to civilians. But we were confident of President Ubico's firm control on the country. We had our dinner, somewhat late, and I gave up responsibility for Yvonne at the school with exceeding relief.

An edict forbade further demonstrations. But that afternoon another began to form beneath my balcony. Women in black, carrying prayerbooks, streamed from the church across the way to defy the edict. A crowd gathered, shots were fired and a young teacher died. Now the revolution had a martyr. Feeling mounted. An estimated hundred were killed that night, and the city was put under martial law. Crowds were forbidden to form — three persons constitued a crowd. Schools, churches, stores and all public meeting places were closed.

Heavily armed soldiers were on every corner. I walked a straight line to my meals and home again. There I hastily pinned curtains into place to cover the great 10-foot high French doors that gave such a wonderful view and afforded so little protection.

Many persons still supported President Ubico, who had grown arrogant but had perhaps done more for Guatemala than any other man. Civil war threatened until he resigned. A triumvirate of generals took his place. Newspapers flourished in new-found liberty of speech. Then in a few weeks there was one general in command, General Ponce. The honeymoon with freedom was over.

At 2 a. m. on Oct. 19, heavy firing wakened me. From the handling of the heavy mortars and anti-aircraft guns we deduced in the building that the army was using lend-lease equipment.

FIRING WAS STILL going on in the morning. From the roof we could see gaping holes in Ft. Matamoros to the east. It was out of action. Shells began to fall on Ft. San Jose on a ridge six blocks to the south of us. Soldiers manned the roof but it could not resist artillery fire. Snipers, machineguns and grenades kept the defenders inside.

Above the firing the sky was very blue with white clouds and the Volcano Agua seemed to say that another revolution was a small matter. But there were bodies sprawled on the fortress' walls.

Suddenly a giant fountain of flame spurted above the fort. Soldiers poured out like ants into machine gun fire. Those that survived it passed us, many of them wounded, waving anything white they could find in surrender. One had a white saucer.

A great shout rose in the street. Barred doors opened. Five thousand guns were given to volunteers. The battle moved to the President's Palace, already surrounded by tanks and armored trucks. By 11 a. m. I saw a white flag go up there. At once, tanks rumbled our way to surround the Police Palace, next to the church on the corner opposite us.

The police were fighting for their lives. I, too, had some concern about mine. The outside wall of my apartment was mostly glass and faced the beseiged building. Snipers raked our roof. I had a choice of the stair tower or the bathroom. Sometimes I crawled to the balcony where the cement and iron railing gave some shelter and a glimpse of what went on. At 6 a white flag went up but the firing continued until all police were hunted down and killed to expiate the death of the teacher in June. With dark, tanks began to patrol the streets.

THE NEW FREEDOM lasted about two weeks, daytimes only. No crimes were reported and details were omitted of the nightly gun battles that went on for some time. The police were wiped out, the constitution declared null and void. Everyone had freedom. Everything was chaos. Only the Communists knew what they really wanted.

Arana, Arbenz and Torriello headed a youthful government in which the average age of the new National Board of Education was 22 years. Their inexperience did not make things easier. The Reds quickly entrenched themselves and had to be driven out by force in 1954.

For myself, I still believe that beautiful, tormented Guatemala will once again ring with song and laughter. As a Guatemalan general once told me, "The Indians and the jungle own this country. We only use it." Indians and mixed-bloods make up about 85 per cent of Guatemala. Communists used it and may again. They can never own it.

Teen-Age Bronco Busters

Bronco busters on Lisle Woolery's ranch in West Covina average 13 years of age. Woolery operates one of the largest Shetland pony ranches on the west coast. "My ponies are raised and broken mostly for small children to ride," he explains, "so I use youngsters to train them. That way the ponies become used to children."

Pic ture Story by Jack B. Kemmerer

A Shetland pony colt playfully nuzzles his mother. Soon this colt will be going to "school." Shetlands are sure-footed, intelligent and patient enough to put up with the whims of small children.

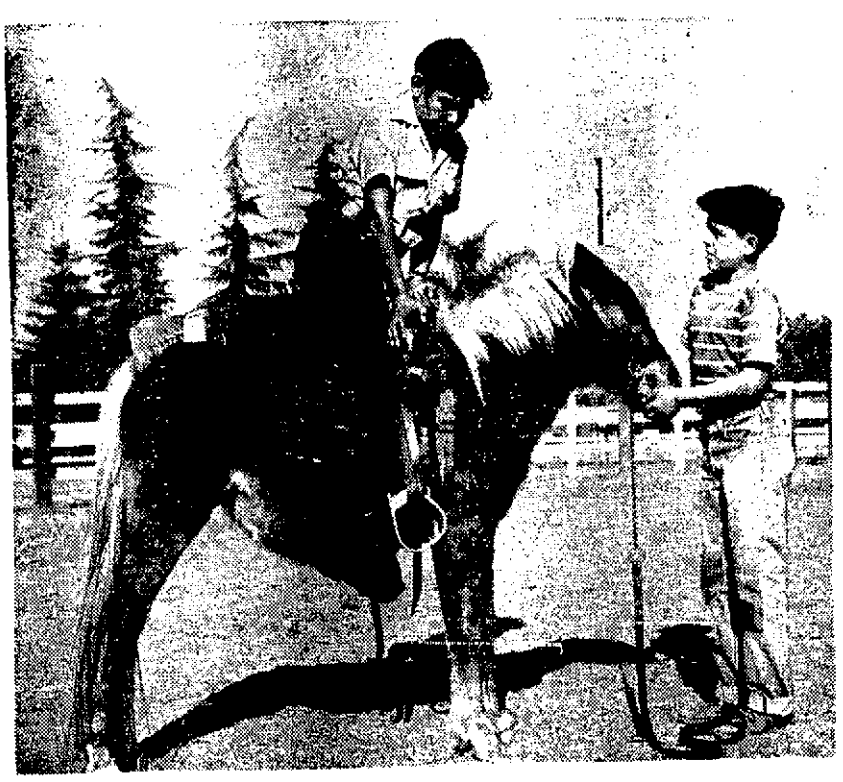

As soon as the colts are old enough the young bronc busters take over. The boys usually work in pairs. Here, two boys give a pony his first lesson in leading. Struggle continues until pony learns.

Invariably, the young owner of a pony has a baby brother whose favorite trick is crawling under the pony when mother's not looking. Boy trainers teach the Shetlands to watch for tiny tots underfoot.

When the colt is strong enough—at about 6 or 8 months—the boys start to put weight on his back. At first, only a small part of their weight is on the pony, then slowly the weight is increased.

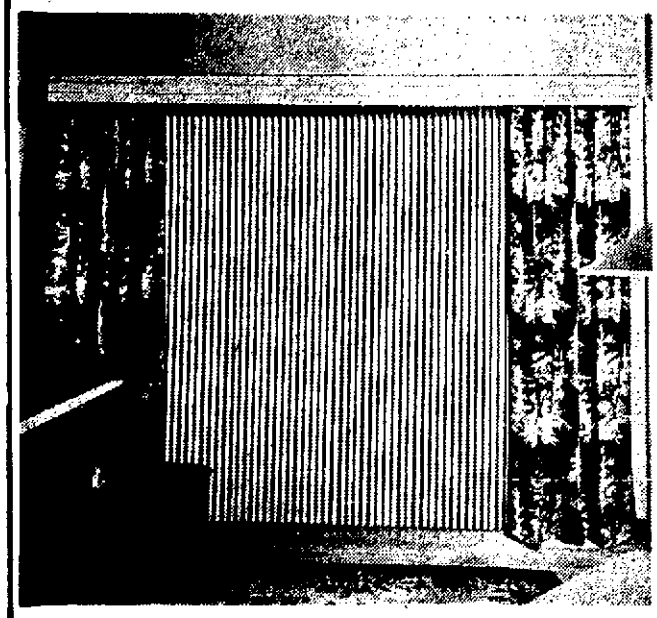

Now comes the big moment—the first time the trainer mounts the saddle. One boy calms the Shetland while the other climbs on. The pony will buck but it's all in a day's work for these youngsters.

Finally the ponies are ready to leave the ranch and go to work on the pony wheel. They are one of the main atttractions at more than 50 school carnivals each year. And they like the kids, too.

HIS TAPES TEACH TRAFFIC TRUTHS: HE'S

Washington's Recording Cop

Sgt. Amans gets attentive reaction to safety lectures given with the help of unrehearsed recordings made on highway. Talks are radio show by-product.

By Jerry O'Brien

SPOKANE, WASH.

GEORGE AMANS learned radio on a police car intercom, but today he's the Northwest's most successful amateur radio personality.

A tall, handsome sergeant in the Washington State Police, Amans uses a microphone and recorder to put the finger on traffic violators and back up a state-wide drive to cut fatalities.

He was on hand the other day when one driver turned from the wrong lane, whipped past a stop sign and weaved across a white line.

Pulled aside at the curb, the driver cried:

"This thing has gotten out of hand, officer! I'm going to tell the governor. He's a personal friend of mine. This is ridiculous!"

The driver's outraged cry was heard by an estimated 3 million West Coast radio listeners. It was unquestionably entertaining —this cry of unrighteous indignation from the guilty. But it was educational, too.

A radio audience heard it because the sergeant had a microphone hidden somewhere on him. (He won't tell where.) Although the anonymous driver didn't know it, he was starring in a 25-minute weekly radio program entitled "Could This Be You." And when he dressed down Sergeant Amans, he was bawling out the originator, director, producer and co-star of the show.

IT ALL BEGAN seven years ago when Amans became bemused by the flimsy excuses of traffic violators he stopped in his patrol car.

Why not, he asked Chief James Pryde, outfit a car with recording equipment and hidden microphone and put the whole thing on commercial radio as a new kind of safety program? Chief Pryde okayed the project.

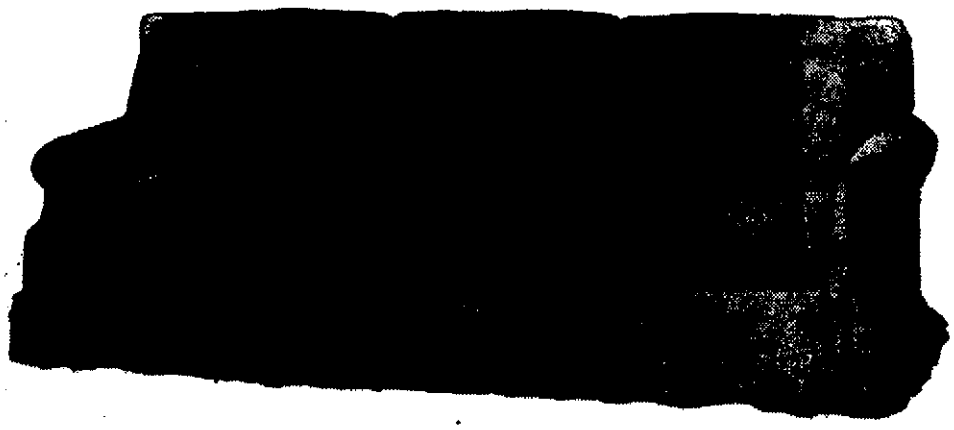

It was an instant success. Its humor, pathos and dull thud of righteousness made its Hooper rating soar. Station KVI, which holds the copyright on title and format, sold Amans' recordings throughout Washington, Oregon, California and even in Alaska and Hawaii.

Washington's Gov. Arthur B. Langlie, an ardent fan, gave Amans free lance status to go anywhere at any time with his recorder. Thus the 39-year-old sergeant covers about 4,000 miles of Washington highways a month, usually at night, and usually on a regular traffic run with another officer.

Amans drives. The other officer gives the commentary, describing the violation on the recorder. When the quarry is stopped, Amans steps out with 25 feet of cord and the show is on.

RECORDINGS require careful editing. Names are deleted. Con-

Pretty Is as Pretty Does

Eleanor Parker, who spent two months in Egypt during the filming of "Valley of the Kings," took time out for some research on how the daughters of the pharaohs kept themselves "whistle-able" some 4,000 years before the advent of home permanents.

Egyptian belles weren't subtle about eye make-up. The entire eye was heavily lined with charcoal.

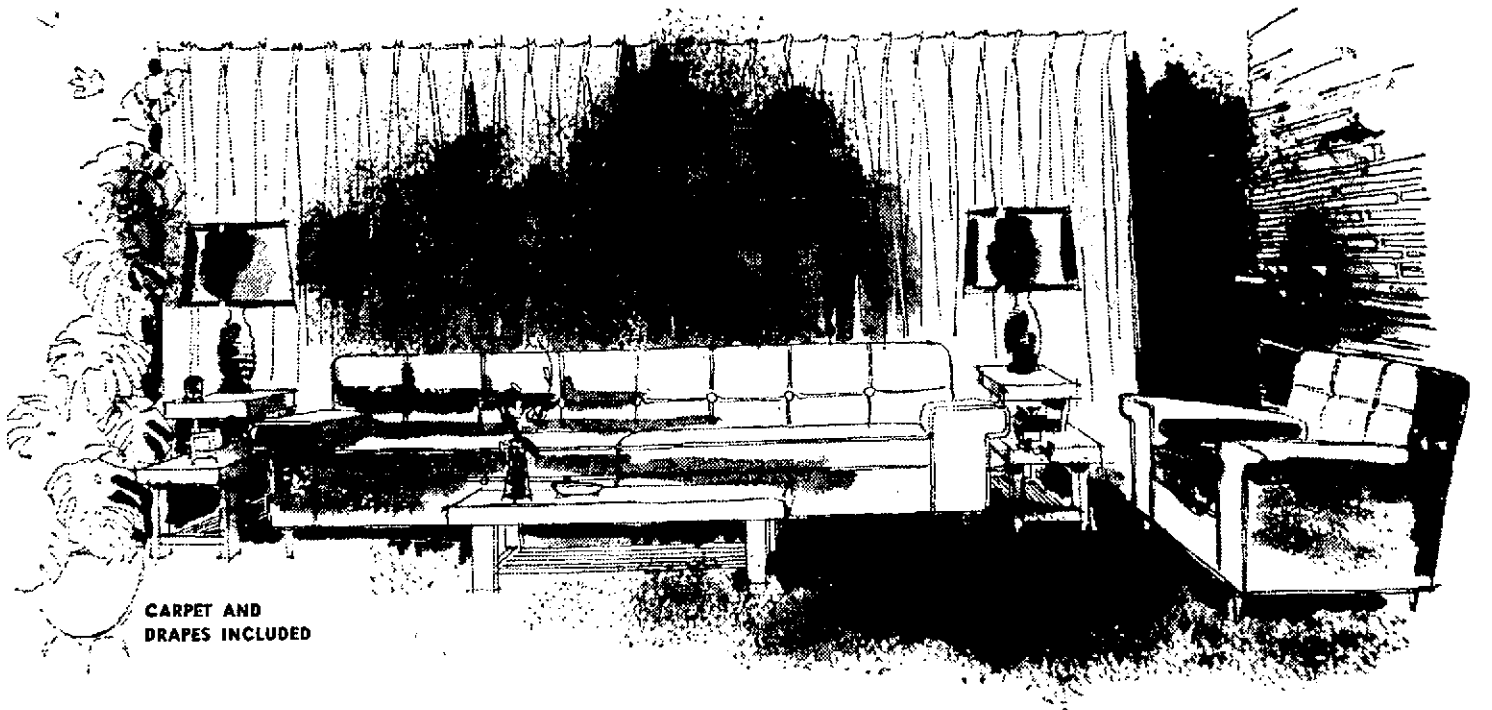

Except for electricity, the curling iron has changed little. Ancient one was heated over charcoal.

Eleanor doubts that the beauties of the Nile carried this heavy metal comb around in a handbag.

Youth Has a Look at Germany

Roedelseer Gate in Iphofen, one of the best preserved old town gates in Germany, presents a typical scene.

By Greg Shuker

LEMGO, GERMANY.

ALL GERMANY rides on two wheels.

At least that's the way you feel after a day or two hitchhiking through the northern Rhineland and taking your life in your hands every time you cross a street.

Several people have told me that one out of 10 motorcyclists gets killed before he pays for his machine, and when you listen to the solid symphony of coughs, sputters, and backfires everywhere, you can easily believe them.

So after half a dozen narrow escapes, John Gardner my traveling companion from Northwestern University and I were ready for our two-day rest in Lemgo, a small town about halfway between the Ruhr and Hanover. We had come up from Spain, touring Europe on a budget of $3 per day.

Our first destination in Germany was Frankfurt, and from there we went to Cologne by Rhine River steamer. The all-day trip through lush green vineyards and under crumbling castles was worth far more than the $3 it cost.

There was a true holiday spirit on board and we sat and talked with students leaving for their vacations.

"We like the Rhine," one of them told me, "because it has always been the blood stream of Germany."

Another said that "I'm surprised so many tourists go through the castles but don't bother to see them from the river. Americans are too practical; the castles are more romantic from a boat."

And, indeed, we were the only Americans on the "Rheingold," our white and gold excursion steamer.

We hitchhiked from Cologne to Lemgo after staying up all night to see the sunrise over the Cologne cathedral. It rained so hard we could hardly see the top of it, but we saved a hotel bill.

In Cologne, a school girl her name was Frieda told me that she wanted to go to America but was worried about the gangsters in Chicago. She laughingly asked me how many times I had been shot at there. Later,

The Pleasures of Paris

Sidewalk cafes of Paris, like these in the Latin Quarter, are the summertime delights of American tourists. Here students keep up with the gossip of the Parisian literary and art world, shoppers pause to rest, and hurried sightseers stop to sip an aperitif and watch the world walk by.

Public 'Thrift-Minded' on Travel

"The American travel public is getting more and more thrift season minded" points out Albert A. Beach of the Beach Travel Agency.

"The discriminating traveler has always shunned the hectic tourist season and traveled in the less strenuous, inexpensive off-season instead. As Americans are now traveling in Europe more than they ever did before, they are also getting smarter and go in for stretching their travel dollar to get the most out of their foreign travels.

The late summer and fall, when steamship lines feature "Thrift Season" rates has become THE time to travel. By traveling in the thrift season one also avoids tourist throngs, crowded hotels and the frustrating "waiting lists" that the traveler so often encounters during the summer season.

The Swedish American Line, operators of the famous M. S. Kungsholm, Scandinavia's largest luxury cruise liner and the sleek, yacht-like M. S. Stockholm, offers excellent accommodations on all late summer and fall sailings this year. The line, endeared to travelers who like the utmost in service, cuisine and comfort, maintains scheduled service between New York and Scandinavian ports, Beach declared.

"There is ample space available on the following sailings, M. S. Kungsholm Sept. 11, Oct. 23 and the M. S. Stockholm Aug. 28, Sept. 21 and Nov. 11. For those who intend to spend the Christmas holidays abroad, The Swedish American Line has arranged two special Christmas excursions to Gothenburg and Copenhagen.

On the popular Christmas sailings, the traveler gets a "sneak preview" of traditional Scandinavian Yuletide celebration. The cuisine on board features traditional holiday dishes, there are concerts and Christmas parties on the high seas and the passengers are introduced to the famous Swedish "glogg."

One for the Birds

Floyd Crow of Laguna Beach checks feeder food supply.

By Harry R. Peterson

THIS HOMEMADE bird feeder, in a Laguna Beach patio, attracts many birds, costs little and is easily duplicated. It was made from a wooden breakfast tray. Children like to watch the towhees, house finches and song sparrows that use it as a headquarters for food in the summer. Lively white-crowned sparrows are the principal winter visitors.

Mockingbirds, black-headed grosbeaks, even mourning doves, sample the dry bread crumbs or chopped peanuts early in the day and at sunset, when it is quiet in the yard. Convalescents, shut-ins and the elderly find the feeder especially intriguing. In fact, city birds are fun for all the family.

Brown towhees are kings of the crumbs in summer, as they are bigger than the colorful linnets or house finches. Song sparrows, with their stripes and black patches on their breasts, like to hop around and collect particles at the base of the tree. Particularly appreciated by the wild visitors are a drinking dish of cement and a bird bath of stone on a slate slab.

Naturally, the early bird — and the largest and strongest — gets the crumbs on this feeder. If too many fly in at once, weaker ones will carry a piece up on the fence or to the graveled path and flagstones of the patio. The driftwood twig above the board is a good perch. There's always something doing near the tray.

WHEN SHE CAME to get food for her young, the towhee got into trouble one morning. En route, she stopped on the rooftree of the garage. Somehow she dropped the crumb, and it slid down the slope to the gutter. Mrs. T. hopped down and picked it up again. Two finches at once flew near, ready to make a sneak attack at the next mistake. The towhee squawked and gulped it down without delay. "When there's a crowd you have to eat on the run!" she probably thought.

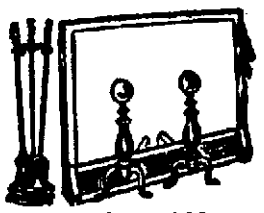

You can easily make a similar tray, and the contraption, you'll find, is efficient, if not fancy. If you have no tree, just nail a flat redwood board to the top of a wooden fence post. Or sink a redwood 4x4 in cement and use

Roundup of Summer Snapshots

By the Shutterbug

This photograph of dad and kids which mother snapped on the summer vacation trip is a "must" for the family album. It will recall the happy days spent together.

IT'S BEEN a great summer . . . much fun . . . many snapshots.

The snapshots have been very important. You've rushed the film to the photofinisher and all but paced the floor until you got the finished prints. Everyone looked at them, chuckling over remembered fun. You kept them close at hand for a few days to show to people you thought might be interested in them.

But where are they now? Let me guess. First of all, I'd say that some of them are stuffed into a desk or table drawer. Others are likely to have found their way into the wallets of various members of the family. Some may even have gone for a plane or train ride as enclosures to letters to friends and relatives in other places. A few may even have been stuck inside the cover of your album, awaiting mounting.

With all these possible answers to where are the summer's snapshots, obviously it's time to round up not only the prints but the negatives as well because you'll want to have prints made to replace those you sent away and those that are in the various wallets.

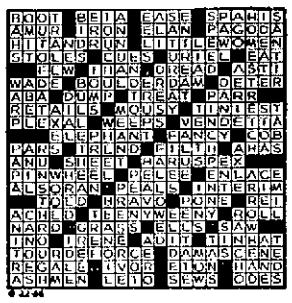

If you don't take steps to get them all together, some are bound to get lost. Others will be curled and scratched, their edges cracked from being shoved around in a drawer full of other things.

Your snapshots are so well worth preserving, no matter what system you wish to use for keeping them in good order. It doesn't matter if you paste them in a scrapbook with clippings and souvenirs, make little albums, or keep one large one, do keep them in a way that you can enjoy whenever you wish as time goes by.

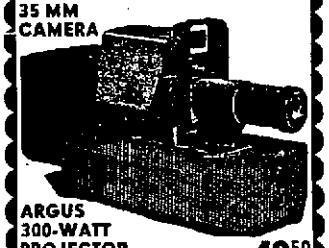

Most of our snapshots are like cheese and good wine—they improve with age. If you liked them the day they came home in a photofinisher's envelope, you'll enjoy them even more as they freshen memories of good times in the past.

HANDY CATALOG for the user of large amounts of photographic materials is a new Ansco publication. Sturdily bound with flexible covering and in convenient loose-leaf style, the catalog is indexed. The company offers a continuing service by which the catalog may be kept up to date. Distribution is from company offices in Binghamton, N. Y., and is restricted.

a shrub for shade. The rig is easily washed clean with the garden hose.

This one is 12 inches wide, with edge strips an inch high. Bottom board is ⅛ inch thick and slants a little toward the front for drainage. The 2x4 used to support the tray was a discarded porch railing. Support and edges of the feeder are painted green. The fence behind is unstained weathered redwood.

THE BREAKFAST tray model is tough; cats have knocked it down, winter storms have twisted it, and the paint has been replaced several times, but after five years it's still there, catering each year to new generations of birds. Young ones fall from nests every summer, to be fed from an eyedropper or with chopped egg-yolk until they are able to fly.

Birds will eat a variety of things: wild bird seed (available in many feed stores and pet shops), hen scratch, chick scratch, millet, sunflower seed, fresh or dried fruit, raisins, dry crumbs of whole wheat bread, crumbled crackers, cornbread, chopped egg shells for calcium content, stale cake. Suet is a delicacy and a super-delicacy is made by melting suet and adding sugar, then hardening it again and feeding it. Birds are fond of sweet foods, and especially like cornmeal mush.

"They like doughnuts," says Dr. Arnold Lane, director of the Tucker Bird Sanctuary 16 miles east of Orange in Modjeska Canyon in the Santa Ana range, where wild birds are studied under the auspices of the California Audubon Society. Twenty kinds of food are provided there on feeding trays.

COOKING

Simplest Salads Are Smartest

Mrs. Harry Christensen proves that salads are easy if you remember only a few fundamental salad rules.

More goes into the making of a proper salad than leftovers. Choice of dressing is all-important.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

AFFINITY, says Webster, is conformity, relation or kinship generally. We are quite sure that Webster's thoughts were far from salads and their dressings when he defined the word, but it applies nevertheless. Fact is, affinities are most important in salad making.

For instance, cabbage and pineapple and raw carrot have about as much in common as denim, chiffon and ticking. Why try to combine the incompatible?

Another fallacy in the thinking of many people is that a salad is a concocted accumulation of leftovers, topped with the salad dressing on hand at the moment. Few are the dressings, if any, which complement both a vegetable or fish and a fruit salad.

Our hostess today, Mrs. Harry Christensen, 1491 Edwards St., Westminster, enjoys making salads. She has a natural aptitude, too, for blending those ingredients which produce just the proper subtle flavor for the proper salad. The one thing she always remembers is—"When all is said and done, the simplest salads are the smartest."

FIRST OF ALL, she always has on hand a basic French Dressing. Then in just a matter of moments she can add the ingredients needed for the salad of the day. We're featuring her recipe for basic French Dressing today—variations follow:

Ambrosia French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon celery seed and 1 tablespoon catsup. Shake well. Wonderful on fruit salads.

Chow Chow French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add 2 tablespoons minced chow chow. Good on seafood, or vegetable salads.

Creamy French Dressing—Whip ⅓ cup heavy cream (sweet or sour). Blend with 2 tablespoons chopped pimento and ½ cup basic French dressing. For chicken, potato, or other vegetable salads.

Onion French Dressing—To ½ cup basic French dressing, add 2 teaspoons chopped onion and dash of Tabasco.

Mrs. Christensen's French Dressing:

2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup vinegar
1½ cups Wesson Oil

Shake up in covered jar. Shake again before serving. This recipe makes 2 cups . . . keeps best in a covered jar on your pantry shelf.

Kitchen Tip:

Mrs. Christensen's Kitchen Tip: Avoid a sweet dressing on meat, fish, poultry or seafood salads.

Fishing

flipped and raced through the pool toward the falls.

I played him carefully for several minutes, then suddenly realized I was without a net. What a fine kettle of fish, I thought. I screamed for Norm, knowing well the roar of the rapids drowned out my shouts. I was standing in water halfway to my knees and the whitefish was tiring. As I steered him toward my feet, I knew I had a keeper.

Closer he came right to my feet. Then he got the first feel of rocks under his white belly, gave a big flop and tore the hook out of his soft mouth. I was expecting it. I went down with my left arm, submerging wristwatch and all and grabbed for his gills. I had him—a twisting, fighting beauty that glistened in the sunshine.

Norm was watching from above and scurried down. When we weighed him, the scales went to exactly five pounds and Norm, beaming happily, said: "You can have him for lunch and your name's going on the honor roll at Grayling Lodge. That's the largest one of the year. Now get busy and catch a few more so we eat. I'm going to build a fire."

THAT MORNING was just a beginning to my adventures in northern Saskatchewan.

It was only Tuesday and there was a week of excitement ahead. Our party had flown into Careen Lake, 250 miles from Lac La Ronge, late the previous day, in a Saskatchewan Government Airways plane. Aircraft are the only means of transportation in that northern country.

Five men can fly from Lac La Ronge, an enormous lake in the center of Saskatchewan, spend a week at Grayling, with boats, meals, beds, guide service, etc., fly back to La Ronge and pay $250 each.

THE FOLLOWING morning our genial bush pilot, Steve Peters—and we'd put him at the top of any flying list—gassed up the Mark V Norseman and we took off for Cree Lake, which covers more than 700 square miles. There we caught and released northern pike by the dozens. Most of the fish ranged from eight to 18 pounds and were the most savage fighters we encountered.

From Cree, we went to Wollaston Lake for gasoline, then to Black Lake, near the northern boundary, where Chris Thimsen, camp operator, tried to prove to us that lake trout and northern pike were more plentiful than anywhere else in the north. He finally convinced me after I had caught northern pike from 10 to 18 pounds on almost every cast, then finally broke a light casting rod on a lunker that probably weighed between 30 and 40 pounds. The record for northern pike in that country is 62 pounds.

On our return to Lac La Ronge, Steve set the plane down briefly at McTavish Lake where we caught several lake trout. One was a 30-pounder, caught by Henry Sinotte, camp operator who is building eight cabins for the tourist trade. A 40-minute flight took us to La Ronge and the end of a 1,400-mile aerial journey that had only one description—utterly fantastic!

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Twice as Big in Half the Space

White linen sofa, lavender pillows dramatize furnishings in the living room of the David Wigod home. Note how texture contrast eliminates design need.

Extra wide Pullman type kitchen experiences no traffic problems. Wigods can seat eight at dinette at far end.

By Eileen Ball

PROBLEMS of designing a functional house for a 50-foot lot were dropped in the lap of the architect firm of Poper & Lockett when Dr. and Mrs. David Wigod decided to build on such a lot at 289 Granada Ave.

The two young architects, William Lockett and Richard Poper, worked around the Wigod's desires for a house with a "living room" type of kitchen —one that had the sort of fluid circulation that (despite its relatively small footage) would enable large numbers of people to be entertained easily without having the unhappy result of cramped corners and jammed doorways.

The team of Poper and Lockett are convinced that a feeling of spaciousness is not necessarily an exclusive characteristic of large houses alone. To be sure, unlimited floor space is bound to help. But tactful planning can go a long way toward giving the small and medium-sized house illusionary growth.

Not that the Wigod's house of 2,000 square feet of floor space could be classified as small. It certainly is well over average. But when one realizes that Mrs. Wigod can comfortably entertain 150 people, one must admit that the house is outdoing many houses twice its footage.

Much of Mrs. Wigod's success at entertaining large groups is attributable to the fact that her living room, the covered terrace and the den all open onto each other. Traffic, consequently, flows easily from one room to the other with the patio-terrace gracefully accommodating the overflow. A refreshment bar located between the kitchen and the den greatly facilitates serving.

Because Poper and Lockett are proponents of open planning

Sliding doors to the terrace permit party guests to have ready access from the den to the sheltered patio of the Wigod home. Den opens off living room.

Exterior of the Wigod home puts up a friendly front on its 50-foot lot. The house is developed from roomy plan.

in such cases, they decided against carving up valuable living room areas into a decided entry hall. Rather, they have created the feeling of separateness by means of a natural mahogany divider that establishes a definite point of entry while capitalizing on the airy view of the living room beyond.

Set into the corner where the mahogany counter joins the south wall of the living room is a handsome grand piano. The area so created by the installation of the divider has transformed this portion of the L-shaped living room into an attractive music center.

THE LIVING ROOM, orientated toward the back of the lot, faces west. Consequently, measures were taken by the architects toward combatting hot afternoon sunshine. For this purpose, the terrace adjoining the living room has been deeply roofed. The color scheme, too, was considered in this context. Mrs. Wigod, who did the decorating throughout the house, chose sage green for the walls.

The focal point of interest in the living room is the very dramatic corner arrangement view-

EARN THESE PREMIUMS FREE AS A BONUS!

IT'S EASY... HERE'S HOW

It's so easy! There's nothing to buy. No stamps to stick in a book. Nothing to write. No need to register. Just save your cash register receipts until they total enough points to receive the premium or premiums of your choice. Cash register receipts from all departments in the store are valid and every 10c purchase is worth one point. Every $1.00 purchase is worth 10 points. Based on surveys of grocery buying, it would take the average family only 2¼ months to earn 2200 points ... more than enough to secure an electric coffee percolator, for instance. Consult the schedule of premiums for the number of points required for each.

This washable full-fashioned slipover sweater is knitted in super-orlon and has a tailored bow and band trim of black washable velvet down the front. It is available in 10 colors, all with black trim.

FASHION FAVORITES

Sweater Girl

Fashion designer Claire McCardell, who a few years ago came up with something called the "American Look," has turned her attention to sweaters. It was America that created the "sweater girl," she points out as proof that the sweater is a basic U. S. fashion. Big sensation of the new McCardell designs is the sweater that just keeps on going until it becomes a dress. Other creations feature sweaters trimmed with bands of velvet or taffeta. These, says the designer, are easily adaptable to day wear under suits or on their own with a wool skirt. Miss McCardell says she strives for fashion plus comfort—styles that are young, gay, different yet solidly functional. To this basic goal, she adds her own secrets of bias, loose-but-not-baggy cut and touches that dress without trimming.

This oversized turtle-neck sweater is fine for giraffes, swans and girls whose ears get cold while skiing or boating. The long tubular-knit neck can also be worn as an ordinary turtle-neck sweater.

versations are scrubbed up for the listening public. But some of the uncensored versions have become an unsuspected, valuable by-product of the idea. Service clubs, which once snubbed safety lectures, now line up to hear spicy unretouched recordings.

Once Amans chased a drunken woman driver right into her garage after she ignored three siren blasts on the highway.

"Give me your keys, please," Amans recorded. "You're under arrest."

"Aw, come on, honey, give me a break," the woman said.

"You didn't give anybody else a break out there on the highway."

The woman said she had to feed her rabbits. Amans said he'd help her before taking her to jail. The radio audience even heard the splashing of water into a pan for the rabbits. Then Amans told the woman to come along.

"Now wait a minute, honey," she said. "Don't you wanna see my apartment? My husband's left me."

"We've fooled around long enough," Amans said. "Let's go." And so they went off to jail with a recorded siren that ended the show.

MANY NOTES of domestic strife are sounded in the program. When Amans arrested a man driving 90 miles an hour, he asked him, "Don't you want to live?"

"Why should I?" growled the man. "I've got a wife who hates me and three kids. I don't care, I'm leaving!"

"Well," Amans said, "if you don't want to live, others do and we have highway deaths from driving like that."

"I can drive that fast," the man said, "my wife says I can't do anything. Maybe I can't. But I can drive a car."

Maybe he could. But not for a while. Amans jailed him.

Amans figures only 3 in 10 interviews are air material. Most are too routine.

Amans stopped one driver who had drunk too many. "How much have you had to drink, sir?"

"Oh, a few beers."

"How many?"

"Eighteen, I'd say."

After being jailed for drunken driving, the driver appealed his conviction. He claimed the state patrol heard him wrong: It was eight, not 18.

Amans' recording was brought out, proved the man wrong.

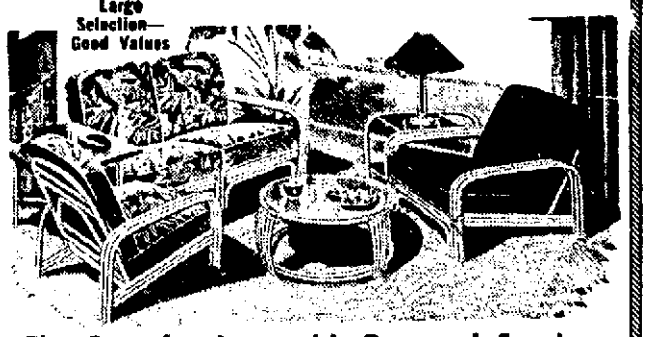

What has been the reaction on Amans personally of all this careless driving?

After hours he leaves his own car in the garage. For pleasure he rides horseback and takes to the water in his motorboat.

Guardian Fences Help Backyard Fun

When your family's all worn out by hot weather and clamors for fun, everybody welcomes a picnic.

But you needn't drive out of town. Your own back yard or patio will be cool enough when you're protected by a Genuine Guardian Steel Fence.

Fact is, your yard will be 20 degrees cooler than if you had a solid redwood fence or stone wall.

With ivy growing on it, you will have privacy—at less cost, too.

TWICE AS BIG

able from the entrance. An off-white chaise-sofa banked with lilac colored throw pillows angles into the corner, creating a unique conversational center.

The manner in which good contemporary design relies on texture for interest was never more tastefully stated. For here the linen-like texture of the chaise's upholstery is set off by the bank of glossy green philodendron leaves against which it stands. The planting, in turn, magnifies the rough, symmetrical pattern of the brick "wall" which, in reality, is the back of the fireplace opening to the den. Softer background for the corner is provided by the eggshell mesh draw draperies with their gold metallic highlights that pull across the glass wall to the terrace. Highlighting the entire composition is a hanging "pumpkin" lamp of opaque white plastic.

Because of its L-shape, part of the living room is out of view of the entry. This area offers a cozy, somewhat more "sheltered" atmosphere than prevails in the vicinity of the chaise and the piano.

Here is an oversized sectional upholstered in an interesting heather-colored fabric flecked with gold. The color has been picked up and repeated in the deeper-hued lavender throw pillows used across the room on the white chaise. Soft heather tweed was employed for the upholstery of a sleekly contoured occasional chair that stands part way between the two sofa groups.

The curved sectional is flanked by contemporary table lamps with off-white shades. The coffee table that centers — and handsomely dominates — this group is composed of a very large and low natural cherry frame inlaid with four-square blocks of white and black structural glass. Narrow liners of wood divide the glass sections into a striking checkerboard.

THE DEN is located next to the living room and carries the same sage green into its decor. The brick fireplace facade has been painted this soft green, its exposed back playing an important role in the living room makeup.

The walls of the den are natural mahogany and the floor is resilient cork. Doors open to the terrace and a second opens onto a breezeway toward the garage located at the back of the lot. This ease of accessability between house and garage was a major point for Dr. Wigod, whose hours are irregular. This way he may come and go, as necessity warrants, at a place removed from the sleeping quarters.

Mrs. Wigod's highest hopes have been realized in her strikingly sophisticated kitchen.

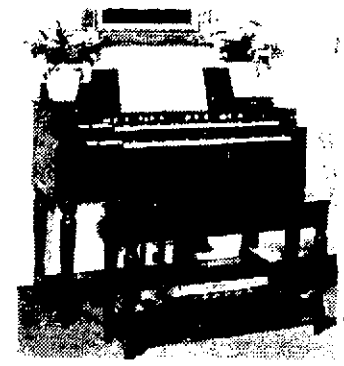

Rose formica tops the cabinets of natural birch. Her built-in oven and burners eliminated the classical, business-like white range. Next on the agenda is a new pale yellow refrigerator.

THE MASTER BEDROOM and bath are strikingly unusual in their dramatic color scheme. Shocking pink walls combine with chocolate colored woodwork to set the pace. The sill length draperies for the windows over the twin beds are sculptured cocoa cotton. The print valance matches the boxed spreads.

A French door opens to the garden and is flanked by a door-height section of louvered glass for ventilation.

The bath is decorated in the same shocking pink complimented by turquoise fixtures.

PET PARADE

Penny Is a Two-Family Horse

Penny, pinto mare owned by two families, is pictured here being ridden by Mrs. George Harski of Lakewood.

By Eleanor A. Price

NOT EVERY CHILD (or adult) can have a horse for a pet, but many more children could have them than do if their parents were not afraid of the cost and care.

The story of Penny is encouraging to those who believe a pet horse is beyond their means.

Penny, a young pinto mare shown here with Mrs. Harski and the German shepherd, Phantom, belongs jointly to the George Harski family, 5406 Hersholt Ave., Lakewood, and the Walter Price family, 4305 Clark Ave.

Two congenial families buying a horse together cuts the cost and upkeep in half. Penny cost the two families just $50 each, no more than the average good puppy. She was gentle, broken to the saddle, and her cost included several months' free pasturage.

Now that the free pasturage time is up, the two families have located a little field under the power lines that run through Artesia, and the rent is only $15 a year.

Water for Penny is, fortunately, near by, and all that is needed is a washtub to be kept filled with fresh water.

A bale of hay, approximately 125 pounds, costs about $2.50, and it lasts about two weeks. Oats are not necessary, but an occasion coffee canful is appreciated by the horse. This food should be limited, especially if children are to ride the horse, for the expression "to feel your oats" is quite true, and this food makes the horse frisky. Horses used in shows are seldom fed oats because they are more easily managed without it.

Of course Penny's food must be doled out to her every day, and she likes a good grooming now and then. Penny's owners plan to build her a shelter soon, but the young mare is quite accustomed to any kind of weather.

Penny can be ridden bareback, but her owners wanted riding equipment. A surplus Army saddle was found in a second-hand store and was paid for with unneeded articles stored away in the attic of the Harski garage.

Penny is being trained by Harski as a performer and has appeared at several functions. For the average family, however, this training is not necessary.

A HORSE makes a splendid pet for a child, one that causes pride of ownership, enjoyment of the outdoors, and a chance to develop good character. It should be ridden often and permitted to become accustomed to children, although children must never play around any horse's rear legs. The pet should be a mare or a gelding. A mare is perhaps the wisest choice, and she could be bred to have a colt, an addition to the family circle that would delight almost any child beyond words.

Tour of Germany

she added sadly, "we have been shot at."

LEMGO WASN'T TOUCHED by actual war. The old buildings still stand and you feel that you are in the last years of the Middle Ages. But the population before the war was 12,000; now it is 20,000. The new residents are all refugees from Ruhr cities.

So little Lemgo, in its own way, knows war.

A schoolmaster told me he thought American youth lacked a certain maturity he found in his students. "But it's a good kind of immaturity you have. You were lucky, your young years were spent without the sounds of bombs and sirens."

An old man standing with him simply added, "We lost. We started it. There is no more to say." He did not sound bitter.

The above paragraphs might seem somewhat grim, but the war is talked about by everyone here in both the past and future tenses.

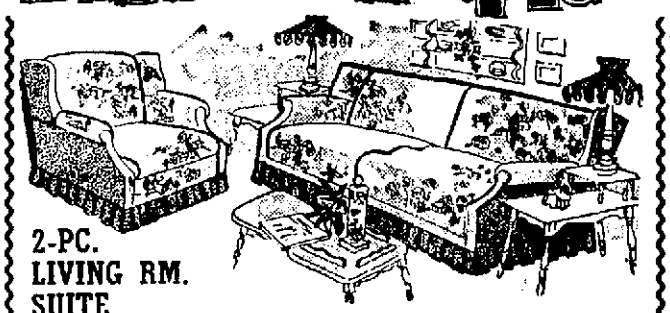

The Russian zone isn't far from here and things like Dr. Otto John's flight into East Berlin don't go unnoticed.

We stayed in the Hotel Schlepper, built in 1677, at $4 a night. A $3 a-day budget is still easy to keep up.

Motorcycles are everywhere here, and German students proudly show them off. One explained: "They're cheap to run, fun to ride and get you there fast. Also, cars don't get in your way."

Pedestrians, too, I was moved to add.

DOGGONE GOOD FERTILIZER!

Won't Bite When It Touches Bark!

STAR-ORGANIC is all organic, can come in direct contact with trunk, stems or tender roots, is safe to use right when you put in a lawn or set out plants. Starts feeding sooner than ordinary all-organics because it is finely pelletized and contains no oily substances. So insist on Red Star's Star-Organic, at your nursery or garden supply dealer's.

RELY ON Red Star FOR THE BEST FERTILIZERS

Greenery Keeps the Garden Cool

By Bob Gilmore

Leaves of cedar deodar impart a cool, refreshing effect to your garden as the temperature rises.

IF YOU WANT a cool garden, emphasize evergreen plants and keep at a minimum those that appear bright or gay. Green tones, you will discover, produce a refreshing, quiet effect for the landscape. They are especially valuable as the temperature rises.

One of the most popular trees for Southern California is the evergreen elm, recognized botanically as ulmus parvifolia. It will fit practically every garden for it rarely grows beyond a height of 25 feet. The leaves are bright green and most attractive; except in extremely cold areas the evergreen elm will show foliage throughout the year.

Algerian ivy is one of the best subjects for hiding the glare that often results when the sun shines on stucco walls, white fences or comparable structures. This variety is faster growing than the more familiar English ivy and the leaves are larger and more attractive. The foliage has a width of about 5 inches across.

THE STAR JASMINE also deserves a spot in your garden this summer. It produces tiny white flowers that contrast elegantly with the beautiful green leaves. During spring and early summer a few plants will fill your entire garden with a rich and permeating perfume. Star jasmine enjoys shade, semi-shade and full sun.

Although holly plants attain their greatest prominence during the Christmas season they will prove valuable for foliage effects at all times. The leaves are deep green and the surface quite glossy. One of the best varieties for this district is Ilex cornuta burfordii.

Other cool-appearing ornamentals for your summer garden include: ornamental grape, English ivy, cissus hypoglauca, creeping fig, hardenbergia comptoniana, primrose jasmine, polygonum auberti and the Chinese wisteria for those who want a little purple with their green; the purple flowers of this ornamental will also help you provide a cool effect.

To make your green plants greener this summer it is advisable to feed them at regular intervals.

Sweet Peas for Christmas

By Walter Finch

IF YOU want to pick bouquets of exquisitely beautiful sweet peas for your holiday decorations and for gifts, sow the seed in August.

The sweet pea, as we know it in America, with large frilled petals, did not make its appearance until about 40 years ago.

Since then many exciting new hybrids have been developed by plant specialists. As a cut flower, the sweet pea has few equals for glorious colors and fragrance.

An avid feeder, the sweet pea thrives in a rich, well fertilized and drained soil. Use plenty of leaf mold, peat moss and cow manure in the preparation of the soil.

Dig a trench two feet deep and 18 to 20 inches wide. Remove all the soil from the trench. Then loosen the soil in the bottom of the trench down to the depth of your spade.

Refill the trench with a mixture of peat moss, leaf mold, cow manure and 2 pounds of a complete plant food. Some nurseries have a special sweet pea food. Put first a layer of this mixture then a layer of soil and so on until the trench is nearly filled.

Slowly flood the trench. In a few days add 2 inches of rich soil or peat moss on the surface.

Irrigate the trench a few days before sowing the seed. As soon as the soil is dry enough to turn easily, turn the top soil over to a depth of 3 or 4 inches. Make a shallow furrow through the center of the trench and sow the seed, allowing ½ ounce to every 10 feet. Cover the seeds with soil, one inch in heavy soil, two inches in sandy soil. Firm the soil and spread a loose mulch of soil or peat on top.

W. Atlee Burpee Co. Photo

Come Christmastime, would you like a bouquet of fragrant sweet peas? You can have them by planting now.

If the trench is well irrigated there should be sufficient moisture when you sow the seed to germinate it before a second watering.

AFTER SOWING, cover the row with large weeds or leafy branches to shade the soil and keep it cool and also to protect the seeds from birds.

As soon as green shoots appear, remove the covering and irrigate, preferably 4 or 5 inches from the row of plants. Cultivate gently, after each watering so as to leave a loose mulch of soil on the surface.

In fall, irrigate once or twice a week until the rains come, then less frequently. Too much water often causes the buds to drop off before opening.

Give a light feeding or a complete plant food in liquid form when the plants are about two inches high and every six weeks thereafter.

Soon after the plants shoot through the soil, provide a support to keep them upright. An easy trellis can be made by setting a post at each end of the row. Then string wire the length of the row at both bottom and top. Loop strings from top to bottom to form a trellis.

Look out for slugs, snails and cutworms and apply bait, and spray for aphids.

After flowers appear cut them often; some gardeners do it every day. Allowing plants to go to seed shortens the blooming time.

Sweet peas like an open sunny position.

Time to Start Pansies Now

Bodger Photo

Few flowers can equal pansies with their glowing color combinations, their rich velvety texture and markings.

By Martha Hurley

IF YOUR HEART quickens to the sight of piquant pansy faces blooming in a riotous profusion of color in your garden, why not sow your own seeds? You will then have hundreds of young plants for your own garden and to give to gardening friends. It takes a bit of care but is well worth the effort.

August is the best time to sow pansy seeds for winter and spring flowering plants. Pansies started from seed, now, will start to bloom in November and continue on till June.

It pays to purchase the best seeds. Start seeds in flats, using plenty of coarse sand. A good soil mixture is one-third peat moss, one-third coarse sand and one-third light soil. Broadcast the seeds thinly and barely cover them with sand. Do not use any fertilizer in the seed flat. Press the thin covering of sand lightly over the seed with a board. The flat is now ready for watering. One practical way is to set the seed flat in a container at least 4 inches deep and large enough to hold the flat loosely. Place water in the container so that it comes up around the outside of the flat to within three-quarters of the top. Leave the flat in the water until the surface shows moist spots as the water is drawn up from the bottom. Then remove the flat and place it in some shady location.

Pansy seed usually germinates in about eight days. Watch the flat and if soil seems dry, sprinkle lightly.

As soon as the seedlings start to grow, bring the flat into the light, else they will get too spindly.

When the seedlings have developed four leaves transplant them into another flat, spacing the plants about an inch and a half apart. Do not shift the small plants during hot weather.

IN A FEW WEEKS the plants should be 4 or 5 inches high and ready for their permanent place in the garden.

Pansies dislike heat and continued drought so when you set them in the garden give them a situation on the east side of the house where they will get morning sun and miss the hot afternoon sun.

The garden bed should have a rich soil with plenty of humus. Prepare the bed at least a month before setting in the little plants. Spade in well-rotted steer manure and peat moss. A moderate amount of bone meal, ½ pound to 25 square feet well dug in the soil, will add a lasting food element that will help the plants all season.

In planting, pulverize the top few inches and level off. Set the plants 9 inches apart in groups, rather than rows, for an effective blooming effect.

As the plants develop they can be fed every week with liquid blood meal, watering only the soil surfaces between the plants. Do not put fertilizer on foliage. Two tablespoons of blood meal to a gallon of water is a safe solution. Alternate this feeding with one of super phosphate in water for larger blooms.

It is important as the plants bloom, to keep old flowers pinched off, else the plants will go to seed. Pinching back the top leaves helps to induce a bushy plant.

PANSIES LIKE plenty of moisture. Do not let the plants dry out nor the soil cake around them. Scratching the surface of the soil after watering is good. Scatter insect pellets to protect the plants.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week. Garden sprinkler system made out of flexible vinyl plastic can be purchased at a relatively nominal price. A section weighing just one pound will spray an area of 1000 square feet.

Hanging basket fuchsias are splendid subjects for patios, porches and comparable locations. These plants want a humid environment and plenty of peat or leaf mold. They are at their best in a shady spot.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Promise at Ebbtide

By Garald Lagard

THE WORLD IN THE EVENING, by Christopher Isherwood (Random House, $3.50.)

Stephen's long illness at the home of his Quaker aunt is the setting for a remarkable and rewarding novel. His past has been one of a series of failures, and his last failure, separation from his wife in Hollywood, has led to his flight back to the scenes of his childhood. Most of the novel is told in flashbacks, and the reader will meet a most perceptive woman in Stephen's dead first wife. She was a novelist, and she was also older than Stephen. Hers was a strength that was missing in her wealthy and idle husband, and he remembers and regrets as he lies in bed. Too, he remembers and is again happy in it before the threat hanging over Elizabeth becomes real and haunting again. It is death that taught him, but it taught him late.

His second marriage was one of his great mistakes, but even when the girl whose affection he had had as Elizabeth held onto her life, fearful and troubled at the heart that weakened, disclaimed the need for marriage. Stephen's conscience drove him deeper into folly. The novel closes on a promise, a fulfillment of a philosophical ideal that is based on a Quaker spirit, the spirit of Stephen's aunt who is much as was Elizabeth.

AN INTRODUCTION TO TREES, by John Kieran (Hanover House, $2.95). Illustrations in color by Michael H. Bevans make this volume a truly delightful library item to which the owner can turn from time to time and refresh his knowledge of the lovely tall growth that is a tree. Few of us remember more than a few trees, familiar ones that grow in a lot or park. But here are 100, each one of them in vivid color and identifiable by bark, leaf and bud. Kieran and Bevans have done a magnificent job on this one.

HOME CRAFTSMEN who like to make their own furniture will find value in a new Sunset Book, "Tables You Can Build" (Lane Publishing Co., $1). The publication is another in the popular Sunset books series and contains large, clear photographs and detailed, accurate plans for an assortment of 36 well-designed tables. Included are dining tables (one with chairs), coffee, end, snack, specialty and children's tables, modern and conventional. Basic "how-to's" are covered down to the last detail with text and illustrations, with special instruction on materials.

THE MERMAID'S WISH, by Mabel Dobb Hester (Story Book Press, Dallas.)

Mabel Dobb Hester, 726 A Olive Ave., who says she has written verse all of her life, proudly presents this, her first volume, which takes its title from a fanciful poem about a mermaid and her wish to comfort the ones who bury their dead in the sea. Mrs. Hester shows emotional feeling and an appreciation for words.

Former star of stage and screen, Miss Chatterton has firmly established herself as a successful novelist. "The Pride of the Peacock" is her third novel. It is a family story and has a setting in New York City, Long Island and Connecticut. It deals with the major contemporary problem of divorce and its effect on the children of broken homes.

NEW PAPERBACKS you'll like: "The Deadly Mermaid," one man's passage into a violent and exotic world (Dell First Edition, $.25); "The Bandit Trail," a western by William MacLeod Raine (Dell, .$25); "The Viking," Viking lust and terror (Dell, $.35); "To the Last Man," flaming revolution and romance in Spanish America, by William E. Barrett (Pennant Books, $.25).

JOHANNESBURG FRIDAY, by Albert Segal (McGraw-Hill, $3.75).

This novel is a rich experience to the reader. The setting is the sprawling and confusing South African city, and the time is one day in the lives of a Jewish family. It is a quiet story, but the echoes are there in spite of the lack of any explosion of temperaments or violence. Few are the people of the city who do not appear in one way or another, in relation to the Leventhals, and the four lives in the family live each to himself as well as a unit of a social group. This is a first novel and a fine one.

Famous Book

This month marks the 100th anniversary of one of the most famous books in American literature: "Walden, or Life in the Woods" by Henry David Thoreau. In the Henry E. Huntington library, San Marino, are the original manuscript, the first edition and the printer's page proof of the great classic. On the page proof of "Walden" are corrections in the handwriting of the author. A comment by the compositor in the margin of one page states "Can't read manuscript."

The World of Stamps

A NEW METHOD will be adopted in the future in the printing of high denomination bicolored stamps. It will entail the use of flat plates of 400 subjects and pregummed paper, which will result in substantial savings in the cost of production.

The $1 denomination, series of 1938, printed by this new method will be issued on Aug. 31, 1954, through the Washington, D. C., post office.

Although the stamp itself will vary but little in appearance from those currently issued, some collectors may wish to have them canceled on the first day of issue. Those desiring first-day cancellations of this variety of the $1 stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with money order remittance, to the postmaster at Washington, D C. An enclosure of medium weight should be placed in each envelope and the flap either sealed or turned in. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed First-Day Covers. Orders for first-day covers must not include requests for uncanceled stamps.

For the benefit of collectors desiring stamps of selected quality for philatelic use, the new variety $1 ordinary stamp will be available at the Philatelic Agency, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C., on and after Aug. 31, 1954. To insure prompt shipment, mail orders to the agency should include no other stamp issues. The Philatelic Agency does not service first-day covers.

The new variety $1 ordinary stamp will be furnished on all postmasters' requisitions processed after Aug. 31, 1954.

Pacific Coast Club Galleria, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.: Grace Miller, Ruth Osborn, Edith Cisko Show.

Long Beach Branch, Los Angeles County Medical Association, 814 Pine Ave.: Jane Rhorer Show.

THE 1954 GREATER LONG BEACH NON-JURIED SHOW—Paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture from the entire Long Beach area—opens in Municipal Art Center, where it will remain through Sept. 12.

Celebrating the silver anniversary of the Spectrum Club, organization of men painters, art work of its members hang in a separate gallery throughout the show.

An informal reception for participating artists, for members of the University Club which is giving awards and the Palos Verdes Players who will present a short version of Rostland's "Cyrano de Bergerac" is slated for 3 to 6 today.

"Cyrano" highlights in concert form will be staged at 4 p. m., midway in the reception. The English version, chosen by the Players, is from the Brian Hooker translation used by Walter Hampden in revivals in the 1920's and by Jose Berrer in the recent motion picture. Musical score will be Raspighi's "Ancient Airs and Dances for the Lute."

Stan Johnson, director, will star as Cyrano. Other roles will be taken by Jim Bridgman, Bill James, Dick Twohy, Virginia Hunter, Nadine Nichol and Chuck Durrell.

All events in the Municipal Art Center are free and open to the public.

THE NEW MUNICIPAL ARTS COMMITTEE appointed by Mayor George Vermillion, will be sworn in at 3:30 p. m. in the mayor's office in the City Hall. The group will choose a chairman and vice chairman and will determine policies for the next three years.

Members of the committee are Mayor Vermillion, City Manager Sam Vickers, Mrs. Herman H. Ridder, who is interested in musical activities; Mrs. Howard (Athena) Hall, vice chairman of the outgoing municipal Arts committee and past president of the Art Association; Mrs. James Kreel, chairman of the Art Mart committee at the Art Center and past chairman of the Junior League community arts committee which assisted in activating a children's program at the Art Center; Mrs. Edward Killingsworth, active in musical organizations; Walter Havekorst, member of the outgoing musical arts committee and past president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Ben Parks, interested in a wide range of community cultural activities including educational television; Edward Frank, furniture designer and head of a contemporary decorating and furniture firm.

Municipal Art Director Sam Heavenrich will report on municipal art department activities.

BEN AND VELMA MESSICK are home from a week-end of sketching in the Palomar Mountains. Messick judged the Oceanside-Carlsbad Art League show.

CALIFORNIA WATER COLOR SOCIETY, which includes many Long Beach members, will have its 34th national exhibition Oct. 30-Nov. 30 in the Fine Arts Gallery, Balboa Park, San Diego. The show will be at the Pasadena Art Museum, Pasadena, Jan. 14-Feb. 13.

HOW TO Fasten Up the Corners

1. MITERED CORNERS, for all but the roughest work, are stronger, neater than butt joints—and not much more difficult to make if you have a simple miter box. Patented fasteners, such as those shown, simplify your construction, are stronger with glue. Some of them can be set below surface and covered with putty or wood plastic.

2. CLEATS STRENGTHEN butt joints for stress in all directions. Use them when you need strong joints for light members and appearance is secondary. Nail ½ inch from edges so wood won't be so likely to split. Quarter-inch plywood makes best cleats, because cross-grain lamination resists stress in all directions. The nails needn't go clear through, but if they do, clinch them for most strength with this type of joint.

3. HALF-MITERING permits surface fastening technique on back (1), with miter's neatness on front (2). Cuts you make (3) are simple, and with glue on all surfaces, a snug-fitting half-miter is among strongest of all cabinet joints.

4. HAUNCH MORTISE (1) is common in screens, windows. Open mortise (2) is easier than mortise and tenon, has good strength when glued. Single dovetail (3) is self-locking, decorative. Half-lap (4) gives joint lots of gluing area.

You Make It

Trellises may be used in various ways to add charm of individuality to the home's exterior. The above sketch is an example. Across the end of a porch to give privacy or to soften the corner of a garage, a door, or a window are other uses. Pattern shows views of four styles of trellises and three designs for flower boxes. As tracing patterns are required only for the shaped parts, space has been found on the pattern for directions to make the door-side seats and an interesting garden gate that is easy to make. He's a Cadillacboy

By Dick Kleiner

EDDY ARNOLD
City Folks Like Him, Too

THE ONLY TROUBLE with country music is that a lot of us city folks like it, too. Heaps of us, as a matter of fact, by golly, yer dern right.

The word on this happy occurrence comes from the top country singer of them all, RCA-Victor's Eddy Arnold. This is the gent that goes by the name of the Tennessee Plowboy, but he looks, acts and dresses more like a New York Cadillacboy.

Anyhow, Eddy says that he gets heaps of mail from places like New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles and even Hawail, by gum. And, sure as shooting, where there's mail there's people, so you can bet your last ten-gallon beanie that the city slickers like the way Arnold sings a song.

Like him so much, in fact, that over the nine years since he cut his first RCA record, there've been 30,000,000 Eddy Arnold records sold. And that, as the farmer said when he saw his field full of jitterbugging beagles, is a dog-gone lot.

In case you are unfamiliar with the Tennessee Plowboy's work, don't get the idea that it is strictly from the hills. His songs are often done later by pop artists — Eddie Fisher's "Anytime" was originally an Arnold record, as was Les Paul and Mary Ford's "I Really Don't Want to Know."

TEN TOP TUNES: "Sh-Boom," The Chords, climbed to the top of the Long Beach hit parade last week, pushing "Hernando's Hideaway," Archie Bleyer, to fourth place.

This is the way they stand: (1) "Sh-Boom," (2) "Little Shoemaker," Gaylords; (3) "Little Things Mean a Lot," Kitty Kallen; (4) "Hernando's Hideaway," (5) "Hey There," Rosemary Cleoney; (6) "In the Chapel in the Moonlight," Kitty Kallen; (7) "I Understand," Four Tunes; (8) "Goodnight Sweetheart, Goodnight," Sunny Gale; (9) "The High and the Mighty," Victor Young; (10) "Happy Wanderer," Frank Weir.

In the rhythm and blues field, "Honey Love," The Drifters, and "Heart of Stone," The Jewels, are climbing fast.

SACRED MUSIC is not limited to a seasonal appeal, as seen in the interest over the new recording of the "Messiah" conducted by Scherchen. The Public Library offers this and other lps of great sacred music for loan. Recent additions include Bach, "Mass in B Minor" (Herbert Von Karajan conducting); Bach, "St. John Pasion" (Robert Shaw conducting); "Easter Music," (sung by the original Don Cossack Chorus); "Gregorian Chants" (sung by the Benedictine monks of St. Wandrille de Fontenelle); Handel, "St. John Passion" (Bernhard Henking conducting) and Schmitt, "Psalm 47, for soprano solo, chorus, organ and orchestra" (Tzipine conducting).

ALFRED CORNWELL

WINES—beautifully aged and delicately flavored—are the secret behind the superb continental flavor of many of the dishes served at the Victor Hugo restaurants on Long Beach's rapidly-growing restaurant row at 730 E. Broadway.

Owner Alfred Cornwell, who has made seven trips to Europe to study the newest techniques in food preparation, believes implicitly in the value of wine as one of the prime ingredients in rare cuisine. One of the outstanding dishes at the Victor Hugo, which is as French as the Montparnasse in Paris, is Braised Top Sirloin.

This top quality cut of beef is first sauteed carefully in butter. Then it is simmered gently in a burgundy sauce with fresh mushrooms and shallots (small onions). It is accompanied by choice Anna potatoes and a fresh vegetable. When served with a complete dinner (including a huge platter of chilled relishes, soup or salad, beverage and dessert), a Braised Top Sirloin still costs only $2.75.

There are numerous other excellent culinary attractions at the Victor Hugo, such as Filet of Fresh Sole, Boneless Squab Chicken, Sweetbreads and Spring Chicken in Wine Sauce. And the prices fit any budget. Complete dinners, including everything from relishes to dessert, start at $1.85.

Cornwell and his staff of experts were official caterers to the recent Miss Universe contest. They attended to the million and one details of serving 800 persons at the dinner which welcomed the lovely candidates to the city. In addition, they served 1,000 persons at the Coronation Ball.

After the contest was over, Miss France (blond Jacqueline Beer) dropped into the Victor Hugo and was the luncheon guest of Monsieur Pierre Bardet, the restaurant's chef de cuisine who was born in Bordeaux.

"I've learned to bleach away my Washday Worries!"

"Good Housekeeping MAGAZINE TAUGHT ME: USE A CHLORINE BLEACH"

After years of study of the best ways to wash clothes, Good Housekeeping, leading household magazine, says this:

To maintain whiteness, use a heavy-duty chlorine bleach "for the white cottons and linens that make up the bulk of family laundry..."

"Typical items: sheets, pillowcases, dish and bath towels, face cloths, men's shirts (including striped and light colors), T shirts, shorts, aprons, gloves, handkerchiefs."

"SO NOW I USE PUREX BECAUSE ONLY PUREX GETS CLOTHES SO WHITE... SO SAFELY!"

Every washday PUREX Liquid Laundry Bleach will give you a whiter, brighter wash with no fear of bleach damage. PUREX puts the sparkle back into your white cottons and linens... removes soil and many stains that have resisted soaps and detergents.

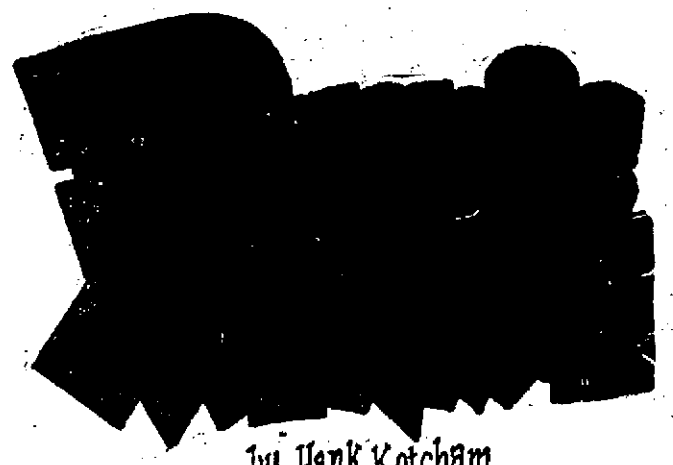

How can PUREX do all this so easily and with such complete safety? PUREX is a different kind of chlorine bleach. It's made with a special extra process—our exclusive Intrafil® Process—that removes harsh, harmful chemical impurities. Used as directed, PUREX is safe... gives you steady, thorough, yet gentle bleaching action.

See for yourself: only PUREX gets clothes so white so safely.

the gentle laundry bleach

FINE FOR KITCHEN, BATH, TOO!
Use PUREX Liquid Laundry Bleach in the kitchen and bathroom to make tile, porcelain and linoleum shiny-bright, antiseptically clean. Banishes odors and stains; leaves things truly sanitary. The type of disinfectant widely recommended by public health authorities.
